SEVEN DIE IN FLAMES OF AIRPLANE WRECK

French Machine Crashes Near British Field — Three of Victims Women.

By the Associated Press.

PENSHURST, KENT, ENGLAND, Oct. 2—Seven persons, five of them passengers, met death this afternoon when a French Air Union airplane, enroute from Paris to Croyden, burst into flames only a few miles from its destination and crashed near here.

Every person aboard the great four-engine air liner was burned beyond recognition. It was believed all the passengers were English. The pilot and mechanic were French.

The names of the passengers as given out by the line with the notation "probably correct," were: Gertrude Fall, Margaret Stainton, Flora Parker, L. Hamilton and Joseph Noble. The pilot's name was Mallett and the mechanic's Bayer. The addresses were not available.

At least one of the women passengers was alive when the plane struck the ground. She died while the overseer of a nearby farm struggled to rescue her.

Edward Sands, the overseer, told a correspondent for the Associated Press that he saw the plane burst into flames near the tail when about 400 feet in the air. It dived to earth. The crash was followed by two explosions and flames shot 30 feet into the air, enveloping the wreckage and making it impossible to rescue the passengers who were piled in a heap within the burning cabin.

The weather was perfect and the cause of the accident had not been determined tonight.

The tragedy is the second cross-channel airplane accident in the last two months, an airplane enroute from Le Bourget to Croyden chashing near Folkestone, causing the deaths of three persons and the injury of nine others. One American was killed and six others were injured in that crash. The airplane was a sister ship to the one which crashed today.

British Woman Aviator Narrowly Escapes in Crash.

By the Associated Press.

SELBY, England, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Elliott Lynn, noted British aviatrix, narrowly escaped death today with a man passenger when her little "moth" machine crashed during races at the Yorkshire Flying Club. The plane developed engine trouble, necessitating a forced landing in which it dived sharply to the ground, smashing the propeller and undercarriage. The woman flyer and the passenger jumped from the cockpit just before the crash and escaped unhurt.

BORAH TO CAMPAIGN FOR G.O.P.

Missouri, Indiana and Oklahoma Likely on Itinerary.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—United States Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, tendered his full services to the National Republican Speakers' Bureau here today and will take the stump soon, it was announced at joint headquarters of the Senatorial and Congressional Campaign Committee.

The Idaho Senator held a conference with Congressman Walter Newton of Minnesota, chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, after which it was announced that Indiana, Oklahoma and Missouri probably would be on the Senator's itinerary.

Levee Break Feared South of Peoria—Missouri State Highway No. 40 Blocked at Mineola.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Oct. 2.—Jacksonville today was threatened with its second big flood in two days. Rain began falling in torrents at 3 o'clock this afternoon and water was rapidly rising in the lower sections of the city.

The city is without lights and its gas supply is almost exhausted.

The Chamber of Commerce ordered all business houses closed at 6 p. m.

(Jacksonville is on Mauvaisterre Creek, a tributary of the Illinois River.)

By the Associated Press.

WHITEHALL, Ill., Oct. 2.—Helen Hanson, 11 years old, of Drake Station, near here, was drowned last night in the flood waters of Hurricane Creek when her father, Abe Hanson, attempted carry her to higher ground after water had threatened to carry away their home.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Ill., Oct. 2.—A 15-inch rise of the Illinois River flooded the southern quarter of Naples, forcing families to move out. The pumping plant has shut down, no train service is possible, and residents are using row boats to get to the stores.

Beardstown, Ill., Bridge Is Closed to Traffic; Ferry in Use.

By the Associated Press.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Oct. 2. — The Illinois River, still rising, now at 21.85 feet, a gain of more than 6 inches since last night, stopped traffic over the bridge and forced residents to again use the ferry. South Beardstown is mostly evacuated.

Wabash River Nears Flood Stage at Mt. Carmel, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

MT. CARMEL, Ill., Oct. 2.—The Wabash River here was nearing the flood stage of 16 feet again today, following heavy rains upstream. The gauge stood at 14.7 feet, with a prediction from Terre Haute that 18 feet would be reached. The flood crest two weeks ago was 21.5 feet.

Traffic on State Highway No. 40 Blocked by Flood at Mineola.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., Oct. 2.—The flood waters of Loutre creek at Mineola at 8 p. m. today, blocked all traffic on Missouri State Highway No. 40, tying up many St. Louisans and other motorists returning home from the Missouri-Tulane football game at Columbia. The creek went out of its banks for the fourth time since Labor Day.

There was a miniature cloudburst in this section this afternoon.

Flood Warnings Issued for Mississippi and Illinois Rivers.

Flood warnings on the Mississippi River immediately above the mouth of the Missouri, and for the Illinois River, were issued yesterday by the Weather Bureau here.

At Alton, where the flood stage is 21 feet, the Mississippi at 7 a. m. was 22.5 feet, with 23.6 feet predicted; at Grafton, flood stage 18 feet, river yesterday 20.6, with 21.8 predicted.

The Mississippi at St. Louis was 25.6 yesterday, with 27.2 predicted by Tuesday. Flood stage here is 40 feet. Heavy rains in the Mississippi basin north of the Missouri River junction, and in the Illinois River basin, have caused the rise.

CARD FANS JAM STREETS GETTING GAME BY RADIO

Downtown Business Virtually Suspended as Graham McNamee's Voice Over KSD Follows Play.

ST. LOUISANS CHEER AS IF IN BLEACHERS

Roar of New York Approval of Hornsby's Men Echoes Across Continent Through Loud Speakers.

The big double play—Yankee Stadium to K S D to Cardinal fans—clicked beautifully yesterday afternoon and some 10,000 rooters for the Cards, jammed into downtown St. Louis streets, heard their first report by radio of the first world's series baseball game in which a St. Louis team has participated.

Other thousands in their homes here, and millions all over the country, listened while Graham McNamee, the famous announcer for WEAF in New York, sent out from Yankee Stadium to 21 stations, of which KSD of the Post-Dispatch was one, his play-by-play account of the game. The bats that cracked in Yankee Stadium echoed across the nation, and Rogers Hornsby was cheered in San Francisco a few seconds after he stepped to the plate.

Here, business virtually was suspended for two hours while the whole town got the returns — a town that won a pennant after 38 lean years of major league baseball and now is craving a world championship.

Rooters Jam Olive Street.

Olive street from Broadway to Twelfth boulevard was a baseball pavilion, and except for a few street cars which pushed their way through the jam with more fans hanging out the windows to listen, it was all reserved for rooters. Every block was noisy with the game, six loud speakers bawling out McNamee's account of the events in as many blocks. Late comers were pushed over to Locust street, Sixth street and Washington avenue, where the bleachers were, radiolistically speaking.

The Cards lost, but no one gave up hope until the last growl of static told that the game was over. That's the bliss of attending a ball game by radio. Magic comes from the horn, and who knows but in the next breath Hornsby will sock a fast one into the right field bleachers? Of course, he didn't, and that is the sad part of a 2 to 1 score. But the St. Louis crowds took defeat in good spirits. Victory may come out of the horns today, and it was no shameful defeat to be beaten by Herb Pennock at his best.

New Yorkers Cheer Cards.

Quite unexpectedly the New York crowd was the hero of the day as far as the radio fans were concerned. Half of the crowd seemed to be yelling for the Cardinals. When Hornsby went to bat in the first inning there was a rumble like Forty-second and Broadway from the loud speakers. New Yorkers apparently at last had found something west of Newark which they deemed worth getting enthusiastic about. The Cardinals scored first and that crowd a thousand miles away ungrudgingly admitted that something good had come out of the corn belt.

The next important hero was McNamee, the broadcaster. A Yankee fan, he nevertheless gave the Cards a square deal.

When Babe Ruth tore his trousers by sliding into second base in the third inning, the nation heard the news, impartially reported, and everybody in St. Louis laughed. McNamee was fair. He praised Pennock until the fans on Olive street got to hollering: "Wait. They'll get next to the big stiff." But when Pennock walked two men in the eighth, McNamee admitted it. He said Sherdel was wild in the first inning. He was. But everybody yelled, "Come on, Sherry, settle down." In the second inning the horns duly conceded, "Sherdel is not so wild as he was in the first."

"Atta boy, Sherry," went up the cry from Twelfth to Broadway.

Sense of Distance Erased.

Fans did not seem to mind being 1000 miles from the game. A mordant creature at Eighth and Olive remarked, "This is just as close as I'm going to get when the Cards play here." He was not a member of the Little Sect of Coveted Pasteboards.

Another humorist who had been listening to a horn at Eleventh and Olive, moved to the 600 block on Olive, explaining that he wanted to get a little closer to the third-base line.

Some indication of what the

ELUSIVE CURVES OF NEW YORKER UPSET CARDINALS

"The Silver Fox Farmer" Lives Up to His Reputation for Skinning Them Deftly.

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Herbert Pennock is his name but mostly they don't call him that. He has the longest nickname of any player in organized baseball, for generally he is referred to as "the silver fox farmer of Kennett Square." In his Pennsylvania home he spends his leisure raising foxes and skinning them for the market. Now anybody who can skin a fox ought to be able to fool a ballplayer. Herbert did. Three hits was all he gave, but he was much more wild than usual and passed the same number of batters. Still but for a little handle hit in the first ihning there would have been no score by St. Louis and from that round until the ninth no Cardinal reached him.

Pennock is physically but not spiritually lefthanded. He ranks among the brainiest in the game and his control is famous up and down the league. Today it was not so good but this slight man is not sheer ice and even a fox has a right to an extra pace of pulse when the chase is on. The fortunes of the game were such that Pennock faced his most dangerous foes in the tightest moments.

Facing Hornsby in Ninth.

Many times he had to bear down. Coming into the ninth, for instance, with a slim one-run lead on which to lean, he watched Hornsby stalk up to the plate, with Bottomley and Bell behind him. Rogers Hornsby is always a grim figure for anyone to pitch to, and now he was solemn as well as savage.

Three days ago his mother died and Hornsby has gone on taking grief upon his shoulders along with all the weight of a world's series. The edge was off his game, although he made one fine play in the field. And still, a Hornsby, well or stricken, is not ever to be trifled with.

Pennock was careful in pitching to him and to all the others. Not once did he simply put his back and shoulders behind the ball and merely try to buzz it through. Indeed, Herbert was not even pitching at the plate. His aim was for the corners. Across these tiny targets he slipped dipping curves, laying the ball as precisely in the desired spot as some boy setting up pins in an alley.

Sherdel's Wicked Slow Ball.

Against him was Sherdel and he, too, belongs among the brainy ones of baseball even though he's had no dealings ith the foxes. "Slow I am" is Sherdel's motto. He throws a ball which makes the batter feel like a gross sinner waiting his turn at the foot of the judgment seat. There seems to be fury in the pitch but the ball dallies all the way along the journey. It starts for the given point and then mid-way lingers awhile to powder its nose. Among the long and mighty hitters Sherdel's slow ball is as tantalizing as a rude man wearing glasses. Something blights the power of the swing as the crippled pitch comes at last up to the plate. But is didn't always get there. Many offerings of Sherdel's spent so long a time upon the journey that they could not quite remember the address. He gave many passes and the first run of the Yankees scored in the opening inning was made without a vestige of a hit. But St. Louis had the lead in the beginning.

Douthit, the sceptic slugger, began the game for the Cardinals by banging a two-base hit into right. On an infield out he went to third, tarried there as Hornsby died, and scampered home on Bottomley's little lift over the head of Koenig. Quickly the Yankees tied it, for Sherdel passed three in the last half of the first inning and Combs came home while Gehrig was forcing a man at second. And in the sixth they scored the winning run, when Ruth slapped one to left, took second on Meusel's sacrifice and dashed home on Gehrig's drive to right. Ruth's hit

What the Experts Say

THE following paragraphs from reports written for the Post-Dispatch epitomize the opinion of baseball experts covering the world's series for this newspaper:

John J. McGraw — "The Cardinals made what I considered a mistake in judgment in the eighth inning when they had their one good chance to break through and take the lead. At that time they were one behind. Instead of stepping out boldly to win, they deliberately played for a tie and got neither. . . . Even if they had got away with it I would still think it wrong. Even if they had tied they would have had to start all over again to win."

Huggins—"So far as any deep strategic moves are concerned, there was none in the game. The whole story was written in the pitching box. There were no breaks except Pennock's wonderful control."

Hornsby—"We might have played a few extra innings if it had not been for Sherdel's wild streak in that first inning. After that, Sherdel pitched just as good a game as Pennock, though the Yanks did make a few more hits than we did. The trouble was that Sherry pitched too carefully in the first inning."

Alexander—"While there was not much hitting, it was a good fielding game. Koenig and Thevenow played a great game at shortstop, while Hornsby made a wonderful play on Combs' grounder in the seventh inning. Taken all in all, the teams looked evenly matched and as I have said previously, the series is going to be a hard-fought one."

Babe Ruth—"Aside from winning the ball game, the biggest thing to me was the fact that we beat a lefthander to win it. A lot of people maintained that the Yankees couldn't beat a lefthander. We did it."

COOLIDGE ORDERS JARDINE TO AID FLORIDA FARMERS

Secretary Told to Use Money He Can Spare From Agriculture Department Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—President Coolidge today informed Secretary Jardine that "it is my desire that you use every possible facility" of the Agriculture Department for the aid of farmers in the Florida storm stricken area.

The President expressed this wish in a letter in reply to a report by the Secretary, which said that approximately $300,000 was needed immediately by Florida farmers for the planting of winter crops.

Mr. Coolidge wrote that he was "confident that if Congress were in session, it would authorize immediate and substantial relief for this class of sufferers," and that it was his desire that "you use for this purpose funds of your appropriations as will not interfere with your current operations."

Harold Pogue, Former All-American Football Star of Illinois U., Among Injured.

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 2.—Five persons were injured and several severely shaken and bruised when a Decatur-to-Clinton Illinois Traction System car left the tracks three miles north of Maroa late this evening. A washout of the tracks caused the wreck.

Those injured were: Ruby Green of Clinton, head badly cut; Zula Stuart, Decatur, leg injured; Earl Emory, injured back; and Charles Maloney, knee injured. They were taken to a hospital in Clinton.

Harold Pogue of Decatur, the fifth person hurt, was brought to a hospital here.

Pogue was the famous all-American back of the University of Illinois football teams of about ten years ago.

PENNOCK ALLOWS ONLY THREE HITS; SHERDEL SIX

Cardinals Lose First of the World's Series—Strain of Inexperience Tells on Their Moundsman.

HIS OVER-CAUTION LETS IN ONE RUN

And That's the Margin of Victory — Pennock, Veteran, at All Times Master of Situation.

By J. ROY STOCKTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Miller Huggins' New York Yankees and Rogers Hornsby's Cardinals, two great baseball teams, great because of their slugging ability, met at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon, before a crowd of 61,658 persons, and slugging had nothing to do with the outcome of the contest, the first game of the 1926 series for the baseball championship of the world. The Yankees won, 2 to 1, not because they were better sluggers than the Cardinals, but because Herbert Pennock, a veteran lefthander, was a more experienced pitcher than William Sherdel, the Cardinal southpaw.

Each pitched brilliantly. Pennock's game was a thing to marvel over. He held the fence-busting Cardinals to three hits. He turned Hornsby's sluggers into impotent hitters who could not do more than knock grounders to the infield—or easy flies to the outfield, or strike out, when hits meant runs.

Worry Tells on Sherdel.

Sherdel also was a great pitcher. Only one run was driven over the plate by Yankee base hits. Each team scored one run in this way, but because Pennock was more experienced, or rather because Sherdel was less experienced, the Yankees scored another run and that was the run that gave the Yankees a victory.

Pennock had been through world's series before. It was nothing new for him to go out there on the hill and pitch his best. The strain and the worry that goes with baptism in a championship contest was not on his mind. He just went out there and pitched.

But Sherdel was pitching in his first world's series. He knew what depended on his good left arm. He knew that he was matched against a crafty pitcher, one of the best, and worry had its effect on the little St. Louis lefthander.

Sherdel Walks First Man.

In the very first inning he bent the task of putting the ball where the Yankees could not hit it. He did well. In fact, he did it too well. He pitched four wide ones to the first batter. Combs had no chance to hit. Two of the four balls might have been called strikes. They were close to the plate, but they were not over. Umpire Bill Dineen called them balls and Combs walked.

Sherdel put them were Koenig, the next man up, could not hit them, and Koenig was retired on an easy fly to Southworth

But when Ruth came up Sherdel again was overcareful and the big Slambambino of baseball drew four balls and walked.

Still another doughty slugger, Bob Meusel, had to be faced. And Sherdel continued to be overcareful. To be sure, at the moment it appeared that Sherdel's control was bad. He would not last long, the spectators concluded, if he were cracking and developing a wild streak so soon. When Meusel also walked, it began to look like a Roman holiday to the New York fans.

Begins to Put Them Over.

Then Sherdel realized that the time for overcaution was gone. There was no profit in base on balls now. A walk mean a run and two walks meant two runs. Right then and there Sherdel real-

AIR TIGHT PITCHING DULLED ENTHUSIASM

Pennock Deserved to Win, but a Few "Ifs" (Not Alibis) Help to Keep St. Louis Spirits Up.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Some 75 per cent more persons were at the Yankee Stadium today than will be crammed into Sportsman's Park next Tuesday, but it's a safe wager—as safe as any than can be made on this world's series—that the roar that will go up when the Cardinals trot on the field in St. Louis will make today's cheering seem like that at a young ladies' seminary.

There were yells today, it is true, and polite cheering for good plays on both sides, but nothing of the ear-splitting variety that one hears when St. Louis fandom really gets warmed up. St. Louis will supply the noise and the color for this series.

Credit the New York crowd, though, with a fine spirit of impartiality. They applauded Rogers Hornsby as lustily as they did Babe Ruth, and a sparkling play by the Cardinals never failed to get a generous hand. If the cheering was any criterion, the Cardinals had about as many partisans in the stands as the Yankees.

The crowd was impressive because of its bigness. Sixty-one thousand people gathered together are bound to make a good show, even though they may be, to the Western way of thinking, rather apathetic.

Just a Ball Game.

Perhaps the character of the game had something to do with lack of high-pitched enthusiasm. It was a close, well-played game, but aside from the superb pitching of Pennock, it was just a ball game. Air-tight pitching is a fine thing to watch, but it takes hitting to stir the blood. And there was not much of that. The Cardinals got but three hits off the tantalizing left-handed shoots of Pennock. After the first inning, when two of the hits were bunched for the lone St. Louis run, came an arid stretch of seven innings without anything that remotely resembled a Cardinal hit.

With one down in the ninth, Bottomley got his second hit and it looked for a moment as if the Cardinals were to stage one of their famous come-backs. But Pennock, cool in this pinch as he was throughout the game, fanned the redoubtable Bell, drew an easy roller from Hafey, and the game was over.

Nor was there much hitting from the reputedly murderous Yankees. Sherdel, though wild in the first inning, pitched a game that three times out of four would have won. The Yanks got but six hits, and none of them was better than a single. Sherdel's support was almost flawless. Bell was credited with an error, but it was excusable and did no damage. If it hadn't been for the wildness of the Cardinal pitcher in the first inning, the game might have been tied at the end of the ninth. Or if it hadn't been for those sequential dinky singles by the Yankees in the sixth, the game might have gone into extra innings.

But those "if's" are not set down by way of alibi. Pennock pitched a great game and deserved to win.

Cardinal rooters may take consolation from the fact that the team looked far from bad in defeat. Its fielding scintillated. Hornsby contributed a bright bit in the seventh when he went far to his left for Combs' hot grounder then shot the ball to Bottomley while still off his balance. The ball came to the first baseman on the bounce. By a miracle of stretching, Bottomley caught it with his foot teetering on the bag and the runner was out by a hair. The play brought a round of applause.

Neither of the Big Two—Ruth and Hornsby—performed up to expectations at the bat. The Babe, however, did better than his rival. He got on base three times, once by a base on balls, once by a fielder's choice and finally by a clean hit. The crowd got its best laugh out of a mishap to the Babe in the third inning. After a successful slide into second he arose in palpable distress. Somebody who looked like a trainer came sprinting from the Yankees' dugout. The crowd, fearing that the Babe had hurt his sore ankle, was tense. Soon appeared, from the motions made by Ruth's rescuer, that he had torn his pants.

Not Hornsby's Day.

Hornsby came up the first time with one out, and Douthit, who had opened the game for the Cards with a slashing double, camped on third. The Red Birds' leader was warmly applauded. A cut at the ball, and it rolled harmlessly to the pitcher. Hornsby was thrown out at first while Douthit was held at third. With a hit over shortstop Sunny Jim Bottomley succeeded where his Chief had failed. Hornsby had three more chances but failed each time to get the ball safe. It was Pennock's, not Hornsby's, day.

Prophets who had foreseen shaky play at short, due to the inexperience of Thevenow of the Cards and Koenig of the Yankees, were confounded by the brilliant performances of both. And Hafey, another world's series novitiate, ranged far and wide, and without a flaw, in left field. Add the two-base hit by Douthit, the only extra base hit of the game, and it is seen that the youngsters are in need of no apologist.

The Cards have not lost the series—not by a long shot. Pennock was simply too good for them today. Tomorrow will be another day and next Tuesday, with some real rooting ringing in their ears, will be still another.

Babe Ruth Leads Off With Single in the Sixth Inning and Then Scores the Winning Run.

ized that he had to put the balls nearer the plate.

Sherdel put them across for Gehrig and Gehirg sent a grounder to Thevenow. Ordinarily this would have been a double play. Tommy did his part. He made a clean stop and flipped the ball to Hornsby, but as luck would have it Hornsby's hurried toss to first was a bit wide. Bottomley had to leave the bag for the ball and Gehrig was safe. The failure to complete the double play gave the Yankees a run, for Coombs had raced home.

This was only one run, but that was the margin by which the Yankees won, and so it can be said that Sherdel's overcaution gave the Yankees the victory.

Douthit Starts With Double.

It did not appear to be costly at the time. It merely tied the score, and the ease with which the Cardinals had counted their tally in the first half of the inning indicated that the Yankees and Pennock were in for a warm afternoon.

Taylor Douthit started the game with a double to right. The spectators roared. It made no difference who pitched, those Red Birds certainly could club the ball. Southworth grounded out, advancing Douthit to third. Hornsby hit straight to Pennock and Douthit was held on third. Bottomley pumped an infield single to Koenig, a looping liner that Koenig caught on the first bounce in deep short. This scored Douthit. Two hits and one run in the first inning. The Cardinals were hitting and it looked like a great day for National League.

But as inning after inning wore along, the Cardinals and the spectators began to realize that perhaps that overcaution of Sherdel's, which for a time appeared to be a wild streak, might prove the deciding factor in the game.

Pennock Assumes Mastery.

After that first inning Pennock was a master. The Cardinals had never faced him before and they could not solve his curves. His control was perfect. He did allow three passes, but he was not wild at any time, and the Cardinals could not hit him.

After those two hits in the first inning only four Cardinals reached base and only one of the four reached base by virtue of a safe hit. After Bottomley singled in that first inning, driving Douthit over the plate with a run, Pennock turned back seven batters before another Cardinal reached base. Then with two down in the fourth, Bell drew a pass. But Hafey could not press the advantage and grounded to Koenig to end the inning.

Then nine more Cardinals went to bat, only to be retired as fast as they went up. Starting the eighth, O'Farrell drew a pass, but there were no hits in the Cardinals' bats. Thevenow sacrificed and Hornsby called on pinch hitter Flowers. But the pinch hitter could do no more than the regulars had done and Flowers hit straight to Pennock. O'Farrell was run down on the grounder and Flowers reached second on the play, but Pennock was too good and after walking Douthit he retired pinch hitter Holm on an easy fly to Combs.

Cards' Last Chance Gone.

That was the last chance. True, after one was out in the ninth Bottomley singled to right, but it merely raised hopes in vain. Bell was too eager to kill the ball, and when the crafty Pennock slipped a half-speed curve over the plate, Bell swung with all his might—and missed.

Hafey then grounded out and the game was over.

After that first inning Sherdel turned back the Yankees without much difficulty until the sixth. Then he gave Babe Ruth a slow ball. The Bambino has seen so many slow balls that he knows what to do with them now. He knows that it is hard to knock a slow ball out of the park. But he knows also that a perfectly timed swing will turn many a slow ball into a safety. Babe timed this slow ball and the result was a whistling grounder betwen Bell and Thevenow.

Up came another slugger. Meusel is always dangerous. But the Yankees, for the first time in the history of the New York American league club, are playing the game according to Hoyle, and Meusel forgot slugging and laid down his life—his batting life—to sacrifice Ruth to second.

Ruth Scores Winning Run.

It was the right thing to do, for Gehrig promptly slapped a single to right and Ruth lumbered over the plate and the Yankees were one run ahead.

After taking the lead the Yankees reverted to their carefree methods and no more runs resulted in the inning. Lazerri singled to left and Gehrig foolishly raced for third. Hafey, with one of the best throwing arms in baseball, made a perfect throw to third and Gehrig was out. Dugan reached first when Bell fumbled his grounder, Lazerri sliding into third, but Severeid grounded to Thevenow and the inning was over.

That was the extent of the Yankee scoring punch. That was the only tally that they drove over the plate, but it was enough, with Pennock pitching so brilliantly, because of that one run that Sherdel's overcaution let in in the first inning.

CARD FANS JAM STREETS GETTING GAME BY RADIO

world's series crowds here will be like could be had from a glance down Olive street. Fans were packed so close together in patches that it was impossible to tell where one Cardinal fan began and another left off. They overflowed from sidewalks into the street and glowered at patient motormen and automobile drivers who tried to get past. They soon picked up the roar of the thousands in New York which sometimes drowned the announcer's voice, and lived from one roar to the next.

Radio Roar Means a Hit.

In a loud speaker yesterday a roar meant a hit. Once, in the eighth inning with Flowers on second, Douthit on first and two out, and Holm, a pinch hitter, up with a hit needed to tie the score, a crowd at Sixth and Pine went wild. They had heard a roar. But it was only a motorbus on Broadway. Holm, it developed after an agonizing wait, had flied out to Combs. Usually street noises interfered at the most crucial moments—and then McNamee would say, soothingly, "It's a tight little ball game, boys, a tight little ball game."

There were 11 stations downtown which had crowds ranging from 50 to 2000. The largest was in front of the Federal Building, and they were listening to an oral megaphone relaying a radio report. Seventh and Olive, Sixth and Olive, Sixth and Pine, Locust near Sixth, Seventh and St. Charles, were the popular places.

A crowd on Olive street in the 1100 block, where there was an unusually good station, almost closed the street. It was here, it may be recorded, where the dyed-in-the-wool fans, the don't-go-home-till-the-last-man-is-out Cardinal rooters took their stand. It began to rain during the first part of the eighth inning, in St. Louis, but the rooters cheered on.

Great Game to Listen To.

It was a great ball game, judging from the sound of it.

Listen! First inning. Cardinals at bat——

"Herb is looking the batter over, you know," says McNamee. "The batter has his bat on his shoulder, just as quietly looking Herbie over, too, timing the swing. There she comes—he shot the next one to right field—a hit—a two-base hit—Babe Ruth chased it around for a moment. Douthit has the first hit of the world's series. He got a great hand."

"Yay! Yay—wheee!" yelled the St. Louis fans, "attaboy, Douthit, attaboy! Come on now, Southworth, give us another—two-bagger. Yeh, he gotta two-bagger. Babe Ruth—naw, he never caught it. He chased it."

All eyes on the loud speaker and ears alert. Now if that blankety-blanked street car will slow down.

Southworth Sacrifices.

"Southworth is batting," said the announcer, "Southworth is a left-handed batter. He stands quite far from the plate. One, low. Southworth watched it go by. He swung under the next one, a knee-high fly, way back of first base. A short drive down to second, a nice sacrifice hit for an out, placing Douthit on third."

"Hornsby!"

"Come on, Rog. Bust it on the nose."

"Hornsby, you know, stands very far away from the plate," comes the voice from the horn. "On the next pitch he grounds to the pitcher, and the pitcher gets it across for the putout, holding Douthit on third. There are no runs, there being two men gone, a man on third, and Bottomley, the young first baseman of the Cardinal team, is at bat."

"We'll score. We'll score. Jim always could hit Pennock!"

"Shut up. What is he saying?"

"A curved ball now comes over. . . . it doesn't break quite quick enough. One ball, no strikes, two men down and a man on third. That is the picture as Herb's arm goes up for the pitch.

First Run of the Series.

"There it is now! A HIT! A single . . . down to shortstop. Brings in a run. The first run of the game—the first run of the series——"

First blood for the Cards.

A Negro says, "Hot dawg! There goes yer old ball game." A stoutish man edges in closer to the loud speaker. He is chewing the eraser of his pencil. The roar of the faraway crowd dies down. An answering roar on Olive street takes up the celebration. But it quickly subsides. The game is on again.

But when the Yanks score—gloom, silence. It happens in their half of the first:

McNamee's voice has a Yankee twang. "Doggone him," says a man in overalls. "Listen at him" . . . McNamee lays it on unctuously:

Thee On, One Down.

"Three on, one down," says the heavy, cheerful voice. "Combs is on third. Ruth is on second, and Meusel on first, with Gehrig at bat. I saw Gehrig break up that game out in Cleveland with three two-baggers and a home run——."

Cheering news for the Cardinal fans, what?

"Yeh, we know all about that," a fan growled at the impassive horn. "It ain't what he done. It's what he's gonna do."

The voice continues:

"One ball—almost a wild pitch. Sherdel seems pretty wild. Three men on by virtue of passes. Combs is clapping his hands and jumping about over there on the third base line—wait . . . a drive towards short. . . . Safe on first . . . . one gone, a man in and the batter safe on first. . ."

Score Tied; Tighten up, Sherry.

The score is tied.

"My God, Sherry, tighten up," a fan howled, just as if he were in the bleachers at Sportsman's Park.

In the last half of the third:

"A little conference is being held by the pitcher and a few others of the St. Louis team owing to the fact that Babe Ruth, possibly having grown a bit in the last few days, has split a part of his accoutrements which he needs very much. . . . Babe is the color of a red brick house . . . they are sewing him up . . . Trousers or no trousers, we must have our world's series game, you know."

Well, that was something. Babe had torn his uniform. It was not quite as if he had been spiked or put out for hitting an umprire, but the St. Louis radio crowds cheered.

And Then the Fatal Sixth.

Then came the fatal sixth:

"Ruth up, last half of the sixth, score one and one, couple of ball teams playing the first games of the world's series, Yanks and Cards there you are. Babe bats them left-handed. . . . (That short, cryptic sentence was ominous) . . . He got a nice single between short and third. Bob Meusel is up. (Oh, murderer's row!) . . . A nice sacrifice by Meusel puts Babe Ruth on second base. Meusel is down. Gehrig is up. . . . One gone, one in, one on (very quickly). . . Gehrig batting, and he hit the first ball to right field and Ruth comes in with a run from second base."

When the St. Louis hopes sank in the rainy afternoon:

Ninth inning:

Pennock takes his time and wipes his face off with his shirt-sleeve and puts the dirt properly in the box. There it is, and a ball a little too high, inside, which makes two and two. This is a ball game. There is the next one! He struck him out.

"Bell and Hafey Strike Out.

"Two down. Lester Bell struck out, and now we have two gone and Bottomley on first and Hafey batting. One ball on Hafey. Everybody is working with extreme care and no fast movements. The next is a short grounder. . . . the last putout of the game."

And there was almost a chuckle in the loud speaker.

"Well, we'll get 'em tomorrow," agreed the fans.

HERB PENNOCK'S ELUSIVE CURVES UPSET CARDINALS

was useful and important, but it was not the chief contribution which he made to the game.

Ruth Has an Accident.

The Babe provided the one moment of joy in which the partisans of both sides could share. It was in the third inning that he went from first to second in obvious safety on an infield out only to walk away from the bag "immediately upon arriving. An umpirical hand was held aloft to indicate that something of moment had occurred.

In the stands excitement buzzed. No one could possibly comprehend why Ruth should be out. Possibly he had said something to the umpire as he passed. And as it turned out so he had. His need was for a needle. The trousers of the Babe had ripped well down upon the lower part of his back as he ran to second. And there stood the Sultan of Swat, the Maharajah of Maul, the Gaekwar of Garrote, humbly in the middle of the diamond and waited for a tailor.

His shame was greater than if he had fanned with the bases full. Ruth's face blazed with mortification. After all, never before had he ripped the seat out of his trousers in the presence of 61,000 people. In actuality he was going through a type dream well known to Freudians, in which the sleeper imagines that he walks naked in the middle of a multitude.

But for the misfortune concerning the emperor's clothes, this would have been a game without much color. A pitchers' battle is only a treat of esthetics. All who went away remarked dutifully, "that was certainly a well played game." But they used the same tone in which one would speak of a symphony.

There was practically no youth of spirit in this New York crowd. They did like the game and they made some noise, but never by the widest stretch of the imagination could it be said that the thousands were at all irrational about the pastime. In proof of this, the fact may be cited that not once was any umpire booed even for a moment.

The players themselves respected the new tradition of gentility which, for better or worse, has come to grip all sport in its polite and velvet grasp. The age of "excuse my glove" has arrived in American athletes. Once Dugan growled a little at a called strike, but subsided quickly when he sensed that all about were people wholly disapproving of this breach of manners.

Apparently, Gentleman Gene punched harder than anybody realized, for he has knocked the school of sock completely out of time. There was no crude and gory show of power in the ball game. Dauthit's two-bagger was the longest hit and the temper of the proceedings may be gauged by the fact that mighty Babe was sent up in the fourth inning with orders to sacrifice Koenig down to second. He tried and failed.

This may have been good strategy in a pitcher's battle, but there is room for a slight suspicion that Sherdel, in spite of his seeming efficiency, was wabbling throughout and one bold thrust might have ended him. He did retire in the eighth to make room for a pinch hitter, and Haines finished the game.

Rookies Behave Well.

Throughout the game the first-year men of the Yankees conducted themselves with great distinction. Gehrig drove home the winning run and both Koenig and Lazzeri hit safely and fielded steadily. The second inning then was of great moral importance from a Yankee standpoint. It was in this round that Koenig met his test and weathered it. There has been talk ever since it became apparent that the Yankees were likely to win the pennant that Huggins had a team too nervous to meet the fierce test of the world's series. And always during this sort of conversation suspicious glances have been cast at Mark Koenig who, only a year ago, was stationed away out west at shortfield in St. Paul. There have been numerous occasions during the campaign in which the young man wabbled.

Today was not among them. The acid test of opportunity for good or evil came to Koenig in the second inning and he was neither scared nor scarred. Hafey, first man up in this round, shot a grounder far to Koenig's right. A fumble would have been excusable on such a play, but Mark went down after the shot and came up bringing the ball with him. Even then he had a long and difficult throw to make to first when he was wholly out of position. He pegged across the diamond in time

Pennock's Weak Inning.

It was in this same round that Pennock gave his only indication of cracking. He seemed in greater danger then than in the opening inning, when St. Louis scored against him. For a few minutes his control left him and a corner shooter is in a bad way when his aim goes awry however slightly.

Junior Traffic Club Changes Date.

In order not to conflict with the Veiled Prophet's annual visit, the Junior Traffic Club of St. Louis has changed the date of its next meeting from Tuesday evening to Oct. 12. The meeting will be held in Study Room No. 3 of the Public Library, Fourteenth and Olive streets.

WHISTLES AND BELLS TO GREET CARDINALS

Ballplayers to Parade Through City on Their Arrival Here at 3:30 P. M. Tomorrow.

Whistles, first along the Levee, then throughout the city, will blow, bells will ring, and joyful noise-making of every sort will be carried on, when the Cardinals return to St. Louis tomorrow afternoon.

The special train on the Pennsylvania railroad, carrying the officials and players of the pennant-winning team, will arrive at Washington avenue station, on the Eads Bridge structure, at 3:30 p. m. Aircraft from Scott Field will fly over the special train for the last 100 miles of the journey, from Effingham, Ill., and will move over the city during the parade in the Cardinals' honor.

A committee, composed largely of city officials and business executives, will meet the guests at the train, and will escort them down the steps to the Levee. There, directly under the Eads Bridge, will be parked 25 automobiles, with a special seat indicated for each player, and with the players' names, for public information, posted on pennants at their sides. Three players will ride in each car, and there will be seats for the officials, the players' wives and the batboys.

Automobile Gift to Hornsby.

Before the parade starts, the presentation of a sedan to Rogers Hornsby, as the gift of St. Louis fans, will take place. The committee in charge hopes to have, at that time or later, a gift for every member of the Cardinals, and contributions for that purpose are being received by Harold M. Bixby, at the State National Bank.

The blowing of whistles will notify the downtown district of the starting of the parade, which will move up Washington avenue to Fourth street, south on Fourth to Chestnut street, west on Chestnut to Twelfth boulevard, north on Twelfth to Locust street, and west on Locust to Jefferson avenue, where it will disband.

Mounted and motor police and two bands will accompany the parade. The automobiles in which the Cardinals and the committee will ride are lent by the W. H. Owen Co.

Crowds Get News of Game.

As a preparation for the welcome to the Cardinals 120 members of the Musicians' Union paraded downtown yesterday noon, playing "Bye Bye Blackbird," to which some of the radio-waiting fans sang "Bye Bye Yankees," and other airs.

An electric miniature playing field, with every play diagrammed, was exhibited in the Odeon Theater yesterday at $1 admission. A detailed report of the game was shown at Liberty Music Hall.

At Fourth and Market streets, Nicky Castello, 12-year-old newsboy, drew a bigger crowd than a radio broadcasting station a block away. Nicky received the radio bulletins through earpieces of an outdoor radio set he had rigged up, and megaphoned them to the crowd.

Washington avenue wholesale houses, in published advertisements, are appealing to holders of world's series tickets to sell them at box-ofice prices to the wholesalers, for distribution at the same prices to out-of-town merchants. Twenty-six houses, from Fourth street to Eighteenth street, have arranged to handle tickets in manner for the accommoda the city's business visitors.

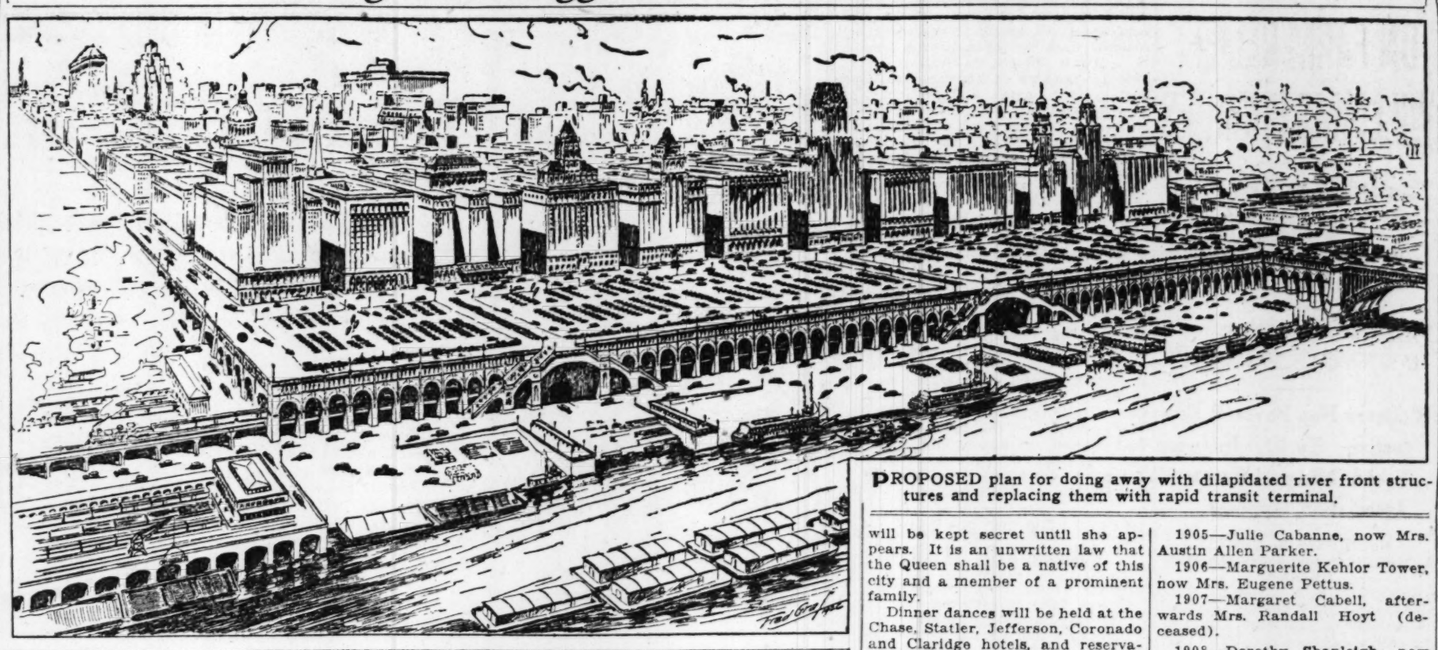
Engineers' Suggestion for River Front Plaza



PROPOSED plan for doing away with dilapidated river front structures and replacing them with rapid transit terminal.

PES TO FINISH FIRST SUBWAY IN SIX YEARS

lermen's Committee Suggests Immediate Action to Put Downtown Lines Underground.

ANTIME FAVORS EEDING STREET CARS

ummarizes Three - Step System, Reckons Cost in Detail and Method of Financing It.

The complete plan of the special mittee of the Board of Alderfor rapid transit in St. Louis disclosed yesterday in the final ter of its report which it has making public piecemeal for week.

St. Louis, the committee finds, ady for subways, can afford , and it proposes the immediundertaking copstruction of the one-third of a system which it nds shall ultimately be cityand will cost, it estimates, 0,000,000.

It is proposed, first to place t cars underground in the wntown district. The advantages ies are obvious—the clearing eets for automobile and pedesl traffic, the increasing of speed rs, now moving at a snail-like through the business district sh hours, and the increasing of y for all traffic.

Downtown Subway Route.

proposes to put the street cars ive subway tunnels under the wing streets:

Washington avenue and Olive Market streets between Nineenth street and the river.

Broadway between Cass and outeau avenues.

Ninth street, between Cass avenue and Hickory street.

In addition, it suggests a subway street cars in Grand boulevard, ween Market and North Market eets, a distance of about 1¼ es, to relieve the rush-hour deat Grand boulevard and Olive eet.

The cost of this initial step is ed at $46,000,000. The committee's engineer, C. E. Smith, estites that street car fares would increased no more than one-half t, if car riders were made to r the full expense.

Charging Cost to Benefited Area.

However, the committee suggests benefited property should be e to bear three-fourths the cost onstruction. This is the modway of financing subways, the mittee declares, and if this is e, it forecasts that street car e will not be increased at all.

This part of the project involves creation of a terminal along the er front, a somewhat pretentious ject, the roof of the Terminal be on a level with the Eads dge approach and to furnish a e parkway, which could be used the storage of a large number automobiles.

inging rapid traffic east of th street, the committee beve, would be the stroke, which e than any other single stratwould revive the decadent along the river and tend to ace old, dilapidated buildings modern structures. In other ds, the committee feels, instead moving westward past Twelfth levard, business would expand ward to the river.

Saving Time by Subways.

The committee thinks that the ing in time alone would justify expenditure for subways. On Page line, for example, it is estated that should that line move erground downtown, 30 minin its round trip would be d.

The second step would be the sion of these five subways to city, when the typical subway m would be adopted with id-transit trains composed of of a radically different type surface cars.

It suggests that the first and nd steps should be accomhed within five or six years, second step costing $30,000,000. e extensions would total 15 s and would be made to the owing points—Taylor and Florant; Taylor and Natural Bridge; er and Delmar; Chouteau and enteenth, Grand and Lafayette d Gravois and California. The sion of the subways as elevated roads would cost possibly what subways would cost for ressed tracks, but the committee recommends subways.

Supplementary for Service.

At such time as these subways extended to the points named, face street cars would be used to deliver passengers to the way terminals, and to busses uld be delegated the task of ging passengers to stations on subways, between the west minals and the downtown.

Ultimate extension is to the city , an additional 20 miles of truction. This would cost t $52,000,000, and the comee believes it will be required at some distant future time.

The committee's general conions follow:

The St. Louis metropolitan district will have a population of at least 1,500,000 in 1950." In this connection it is noted that New York began rapid transit when it reached 1,000,000 and Chicago likewise. Boston began with 500,000 and Philadelphia not until it reached 1,500,000.

"The taxes in St. Louis are lower than in any comparable city and subways could be undertaken with no more than two cents a day per capita cost added to the present 12-cent cost.

"Motorbusses will not supersede, but will supplement street cars.

"Motorbus competition with street railways is wasteful because it provides duplication of service.

"Motorbuses cannot perform mass transportation.

Speeding Up Surface Cars.

"Speed of street cars may be increased pending the building of subways, by separating them from other traffic.

"Street cars should be rerouted through the primary districts at once. This will remove street cars from 4.3 miles of streets and will save $150,000 a year, besides increasing the speed of their movement about 25 per cent. Locust, Pine and Seventh streets would be freed of car tracks.

"A new crosstown line should be built past Union Station in Eighteenth street from McKinley bridge to Lemp avenue and Broadway. The track changes involved would cost $3,000,000.

"Other crosstown and radial lines should be extended under a plan requiring 22.3 miles of rerouting, 95.5 miles of single track extensions and the removal of 69.8 miles of existing track.

"The cost of this re-routing if spread over 10 years would be $275,000 a year.

Method of Financing.

"The rapid transit facilities should be financed as follows:

"Three-quarters the cost of the fived improvements to be charged as benefit assessments upon property that will enjoy benefits;

"One-quarter to be paid by public utility bonds of the city, the sinking fund and interest charges to be paid out of general city funds.

"The tracks, cars, electrical and other equipment to be provided by the operating company and added to its property value.

"The city should insure future rerouting, extensions and rapid transit by granting a franchise similar to the proposed service-at-cost franchise.

"The City Counselor should be requested to investigate and advise the character and extent of additional enabling legislation the city may require to adopt the plan of procedure and financing recommended in this report.

"A rapid transit committee of public-spirited citizens should be appointed to co-operate with the special aldermanic Committee on Rapid Transit and other city officials in securing the passage at the 1927 session of the Missouri Legislature of whatever legislation the city needs, and to get the necessary public sentiment behind a movement for the rapid transit plan recommended in this report."

Opposes City-Wide Subway Now.

The committee discards the suggestion that one city-wide subway be first constructed, such as a subway running through to University City. It points out that this would give rapid transit to a narrow strip and would be unfair to other sections. Its plan, it believes, extends rapid transit advantages equally throughout the city with each successive step.

The report is the result of two years of study. The committee is composed of Aldermen Samuel L. Wimer, chairman; Chauncey J. Krueger, Alfred Bergman, Edward Hirth, William F. Otto, William J. Studt and Louis A. Lange. President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service is an ex-officio member. The committee's report was prepared by City Engineer Smith and members of his engineering organization.

County Farmer Ended Life.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned yesterday in the case of Henry Albers, 52 years old, whose body was found hanging from a tree on his farm near Black Jack, St. Louis County, Friday afternoon, by his brother, John. Albers, who is survived by his widow and four children, had been missing since Wednesday, the body being found a quarter of a mile from the farm house.

VEILED PROPHET TO PAY HIS FORTY-SEVENTH VISIT TO ST. LOUIS THIS WEEK

Comic Strip Parade Scheduled for Tuesday Night and the Ball and Crowning of Queen Wednesday

"Thirty-eight years since the last pennant," the Veiled Prophet growled. "Well, what of it? It's 49 years that I've been coming to this town—that is, it was that long ago that I began coming. I missed two years, but it took a World War to keep me away then.

"What is this comic strip business, anyhow?" the Prophet continued, reverting to the theme of the parade to be given in his honor Tuesday evening, over the 10-mile route bounded by Fourth street, Vandeventer avenue, Lucas avenue and Market street.

"I'm used to seeing Shakspeare, and Grimm's Fairy Tales, and classic myths, on the floats," the Prophet said. "I don't know that I ever met these Mutt and Jeff people and the rest of them. They weren't here when I began coming to St. Louis back in the '70s. People tell me to look in the papers for them, but I haven't caught up on my baseball reading yet. Oh, well, I guess it's all right if the children like them. And I hear they do."

Ball on Wednesday Night.

Tuesday night's parade, with "Cartoons and Comics" as the theme, will be followed Wednesday night by the Prophet's ball, in the Coliseum. The date of the ball is fixed, regardless of weather conditions. The parade, in case of bad weather Tuesday night, will be postponed until Thursday night. There has seldom been necessity for such a postponement, for fair weather usually previals on the first Tuesday night of October. But last year, because of cold and threatening weather rather than actual rain, the postponement from Tuesday until Thursday night was made.

Last year, also, a midafternoon downtown explosion blocked Olive street and made it necessary to change the parade route. This year's parade will move over the exact route which was laid out for last year, and on the same time schedule, from 7:15 to 10:30 p. m.

List of Floats.

The float themes, as previously announced, will be:

No. 1. The Veiled Prophet.
No. 2. Title, "Cartoons and Comics."
No. 3. Mutt and Jeff.
No. 4. Gasoline Alley.
No. 5. Moon Mullins.
No. 6. The Old Home Town.
No. 7. Barney Google.
No. 8. Winnie Winkle.
No. 9. Bringing Up Father.
No. 10. Krazy Kat.
No. 11. The Toonerville Trolley.
No. 12. Smitty.
No. 13. Andy Gump.
No. 14. Home Sweet Home.
No. 15. The Captain and the Kids.
No. 16. Joe and Asbestos.
No. 17. Aunt Eppie Hogg.
No. 18. Jerry on the Job.
No. 19. Tillie the Toiler.
No. 20. Little Nemo.

The same funny folks who appear on the floats—all the actors, as is well known, are men—will appear at the ball Wednesday night as the "Krewe of the Veiled Prophet." Their names appear in the ornate program of the ball, which will be given to every guest.

Arrangements for the Ball.

The ball is the forty-seventh, the event having been omitted in the war years, 1917 and 1918. The Coliseum doors will open at 8 p. m. for the arena guests, and 7 o'clock for the gallery entrance. A concert of five numbers, by an orchestra conducted by Gene Rodemich, will introduce the program. The arrival of the Court of Love and Beauty, of former queens, ladies of honor and maids of honor, will then be heralded. Next, the Krewe of comic characters will appear.

Miss Maud Miller Streett, reigning Queen, who was crowned at the 1925 ball, will make a formal entrance and will take her place in the Court of Honor, which this year is the center of the arena. The royal ballet, performed by Mme. Centella and ensemble, will ensue.

As in all the years when queens have been chosen by the Veiled Prophet, the name of the Queen will be kept secret until she appears. It is an unwritten law that the Queen shall be a native of this city and a member of a prominent family.

Dinner dances will be held at the Chase, Statler, Jefferson, Coronado and Claridge hotels, and reservations at those hotels number about 2000, their total dining room capacity being 3400. At the Buckingham, where the New York Yankees will be guests, the ballroom will not be in use. The Melbourne Hotel management also will subordinate the Prophet's festivities to the comfort of its world's series guests and will not open its ballroom.

The Royal Succession.

The Queens of past years, beginning with 1894, when the present formal recognition of a Queen was instituted, were:

1894—Hester Bates Laughlin, afterwards Mme. Carlo Pfister (deceased).
1895—Bessie Kingsland, now Mrs. Hebrand Harvey.
1896—Marie Louise McCreery, now Mrs. Oscar Vieths.
1897—Jane Dorothy Fordyce, now Mrs. David S. Stanley.

RAIN CAUSES DAMAGE ON WEST END STREETS

Many Autos Stalled by Short Circuits—East Side Suffers Also.

A drenching rain which short-circuited automobile ignition systems, floated away whole sections of wood paving blocks from the streets and gathered in small lakes in the low places, tied up scores of automobiles yesterday afternoon, particularly in the West End.

Coming from the west, the storm struck the city with a squall of high wind and driving rain which lasted for almost an hour. After an interruption, the storm began again, but was somewhat less violent. From 4 to 7 p. m. the Weather Bureau recorded a fall of 1.24 inches of rain.

The wood block paving on De Ballviere avenue, which has been floated up a half dozen times since it was laid, was dislodged again and when the water was carried off by the sewers it left piles of the paving in the gutters and the streets, making the thoroughfare almost impassable. At De Ballviere and Lindell a section of paving the width of the street was lifted out, and hundreds of blocks were carried down Lindell to Union by the water.

Water Above Running Boards.

At Vernon avenue and Union boulevard the water rose until it was over the running board of automobiles and cars which passed through it threw out spray like motorboats under way.

Pershing avenue was also deep in water and floating wood blocks were picked up on the fenders of street cars or deposited on the running boards of parked automobiles. Kingshighway boulevard between Lindell and Delmar was almost impassable and the cutoff at Union and Lindell was deep in water.

At all the flooded points automobiles were stalled by over-ambitious drivers who were going too fast when they hit the pools and flooded their ignition systems and for several hours after the storm emergency service companies did a rushing business starting refractory engines.

Many Towns Without Lights.

On the East Side the storm damaged the transmission lines of the Illinois Light & Power Corporation, taking down poles and wires as far south as Duquoin and leaving many Southern Illinois towns between that point and Granite City without light or power for the evening.

At Granite City the lightning struck the Seventeenth street substation of the light corporation, burning out an oil switch and cutting off the power on the north side of the town. Service was resumed after an interruption of two hours and a half.

FRENCH CAUSE ROW AT VETERANS' PARLEY

Geneva Dispute Based on International Body's Attitude Toward Fidac.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—So violent was the dissension among various French associations represented at today's session of the International Association of War Wounded and Ex-service Men, that the conference had to be suspended temporarily to permit the French delegates to patch up their internal differences.

The controversy was based on what attitude the new organization should bear to the Inter-Allied Veterans' Association (F. I. D. A. C.) The new association, which includes Germans, has ben looked upon as somewhat of a rival to the Inter-Allied Veterans' Association, which has Americans in its ranks.

Some of the French speakers complained that the rules of the new organization were too rigid to insure adhesion of national bodies still outside it, and that the conference was ignoring the convention which F. I. D. A. C. is planning at Luxemburg. Other speakers took an opposite view.

Eventually, an agreement was reached by the French delegates, and later ratified by the conference, whereby the executive committee will communicate with the president of F. I. D. A. C. in an endeavor to obtain co-operation by the two organizations in order to further the ideals common to them.

HINDENBURG'S 79TH BIRTHDAY

German President Loaded With Flowers and Congratulations.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—President von Hindenburg today celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday at his hunting lodge near Berlin, with the members of his immediate family.

Although the President was absent from the executive palace, thousands of persons gathered at the gates to see the callers, including members of the diplomatic corps leaving cards of congratulation. The palace was swamped with telegrams, letters and flowers. The German Foreign Missions flew their national colors in honor of the occasion.

Glenn's Lancaster, 12,000 miles guarantee on workmanship and material, backed by Glenn's 26 years' vulcanizing experience in city, leaves you nothing to chance.

5 REASONS WHY GLENN'S LANCASTER AVERAGES 20,000 MILES:

1—Tread extra thick. Tough wearing, rarely cuts or skids.

2—Breaker strip, strong, thick, insures balanced distribution of road shocks and prevents tread separation.

3—Sidewalls rigid, giving added protection against curb and rut wear.

4—Cord strictly high grade, each ply imbedded in pure friction gum, producing long wear and durability.

HAWES 'FLOPPED' ON FARM RELIEF, WILLIAMS CHARGES

"Impossible to Tell Where He Stands," Says Senator in Address in Farm District at Boonville.

FAILS TO JUSTIFY OWN VOTE, HOWEVER

Williams Has Favored Protective Tariff Increase Which Missouri Farmers' Association Opposes.

By CURTIS A. BEITS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Oct. 2.—Senator George H. Williams, speaking on agricultural problems tonight in Boonville, the center of a rich farming territory, attacked the record of his Democratic opponent for the United States Senate, Harry B. Hawes, and outlined his own position, which is that a protectivetariff on those farm products of which there is an exportable surplus will solve the problem of the farmer.

Hawes' position has been that increased tariff rates only will add to the difficulty, and that the solution lies in decreasing the tariff on the articles the farmer buys and in providing assistance to the farmer in co-operative marketing.

Senator Williams asserted that Hawes was not interested in the welfare of the farmer until he began seeking votes as a candidate for Senator, and that as a Congressman from a St. Louis district, with no farmer constituents, he voted against measures advocated by farmers.

Recites Hawes' Record.

"What is the position of Mr. Hawes on this problem of agriculture?" the Senator said. "In the Sixty-seventh Congress when America was being swamped with foreign products that were being dumped into this country in competition with our farm products and there was no tariff on farm products to protect the farmer and an emergency bill was up for a vote, he voted against it.

"When the Farm Loan Banks could not sell their securities on which to raise money to provide the farmers with the credit they needed so badly and were demanding, and a bill was up to permit the banks to issue their bonds at 5½ per cent instead of 5 per cent, he voted against it.

"When we had millions of men out of employment after the World War and a bill was up to limit immigration so as to improve business conditions and furnish employment first to our own people, he voted against it.

Switched on Haugen Bill.

"When the farm relief measure, known as the McNary-Haugen bill, came on for a vote in 1924, a bill containing provisions for an equalization fee based on the protective tariff, he voted against it.

"When the bill under the same authorship (the Haugen bill) and containing the same provisions for an equalization fee based on a protective tariff, came up in the House in 1926, he voted for it.

"Does the Democratic platform on Agriculture adopted at Jefferson City contain one word in favor of that bill or the principle of it? It does not. When Mr. Hawes voted against the bill he was the representative of the Eleventh Congressional district in St. Louis. When he voted for it, he was asking the farmers for their votes. His legislative record on this subject does not show that he has acted from principle or that he has been consistent, but it does show that he is moved only by political expediency.

"Flopped on Court and Redief."

"Mr. Hawes' record shows he flopped on the World Court and I have shown you tonight that he has flopped on farm relief.

"If Mr. Hawes stands on the platform at Jefferson City on Sept. 14, 1926, then in the light of his record it is impossible to tell where he stands on this great problem of farm relief."

The effect of the Senator's speech on the farmers of Missouri is impossible of ascertainment this early in the campaign, but it was delivered in the face of the fact that the solution of the problem solely by a tariff on farm products has not appealed to the 60,000 farmers, who are behind the program of the Missouri Farmers' Association, of which they are members, and which has made a vigorous fight before Congress for the bill proposing methods of co-operative marketing.

Tell About Roll Call Check.

The Senator even failed to say anything in justification of his vote for the farmers' bill in the last Congress, a vote cast after he had kept a careful record of the roll call in the Senate, and cast after the bill had been defeated decisively. He did, however, offer an explanation of his action in keeping the roll call. It was this:

"It will be remembered that I am the legislative assistant of Senator Curtis, the majority leader in the Senate. Holding that position it was my business to know what the vote was likely to be before it was cast. We thought the vote might be a tie and that the deciding vote would be cast by the Vice-President. I knew the Vice President would not vote for the bill if the cotton subsidy remained in it and I moved to strike it out because it was a pure subsidy with which to secure the votes of certain Southern Senators, including Senator Caraway, of Arkansas.

Await Hirth's Position.

Many farmers throughout this section of Missouri, and probably in other sections, seem disposed to wait until William Hirth of Columbia, the head of their association, takes a stand between Williams and Hawes, before committing themselves finally on the Senatorship.

In the primary Hirth indorsed Hawes for the Democratic nomination and Williams for the Republican nomination. What he will do as between them in the election will not be known publicly until about two weeks before the election, when, it is expected, he will have an analysis of the records of the two candidates in the official publication of the association. However, the report in Columbia is that Hirth will advise the members of the organization that Hawes' election would offer more promise of substantial assistance to the farmers than would the election of Williams.

10 BOYS HELD FOR AIR RIFLE BOMBARDMENT OF TRAINS

Missouri Pacific Detectives Arrest Them After Investigation of Weekly Fusilade of Bullets.

Detectives and special agents of the Missouri Pacific railroad, investigating bombardment of trains every Saturday with leaden pellets, yesterday arrested ten boys, 11 to 16 years old, at the tracks and Delor street, and took them to the House of Detention.

Two of the boys had air rifles, and all admitted, the investigators reported, taking turns shooting at the trains. A week ago yesterday, four windows of a private car were shattered and other bullets narrowly missed a woman in a Pullman.

To this Film on Teeth

Today's leading dental opinion ascribes many tooth and gum disorders. Glistening teeth and healthy gums, according to many authorities, follow as a natural result when film is removed daily this way

MOST persons' teeth and gums are imperiled, according to many authorities, by a film that forms on teeth.

Ordinary brushing having failed to combat it effectively, a new way in tooth cleansing is being advised. A way that differs in formula and effect from previously accepted methods. These are embodied in the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Now an effective film combatant

For years dental science sought ways to fight film. Clear teeth and healthy gums come only when film is constantly combated—removed every day from the teeth.

Film was found to cling to teeth; to get into crevices and stay; to hold in contact with teeth food substances which fermented and fostered the acids of decay. Film was found to be the basis of tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and most gum disorders.

Thus there was a universal call for an effective film-removing method. Ordinary brushing was found ineffective. Now two effective combatants have been found, approved by high dental authority and embodied in a tooth paste called Pepsodent.

Curdles and removes film
Firms the Gums

Pepsodent acts first to curdle the film. Then it thoroughly removes the film in gentle safety to enamel.

At the same time, it acts to firm the gums—Pepsodent provides, for this purpose, the most recent dental findings in gum protection science knows today. Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. And thus aids in neutralizing mouth acids as they form.

It multiplies the starch digestant of the saliva. Thus combats starch deposits which might otherwise ferment and form acids.

No other method known to present-day science embodies protective agents like those in Pepsodent.

Please accept Pepsodent test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage the gums with Pepsodent, using your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

At the end of that time, we believe you will agree, that next to regular dental care, Pepsodent, the quality dentifrice, provides the utmost science has discovered for better tooth and gum protection.

...ETITION FOR MONTE CARLO

...d J. Gould and Associates to Build Clubhouse at Nice.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Representatives of Frank Jay Gould, the American capitalist, and M. Aletti, French hotel proprietor, have left Europe with the announcement that they are planning to build Europe's most exclusive and luxurious gaming palace on the 9,000,000 franc site they recently purchased on the Promenade des Anglais, Nice. The original plans calling for the erection of a de luxe hotel have been discarded. Gould is at present a heavy stockholder in the Casino of Juan Les Pins. The new casino will be for the very wealthy. Application has been made for a no limit baccarat play license.

The structure will be furnished as a luxurious American private club with swimming pools and a garage in the basement, a subterranean passage to the beach, private salons, gaming rooms and a private hotel for the use of members on the upper two floors.

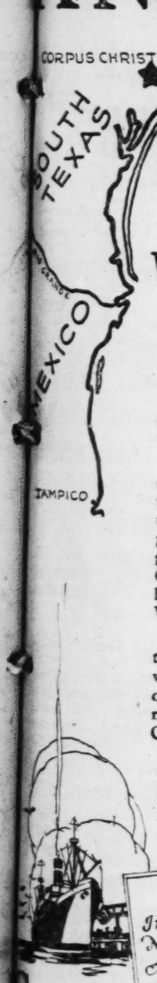
A New Port



The Port of Corpus Christi is now serving World Commerce

Opening of the far-south Port of Corpus Christi on Sept. 14, 1926, was an epochal event, for this port was built upon the solid foundation of economic necessity. The federal government joined hands with city, county and state to make its development possible—at an outlay of $5,000,000.00.

It is an international port, being next door to Mexico and closer by several days to Central and Southern American nations than are Atlantic seaboard shipping points. In addition, commerce from the great mid-continent area will flow through Corpus Christi; returning cargoes will bring savings to Texas, to the Middle West, to the Nation.

Commerce follows cheap transportation. And mounting profits trail in the wake of commerce. With the port just opened, NOW is the time for shippers, manufacturers and investors to investigate Corpus Christi. Mail the coupon today.

MERGER VICTORY IS PREDICTED BY SUPPORTERS

City-County Consolidation Committee Issues Denunciation of Nature of Opposition to Plan.

A statement predicting success for the city-county merger plan at the special election, Oct. 26, attacking the nature of the opposition to it in St. Louis County, and announcing the beginning of an intensified campaign in support of the proposal, was issued yesterday by the City-County Consolidation Committee. It follows, in part:

"The Gentry opinion about possible disfranchising of voters of the county was not unexpected, and it not only does not change the situation, as far as a vigorous campaign is concerned, but signifies the necessity of continuing the movement with greater spirit. Because a confusing opinion has been given the campaign should not be abandoned and the election allowed to go by default; on the contrary, the rendering of this opinion provides a means for defeating the merger proposal by trickery, rather than disfranchisement.

Gentry Decision Expected.

"The opinion of Attorney-General Gentry caused no surprise. Rumors had been in circulation for months, originating unmistakably from political and anti-annexation sources, that the consolidation plan could be defeated on the contention that voters voting at the special election would be disfranchised in the general election. The technical point raised concerning the franchise of county voters strengthened the bond existing between the anti-annexationists and the political powers in the county, as the interests of both thus became the same in more emphatic manner.

"It is most important to take into consideration the fact that the principle and result at issue do not hinge on disfranchisement. The question of disfranchisement is only a subterfuge. In all probability, the object is not to prevent the special election, but to frighten voters away from the polls. The county political machine could instruct a number of its faithful to vote against the plan, and by trickery defeat consolidation. However, the confusion created is advantageous also to the merger cause. The county political machine is circulating information which is scaring its own followers, and conditions are such that the county voters favoring the merger could vote the plan to triumph.

Co-Operative Causes Rebound.

"The peculiar instance of the super-reform element of the county and the county political machine working to the same purpose rebounds to the advantage of the consolidation movement. It is apparent, as it should be, to the rank and file of the voters of St. Louis County, that the foremost object of the dominating political machine is to control the election not only on Oct. 26, not only on Nov. 2, but perpetually, and that the straight-laced reformers of the county, who are opposing annexation, are making a grotesque theory of reform and progress by playing into the hands of the political chieftains and office-holders of the machine. While the two forces—the highbrow reformers and political leaders—may be distinct in a precise sense, that they are operating on the same lines and to the same consequences is proved by stronger than circumstantial evidence. A condition which exists is its own confirmation.

"The opportunity to carry the merger proposal in the county is more favorable at this time than it has been at any stage of the campaign. Citizens of the county are beginning to see through the intrigue and misrepresentation pursued by opponents to annexation, and they are startled at the maneuvers which reveal reformers and politicians striving toward the same objectives, realization of which would intrench the county political machine in supreme and indomitable power.

Opposition Is Analyzed.

"The analysis which we submit of the opposition to consolidation we believe to be fair and consistent with fact. It is too obvious to require illustration that the opposition centers in Kirkwood and Webster, and among the politicians and jobholders. These two forces, whether working in combination or not, by conference and understanding, are, at least, proceeding in actual co-operation. These are the forces which are bringing the pressure of fear to bear on the farmers. In brief, this is a true analysis on the opposition to the merger, especially in initiative and animus.

"Some unfavorable comments have been made on the merger plan itself. The plan is criticised, of course, by those prominent in the movement against annexation. Beyond doubt, it would be practically impossible to elaborate a plan which would satisfy all, especially certain community leaders of Kirkwood and Webster, and the political bosses. The plan, studied as an organic law, covers all essentials without particularizing. Particularizing is dangerous in an organic law. If there are omissions from the plan, they serve to improve the plan by extending the right and privilege to the citizens of the enlarged city to perfect details from experience. Criticism of the plan must be considered as part of the propaganda against consolidation."

C. of C. to Consider Campaign.

A meeting of the Metropolitan Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which conducted the movement paving the way for submission of the merger plan, but which has not taken up the campaign for its adoption, has been called for tomorrow noon at the chamber dining room, to consider entering the campaign.

The call for this gathering followed inquiry by the Post-Dispatch as to the chamber's attitude on the subject. It may be the committee will desire to make it a community rather than a chamber affair and to that end may function through the City-County Consolidation Committee.

WHERE MUSIC IS SWEETEST

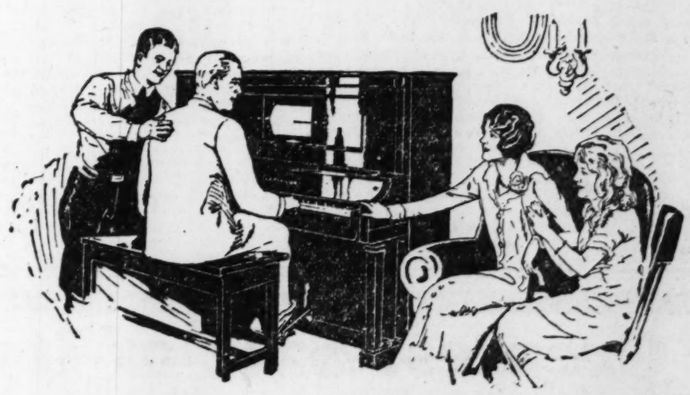
When Union Station Was a Pond

IN the early manhood of John A. Kieselhorst, born 1808, the territory east of Seventh Street was the St. Louis of that day. Beyond were the open spaces, and ambitious Izaak Waltons fished where now rises the stately Union Station.

In his chosen career of cabinet maker, John achieved much distinction for the creation of fine designs and for beautiful handiwork, and as in the small towns of today, where everybody knows everybody else, he enjoyed the sincere esteem of his fellow townsmen — not only for talent, but also for service.

Service in those far-flung days was fidelity to ideals, integrity in performance and honorableness in transactions—in the practice of which was laid the foundation of the House of Kieselhorst today.

With the soul of an artist and the acumen of a business man, John A. Kieselhorst was indeed a rightful man to preside over the destiny of that family that has since served art in St. Louis in its greatest manifestation —MUSIC.



Kieselhorst's has that something for the fireside evenings, lacking in many homes—perhaps yours!

$20,000 IN CITY EMPLOYES' FUND TO BE RETURNED

Mutual Benefit Association, Formed at Suggestion of Mayor, May Soon Disband.

The Municipal Employes' Benevolent Association, formed at the instance of Mayor Miller last year a few months after he took office, probably will be disbanded soon, the Mayor said yesterday. The purpose had been misconstrued by press and public, he declared, so it was considered best to drop the organization.

Recreational and money-lending facilities were the objects of the association, the Mayor declared, but the people got the idea it was intended for political purposes.

About $20,000 which had been collected in dues from about 3000 of the city's employes will be refunded, the Mayor said. The amount they had paid in monthly was controlled by the "suggestion" that those receiving more than $150 per month pay 1 per cent of their salaries and those receiving less pay one-half of 1 per cent.

Director of Public Safety Brod denied a report that employes in his department had been told to contribute to the Republican City Committee campaign fund instead of to the benevolent association. He explained that Charles R. Gillespie, a city employe, who is treasurer of the Republican committee, had told department heads that voluntary contributions would be welcomed. Gillespie confirmed this, saying the Mayor was opposed to assessments. He added no money had been received from city employes yet.

The Republican committee has assessed the candidates in sums ranging from $25 for lesser candidates to $100 for the major ones.

Indian Risks Life to Get Rare Botanical Collection

New York Gardens Claims to Have Plants Hitherto Unknown, as Result of His Three Years' Labor in British Guiana.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—An uneducated Indian, who trekked the wilds of British Guiana for three years collecting plants, making repeated trips by boat from the interior to the coast, and once walking 800 miles to get rare orchids, was disclosed today as a hero in the botanical world.

In his three years of labor he gathered a collection that outrivals any in the world except that of the Royal Botanical Gardens of Kew, England, according to an announcement today by officials of the New York Botanical Gardens.

Many flowers and plants, hitherto unknown to science, have been discovered in the Indian's collection, which is now at the New York Gardens, it is announced.

Dr. H. A. Gleason, curator of the gardens here, today told the story of the Indian's feat. Dr. Gleason returned to this country in 1921 after going into the wilds of British Guiana to gather rare specimens of plant life. Two Indians, La Cruz and Mendoza, accompanied the American on his expedition. La Cruz showed so much interest in the work that when Dr. Gleason left he sold the Indian his collecting outfit.

"For three years after that," said Dr. Gleason, "more plants continued to arrive in a steady stream, until the total reached nearly 30,000 specimens. Mendoza quit after a few months, and most of the plants were obtained by La Cruz alone.

"He had a flat-bottomed boat, and in it he roamed all over the northwest district of British Guiana, collecting in all sorts of out-of-the-way places which a white man would have difficulty in reaching.

"After he had got one load to the coast he immediately started in once more, walking a round trip of 800 miles to take out another load on his back."

La Cruz on some of his trips, Dr. Gleason said, braved danger of death at the hands of Indians of other tribes.

The only thing that distinguished La Cruz from other members of his tribe, Dr. Gleason said, was that he had an undershirt and a huge sombrero. He was paid $8 cents a day for his work on Dr. Gleason's trip.

Former Judge Priest Says He Probably Will Speak Further for Proposition No. 4.

Former Judge Henry S. Priest, original supporter of Initiative Proposition No. 4, for the repeal of the State prohibition law, is still for the proposal, despite the opposition of many others, which led to platform pronouncements against it by both the Democratic and Republican State conventions. Judge Priest is a Democrat.

Judge Priest made a speech in Moolah Temple in July in support of Proposition No. 4, the only public address in its favor made by anyone. He left for Europe soon afterward and returned a few days ago to find widespread opposition to it even among those usually classed as opponents of prohibition. Even Capt. W. H. Stayton, head of the Prohibition Amendment, has pronounced against Proposition 4 on the ground that it would remove all restrictions against liquor sales in the State code.

"I'm not going to surrender," Judge Priest said yesterday. "People who oppose the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law should oppose the cruel and brutal State enforcement act also. I shall probably make further speeches against it, in the State rather than in St. Louis."

Novena at St. Mary's.

A novena in honor of St. Theresa will open at St. Mary's Assumption Church, 1120 Dolman street, at 8 p. m. today in conjunction with a spiritual retreat being conducted at the church.

AMERICANS IN CHINESE WAR ZONE SEEK HELP

Missionaries' Message to Pekin Says Situation at Sianfu, Shensi Province, Is Desperate.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Oct. 2.—Telegrams from Sianfu, capital of Shensi Province, describe the situation of the American missionaries there as "critical."

Stating their desire to evacuate the city, which is the center of warfare between the remnants of the Kuominchun Army, on one hand, and Shensi forces on the other, a later message says, "the situation is desperate." The Kuominchun were driven northwestward from Pekin by the allied armies of Wu Pei-Fu and Chang Tso-Lin, now established at Pekin. The Shensi forces are nominally followers of Wu Pei-Fu.

The messages from Sianfu were signed by the Rev. W. Englund of the Scandinavian Alliance Mission, the headquarters of which are in Chicago. It is understood approximately 15 Americans of this mission are now in Sianfu, and a similar number of British.

The American Legation at Pekin has telegraphed to the commanders of the rival armies in Shensi asking them to aid the American missionaries to withdraw from the district.

By the Associated Press.

HANKOW, Oct. 2.—Northern troops holding the besieged city of Wu Chang fired on vessels bearing Red Cross and other white flags which sailed from Hankow yesterday morning to rescue the women and children in Wu Chang. Previously the Northern Army had agreed to permit the women and children to be removed in safety.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Oct. 2.—Southern peace delegations are said to be arriving at Gen. Sun Chuan-Fang's headquarters to arrange an armistice.

Gen. Sun Chuan-Fang, ruler of the five eastern provinces of China, declared war against the Canton "Red" Government early last month, with the announced purpose of expelling the Cantonese troops who had invaded his territory. He entered on the side of Marshals Tso-Lin and Wu Pei-Fu, who were already engaged in a struggle with the Cantonese.

DOHENY-SINCLAIR-FALL APPEALS DISMISSED

Court, Acting on Recent Legislation, Clears Way for Conspiracy Trials.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Brushing aside the contentions of E. L. Doheny, Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today declined to upset the conspiracy indictments returned against them here in connection with the naval oil leases.

The action cleared the way for a trial of the case, unless the defendants can obtain a review of the action by the Supreme Court of the United States. Civil suits growing out of the lease of the oil lands are already in the higher court.

In rendering its oral opinion, the Court of Appeals declined to heed the plea of defense attorneys that a law enacted at the last session of Congress, depriving the Court of Appeals of the power to allow special appeals in criminal cases, was unconstitutional. This act was sponsored by Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, prosecutor of the Senate's inquiry into the oil cases. The Montana Senator had complained that the cases were being unduly delayed by legal maneuvering.

The conspiracy indictments were upheld several months ago by Justice Stafford of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The Court of Appeals allowed a special appeal and in rendering its opinion today dismissing this appeal, it announced that it was acting in accordance with the Walsh act.

WATTERSON HOTEL SUED BY CREDITORS

Three Claims Filed Against Company, Owned by Julius Feldman of St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 2.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court here today against the Watterson Hotel Co., owned by Julius Feldman of St. Louis, operating Hotel Henry Watterson, one of the larger hotels of Louisville. Feldman is the owner of the Stratford Hotel, Eighth and Pine streets, St. Louis.

Petitioners are three creditors, listing aggregate claims of $535. They are the St. Louis Glass and Queensware Co., St. Louis; Washburn-Crosby Co., flour millers, Minneapolis, and John Van Range Co., Cincinnati. Liabilities of the Watterson Hotel Co., the bankruptcy suit asserts, are $134,000, including $65,000 in mortgages, while assets are given as $100,000.

A $75,000 damage suit was brought against the hotel company recently by Stanley Pflanz, whose wife was killed in a fall down an air shaft at the hotel on [illegible]. It is said here that the [illegible] recently offered its creditors [illegible] per cent on their claims.

Feldman, associated with Todes of St. Louis, bought the hotel in 1921, when the lease had 16 years to run. They took in stock, worth $120,000, at that time a resident of Chattanooga, Tenn., was head of the company owning the hotel.

Mrs. Rose Feldman, wife of Feldman for divorce here [illegible] asserted he was worth $500,000.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

THANK YOU.—Felt hats may be dyed by repeated immersion in a hot watery solution of 28 parts logwood, 3 parts green vitriol and 2 parts verdigris. Repeat the immersion 14 or 15 times, alternately allowing the hat to stay under the dye about 15 minutes, then exposing it to the air 15 minutes. Analine dyes may also be used for felt.

MRS. O'C. — To clean an oil painting take it out of the frame, lay a piece of cloth dampened with rain water on it, and leave for a while. Repeat process several times. Then wipe painting gently with a turt of cotton wool dampened with absolutely pure linseed oil. Rub the gold frame with freshly sliced onion, wash with a rain water dampened cloth and polish with a dry piece of soft flannel cloth.

OLD TIMER.—The first electric lights made their appearances in St. Louis in 1880. They caused much wonder and amazement. In 1889 the city officially recognized electricity for lighting purposes and began to install electric fixtures. Hotels, railroad depots, theaters and other public buildings used electric lights shortly after 1880. The report of the city lighting supervisor in April, 1897, showed that 500.79 miles of streets and 94.35 miles of alleys were lighted by electricity.

R. M.—The World Court is a result of the project drafted by the Advisory Committee of Jurists at the Hague in the summer of 1920 for a permanent court of international justice. The project was adopted by the Assembly of the League of Nations, modified in some important parts, notably in the matter of obligatory jurisdiction, on Dec. 13, 1920. The court has 11 regular and 4 titular judges and four deputy judges, elected Sept. 14 and 15, 1921. The Council of the League of Nations elected the judges jointly with the Assembly of the League when each body appointed a committee of three that produced an agreement after each separate body had failed to agree on the elections. All cases which the countries involved refer to the court may come under jurisdiction of the court. Cases must first be submitted to the League Council by members of the league who have been involved in the disputes. Matters liable for arbitration or inquiry by the council are interpretations of treaties, international law questions, any branch of international obligations, the extent and nature of the reparations to be made for any such break. There is no provision in the League of Nations Covenant that compels league members to submit disputes of the above nature to arbitration.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

P.-D. READER.—If your fence encroaches upon your neighbor's property you can be compelled to move it back onto your own land.

RAY.—Your aunt and her children are the legal heirs to your uncle's estate, as he left no will. You have no claim against the estate.

THANK YOU.—Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and we will forward the name of a handwriting expert to you. Repeat your question.

CONSTANT READER.—Negroes that are born in this country are American citizens. They were enfranchised by the Fifteenth amendment to the Constitution in 1870.

BONZORA. — You may get an order from the Circuit Court to change your middle name. In some states it is criminal offense to register under a fictitious name in a hotel.

IGNORANCE.—The form of the will might stand up under a will contest suit but we advise the party making the will to employ a lawyer if much property is involved.

WORRIED RUTH. — The husband would have a good defense if he were arrested for failing to pay for separate maintenance more than he is able to pay. Operation of gambling rooms may be reported to the police.

J. E. W.—The person from whom you borrowed money can sue for the amount and upon obtaining judgment can garnish your wages 10 per cent until the loan is paid. Your wife's possessions cannot be attached.

DAILY READER.—Consult the court records of the divorce case you wish to obtain information about. We cannot publish the information you desire about witnesses and causes of a certain divorce case. The clerk of the court is the person to dispense such information.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

L. R.—Taurocal tablets, cascara evacuant and tablets of caroid and bile salts should offer the relief necessary for your constipated condition.

MRS. R. M.—Any poisoning that would produce the blister condition you describe in the mouth or stomach must be a corrosive, burning poison such as carbolic acid, bichloride of mercury or nitrate of silver.

X. Y. Z. — We see an object right side up even though the image is inverted on the retina of the eye due to the reversion of the light rays passing through the crystaline lens, an oval shaped body situated just behind the pupil of the eye; this lens serves the purpose of focusing.

G. W. B.—The Wasserman blood test is made free of charge by the Venereal Clinic, Room 35, Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets. Cod-liver oil is an active tissue builder and a rich food and as such may be used to ward off colds and other such distempers.

MRS. F. C.—The local application of nitrate of silver, which is made of 5 grains of silver nitrate in an ounce of water, each night and morning, may prove effective as a cure for canker spots. Use as a mouth wash a solution made by dissolving a teaspoonful of chlorate of potash in a teacup of water.

AMY.—Head lice may be banished by using the following preparation: Fill a bottle one-third full of fish berries and fill up the bottle with pure grain alcohol. Mix thoroughly and soak the entire amount of hair in the liquid. Wash the hair well and apply the liquid several times until the condition has been corrected.

WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Louise Moeller, nee Horstmeyer, died Oct. 6, 1925. Sadly missed by her children. (c)

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Tillie Steidemann, who died Aug. 3, 1924: Two years ago today you left us.
And our hearts are filled with pain:
But in Heaven's domain in time to come
We know we shall meet again.

LOVING HUSBAND AND SON.

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother and great-grandmother, Clara Sauerwein, who departed this life one year ago, Sept. thirtieth, 1925.
The flowers we laid upon her grave
Were not our love for her will never fade away.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear husband, William Roth, who died Oct. 6, 1925.
One long year has passed away.
Since that most sad and mournful day
When God alone, who knows best,
Called my darling husband WIlliam to his home of rest.

LUCILLE ALEXANDER ROTH

In loving memory of our darling mother, Johanna Fahrenkrog, who departed this life two years ago, Oct. 3, 1924.
The flowers we lay upon your grave will wither and decay.
But our love for you who sleeps beneath will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

In sad but affectionate memory of Ruth E. Masters, departed this life Oct. 5, 1925.
We mourn for her in sorrow
No eyes can see us weep.
But many a silent tear is shed while others are asleep.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER, BROTHER,
RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

In loving memory of my dearly beloved son, brother and nephew, Harry B. Schloemer, who departed this life, Sept. 29, 1925.
One long and lonesome year, dear Harry,
The time it goes so slow.
And how are hearts are aching,
No one will ever know.
We love to speak of things you did,
We love to breathe your name;
We loved you dearly in this life,
In death we do the same.
We miss the voice and face of the one
We loved so well.
But God, He loved you too, dear Harry,
And took you home to dwell.
So sadly missed by his mother, sister and aunt and by all who loved him.

BUTCHER CATTLE, HOGS AND VEAL CALVES UP

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	31,165	44,952	38,304
Hogs	60,927	68,890	83,915
Sheep	21,620	15,531	11,336
Horses and mules	1,220	1,435	1,530
Totals	114,932	129,808	135,085

Advances were recorded at the National Stockyards last week in hogs, butcher cattle and veal calves. Sheep and lambs closed steady, horses and mules firm and steers steady to lower. Receipts of cattle and hogs showed a decrease from the previous week, while sheep made a gain. The combined run of all stock for the period was approximately 114,932 head. Smaller receipts failed to prevent a 25c to 50c decline in fat, heavy steers. Demand was narrow and trading slow. Medium and handy weight steers held about steady.

A drove of yearlings made a new top for the year at $12.10 per cwt., and several cars of lightweight beeves scored $12. The bulk of all native steers suitable for killers made $8.50 to $10.50.

Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas grass steers sold in a practical range of $5.65 to $8.50. Stockers and feeders offerings were 25c to 50c higher in the early trade, but closed with the advance lost. Sales were in a spread of $5.25 to $8. Virtually all classes of light yearling steers and heifers advanced 25c. Choice kinds scored a top of $11.10. Beef cows and canners and cutters moved up 25c to 50c. Beef grades bulked at $5 to $6, followed by cutters at $4.50 to $4.75 and canners at $3.75 to $4.25. Bulls strengthened 25c to 50c, spots 75c. Top bolognas reached $6.65 and heavy beef grades made $6 to 6.50. Canner bulls sold as low as $4.

Veal calves reached a ton of $16.50 late, the highest since 1920. First cuts closed at $12 to $13.50, heavy calves $8 to $9 and Southern canner yearlings $5 to $5.15.

Some Gains in Hogs.

Hog prices during the week just closed made some gains over the previous week's finish, although any advance was hard fought by buyers and declines were in order at times. Altogether, although price changes were not radical the market presented a very uneven edge throughout the six days. Order buying demand was irregular and favored the lighter hogs this week, this was showing an advance of 15c to 25c compared with the previous Saturday. Best shipping weights of 160 to 180 pounds are clearing $13.15 to $13.45 and in some cases $13.50. Handy weight butcher grades of 190 to 250 pounds average hold the highest point any and top prices were usually within this range of weights. The week's highest price was $13.85, paid during final rounds and for 210 to 230 pound averages. Heavy butcher hogs of 260 to 300 pounds in weight cleared at $13.25 to $13.50 largely. Advances for the week on anything over 190 pounds average was 25c to 35c. Receipts the past week were unusually light. This was attributed to the heavy rains throughout the mid-West which have seriously interfered with traffic on country roads and kept feeders in many sections from receiving shipping points with their stock. Arrivals all around the 11-market circuit in fact were lighter than the previous week or the corresponding period a year ago. Prices varied sharply throughout the week and after a sharp decline during mid-week made a recovery and closed generally steady to strong, stronger than the previous week's close. Best strong weight pigs are clearing around $12.75 to $13.25, this spread in price applying to the weights from 130 to 150 pounds, 100 to 120 pounds kinds are quotable at $12 to $12.50 and lighter stuff downward, according to weight of the offerings. Packing sows finish the period at steady to strong values, top kinds clearing around $12 and occasionally better were weighed up, most of the selling in a spread of $10.50 to $11.50. Stags remained unchanged throughout at $8 to $10.50 largely. Compared with the week previous all the different classes sold on the close follow: Quote—Good heavy hogs, 200 pounds and up, $13 to $13.35; 260 to 290 pounds $13.40 to $13.60; 190 to 250 pounds $13.60 to $13.75; shipping hogs, 160 to 180 pound pigs, $13.25 to $13.65; 130 to 150 pound pigs, $12.75 to $13.25, and light and light stuff down to 100 pound sows, $10.50 to $12, stags $9 to $10.50.

Lambs About Unchanged.

After mild fluctuations throughout the week just closed the lamb market finished the six-day period on practically the same basis as it was started, sheep likewise unchanged for the week. Killing supplies were very small throughout the week and the total offering during the six-day period was far below 50,000 head for the week. Through and direct shipments made up the biggest part of sheep and lambs received here the past week, big packers securing the bulk of their killing supplies through this means. Rainy weather prevailing throughout four of the six days contributed to very uneven markets with wet fleeces and quality grading considerably under choice making it hard to gauge prices accurately from day to day. Bulk of lambs cleared through packers at $12.75 to $13.00 with a fair share late in the week making as high as $13.25, which represented the packer top for the week. Butchers, operating on a small scale, paid $13.35 to $13.50 and $13.75 for lambs, these prices applying to the true criterion of the market and only obtained for small lots of choice offerings. Culls remained unchanged for the week at $9 to $10 with occasional lots making as high as $9.00. The supply of aged sheep was very meager and killers found it difficult to secure enough to fill orders. Prices held firm with light fat ewes up to $8.00 and prices graduating downward to $4.00 on heaviest grades. Buck lambs and feeders were steady, canners also unchanged at $1.00 to $2.00 mainly, some of the best grades $2.50. For complete quotations see following table:

Sheep—Receipts, 2000; market steady; choice lambs, $13.00 to $13.50; medium to good $12.00 to $13.00; plain to medium $11.00 to $12.00; common and culls $8.00 to $9.00; skins $5.00 to $7.00. Good to choice mutton ewes, $5.50 to $6.00; medium to good, $4.50 to $5.50; plain to medium $3.00 to $4.00; culls and canners, $2.00 to $4.00; canners $1.00 to $2.00 and $2.50. Fat goats $2.00 to $3.50, thin to fair goats $1.00 to $2.00, choice kids $5.00 to $6.00, thin to fair kids $2.00 to $4.00.

Horses and Mules.

Horses and mules closed on a firm basis for the week under a good run of approximately 1220 head. Clearance was satisfactory.

Strength was indicated in good cotton mules and broke western horses. Big mules, good chunks up to 16 hands, 900 to 1000 pounds averaged about steady. Plain mules and little offerings, also smooth-mouthed and blemished horses continued at relatively low prices.

REVENUE LOSS OF BRITISH RAILROADS

Special Wireless to New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today says:

"The extent of the breakaway of the miners last week indicates the coal strike will settle itself by collapse. The situation encourages the miners attitude to stand out against a national settlement. There is no reason to suppose a district settlement will prove less permanent.

"The extent to which the railways have suffered is indicated in the decline of almost £23,000,000 in traffic hauled this year, representing a drop of nearly 16 per cent, while expenses have been increased through the use of imported coal and oil. Nevertheless, the railway stock market has been strong lately, based on hopes of a recovery next year and on the publication of favorable estimates of revenues when the railroad legislation for an adjustment of rates become effective, probably in January, 1928.

"It remains to be shown, however whether trade can bear the changes necessary to provide the authorized revenues, as owing to the great development of the Government main highways, bus and truck traffic is encroaching upon railway business in carrying short distance passengers and long distance goods.

"Revenue figures for the first half of the financial year probably show considerable improvement, as compared with last quarter, when the deficit was £78,000,000. That quarter included the half year war loan dividend payment and only small income tax collections. A second quarter will have partly balanced the position, although the fourth quarter of the financial year is always most productive.

"The effects of the strike will be much more evident in the next two financial years."

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"The market for leading European exchanges all through the week was unusually orderly, partly due to the support from Government agencies. An element of strength was furnished also in some leading exchanges by special developments. The new Belgian stabilization bill by the French Government's new method of increasing its gold supply through opened exchanges of notes for corn and metal had an influence in causing a better tone for French exchange. Checks on Paris moved up almost 10 points during the week to 2.84. Italian exchange was helped by institution buying, advancing 10 points to 3.84 for lira checks. Belgian was steadily held, being governed by the movement in French exchange. Sterling showed a firm tone, rising ¼ of a cent, although in the greater part of the week the market was called on to stand heavy offerings of cotton bills. In the last few days most of these offerings consisted of bills for October delivery. The extent of the end of the week the market changed slightly, French losing a good part of the early gain. A reaction occurred in Italian exchange also.

"Chinese exchanges was the supply the greater part of the week, but the further decline in silver metal prevented any important transactions as buyers quickly retreated when silver yielded to new low levels for the last 10 years. Exchange on Hongkong ranged from 50.37 to 49.00 and Shanghai taels yielded from 64.37 to 62.35. Peruvian was also heavy by falling 9 cents to 3.80.

"South American exchanges were irregular. Argentine moved up ¼c on completion of the financing in this city on Thursday. Brazilian was under pressure the latter part of the week, declining from 15.12 to 14.87. Trading in Uruguay exchange was on a small scale, a decline to 48.30 being followed by a rally to 48.55 on New York checks. Dutch exchange, which has been in increasing supply for some time, yielded three points to 40.02 for guilder checks, the lowest level touched since March.

Foreign exchange rates held within narrow limits today in the usual week-end dullness. Sterling received good support, while continental rates were somewhat irregular. The week's decline in Peruvian exchange continued.

CORN IS LEADER ON CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Corn led the speculative grain markets today with a sharp price upturn. Realizing sales in the last few minutes shaded the advance. Buying power was expanded and shorts were uneasy. At the close prices were 1¼c higher and for the week ¾c to 1¾c higher. December $1.⅝@1.⅞c. May 85⅝@87⅝c. Shipping sales today were 60,000 bushels.

Wheat was a scalping affair. Locals did most of the business and they were bearish early because of the decline in Winnipeg, but they seemed to run for cover at the appearance of any buying. Foreigners bought wheat early. Closing prices were ⅞c to 1⅛c lower on belated liquidation. For the week prices were 2⅝c to 3⅝c higher, wet weather over Canada being a factor. December $1.40⅝@1.40½. May $1.45¼@1.45¾.

The decline in Winnipeg was due to hedging pressure and some long selling on the clearing weather over the West. Bronhall said that Swedish and Danish wheat was being offered on the Berlin future market and that native German wheat is now near an export basis. Russian offers are said to be in England to push the sale of grain. Minneapolis stocks increased 90,000 bushels for one day. The cash wheat basis was unchanged to ¼c higher, the advance being on top grades of hard winter. The seaboard advised of a little better export business, especially in American hard winters.

Oats were affected by the action of other grains. Wet weather continued to check threshing and this is causing increased buying power. Closes were unchanged to ⅛c higher and for the week ⅜c higher. December, 44¼c to 44⅝c, May 48⅜c to 48¾c.

Provisions were lower because of liquidation in nearby deliveries of lard. Lard closed 20c to 30c lower, ribs unchanged, bellies 25c lower.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Fears of dear money have hung heavily over the market of late but on Thursday when call funds touched 6 per cent, the highest level since Jan. 4, stocks, curiously enough, started up again. Such incidents are interesting for what they reveal of the forces back of the market. They show that in the present instance the short swings reflect more the activity of professional speculators than those of an aroused public. Neither the rise in the call rate this week nor the improvement in stocks should, of course, be accepted as a barometer of the future. They represent developments of the moment and what may happen from now on depends upon conditions that lie deeper.

Long Period View.

"As the final quarter of 1926 opens, astute students of business are turning their attention generally to the probable trend of affairs over a long period. That industry will remain active during the remainder of this year nobody seriously doubts, but the belief grows, and with some reason, that the current quarterly period may uncover new intimations of what to expect from the distant future. The rise in loans on stocks is one sign that will be watched for its possible bearing on the market. Loans to brokers and dealers made by reporting New York banks have fallen slightly of late, but at $2,762,000,000 they have regained about half of the distance back to the January peak. From the high point of $3,141,000,000 in the first week of the year they had dropped to a low of $2,409,000,000 in May, when loans began again to expand.

Expansion in Loans.

"This expansion of $363,000,000 from the low point of May has come primarily from funds supplied by institutions or individuals other than banks and by out of town correspondent banks. Loans by leading New York City banks for their own account have not increased since June. In some ways a chart of loans to brokers and dealers is comforting to market speculators, perhaps, since it shows an aggregate still considerably under the early 1926 peak. These figures do not reveal the whole story, however, and they must be studied in conjunction with the total loans on stocks and bonds of all reporting member banks to obtain a true picture of what has been happening.

Loans on Stocks and Bonds.

"At $5,708,000,000 the total loans on stocks and bonds by member banks over the country have almost reached the January peak again. Apparently funds for use in the stock market have been found to an increasing extent in loans by corporations or individuals. The conclusion does not necessarily follow, however, that contraction in business activities has released funds generally for use in the market. As a matter of fact the demand for money from commercial sources has been heavy. Numerous individual enterprises presumably have accumulated excess funds that might be loaned even though industry as a whole still is consuming an enormous volume in its own interest.

Decline in Commodities.

"Another sign of the times is to be found in the continued downward trend of commodity prices and the unfortunate fact that agricultural products appear to be the principal losers.

Two Good Cotton Crops.

"It is almost an anomaly in history that the cotton crop in two successive years should reach record production levels but present estimates agree that the 1926 output will add heavily to the big supply of cotton already on hand from last year. That explains why the commodity has fallen to new low levels since 1921. In the trade it is reckoned that even the last Government report was low and that a crop of 16,678,000 bales is possible on the basis of present indications.

Problems for Thought.

"Increase on loans on stocks and bonds since April, the advance in rates for funds, the declining commodity market and the situation in cotton are not matters over which to become alarmed. They have not even induced a break in the stock market where, presumably, the future is discounted. They do present problems for serious thought and this they should have now before they become too complicated for solution."

Saturday's Market Irregular.

"Erratic price movements in the stock market and another severe break in cotton values featured today's short session in financial markets. Renewed selling pressure under cover of strength in some of the standard leaders bewildered the trading element in security markets. Confidence in easier money rates, which seemed to have inspired bidding up of many high-priced stocks yesterday appeared to be lacking, for offerings increased on rallies and brought general unsettlement to the list. Dealings in the bond market were again in small volume and a price trend was absent. In the main, fairly good support was evident in high-grade issues.

Trade Unsettled Late.

"In spite of continued strength in General Motors and United States Steel, acute weakness developed in some parts of the stock market and operations showed a decidedly mixed trend, confusing to speculators. Traders in quest of higher prices met with greater resistance when they attempted to continue yesterday's rally. After a rather strong opening, prices quickly turned lower when the overnight buying orders had been executed. General Motors climbed to a new high record above 173 and then eased off rapidly, while Steel reacted after touching a new top for the recovery. Warner Pictures 'A' shares were heavily offered and broke about 5 points, while American Smelting lacked support and Mack Trucks was hammered down again below 106. Commercial Solvents 'B' stock fell back on profit-taking after an opening rally. Some of the other specialties held up well, however. When the trend became so unsettled in the final hour, trading turned quieter and operations for the decline slackened. Many operators showed an inclination to close commitments for over the week-end.

Exchange Market Dull.

"Foreign exchange rates held within narrow limits in the usual week-end dullness. Sterling received good support, while continental rates were somewhat irregular. The week's decline in Peruvian exchange continued.

Cotton Lowest in 5 Years.

"One of the disturbing developments of the day was the further collapse of cotton values to the lowest levels in five years. Heavy selling from Southern points developed soon after the opening today and when weather reports indicated ideal conditions for the crop in virtually all parts of the belt local speculators renewed their campaign for lower prices, with the result that declines ranging from $2 to $3 a bale were recorded within about an hour. Support from Liverpool and domestic trade interests was feeble. With the trade so uniformly bearish, little covering by shorts developed to stem pressure. Grain markets fluctuated narrowly.

Clearing House Statement.

"Evidence of the severity of the credit strain imposed by month-end settlements was provided in the weekly statement of the Clearing House banks, revealing a deficit in reserves of $22,560,720. Surplus decreased $40,398,380, while loans, discounts, etc., increased $94,761,000. Hopes for an easier tone in the money market were dampened somewhat by the statement, although it was pointed out that the figures represented operations already completed and that a flow of funds into the market might be expected in the coming week.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—In the following table will be found a list of sales, highest, lowest and closing prices of bands traded in on the Stock Exchange today, sales being in $1000 lots (000 omitted).

Quotations on all United States Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar, that is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

Total sales today were $4,621,000 ,against $7,919,000 yesterday, $3,662,000 a week ago, $7,325,000 a year ago, and $5,258,000 two years ago. From Jan. 1 to date sales were $2,231,195,000, against $2,612,416,000 a year ago, and $2,696,054,000 two years ago.

Brief Summary of Week's Markets

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

A BREAK in cotton futures to the lowest levels in five years and the marking up of money rates to the highest figures of the year were the two most important developments in this week's financial and commodity markets. Movements in the stock market were highly erratic. Bond prices drifted lower. Uncertainty over future money rates was influence in stock trade.

Frequent shifts in price movement in the stock market during the past week reflect the keen struggle that is being waged by opposing speculative forces for the control of the market. Fears of higher money rates were generally held responsible for the reactionary tendencies earlier in the week, but curiously on the very day that call money touched 6 per cent, the highest level since last January, the market turned upward under the leadership of U. S. Steel common and General Motors.

The advance was bitterly contested by speculators for the decline, with a resultant confusion in price movement. The struggle undoubtedly will be resumed during the coming week, with the issue probably in doubt until the effect of the seasonal expansion in commercial and agricultural financing and the large volume of brokers' loans on the fall money market becomes more clearly apparent.

Directors of the American Smelting Co. and Kennecott Copper Co. meet next week for dividend action. Wall street expects an increase of $1 annually on each stock. Despite unofficial intimations some time ago that no special dividend action would be taken on U. S. Steel common this year, the meeting of corporation directors later in the month is being awaited with unusual interest. General Motors directors also are expected to authorize another extra cash distribution later in the year, although President Sloan intimated on his recent departure for Europe that the huge cash resources may be needed for business expansion. Wall street heard today that Mr. Sloan was in Germany negotiating for the purchase of an automobile plant which could be used for the assembly of General Motors cars in that country, the principal parts to be manufactured in the United States.

Weekly Metal Review

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—While the buying of steel during the month of September was largely for nearby delivery, there were no evidences of a falling off in requirements and the total month's sales were very satisfactory. The railroads have recently come into the market for a large tonnage of rails and other equipment and the outlook for October was considered very encouraging. Shipments during the month were heavy and apparently in excess of new bookings. Prices were steadily maintained.

Pig iron was irregular and where concessions were obtainable the volume of new business was large.

The copper market has shown no change of importance. Rumors that the proposed Copper Export Association would probably begin to function within the next three or four weeks have evidently failed to stimulate buying abroad and after pitching some business at the 14¼-cent level buyers for domestic consumption again withdrew. Electrolytic is reported still available at the 14¼ level delivered at Connecticut Valley points.

Tin reached the highest level since war days, due to the realization that Far East shipments continue to lag behind consumptive requirements. Monthly statistics were about in line with expectations. Buying by consumers has been confined to urgent nearby needs.

Lead quotations were reduced, despite continued good demand, owing to the easier trend West and the drop in London.

Zinc was dull and prices easier under increased offerings.

Early declines in antimony led to a little better demand toward the end of the week, particularly for futures and a steadier tone developed with some improvement in prices.

LONGER HOURS FOR POLICEMEN

Two-platoon service, in 12-hour shifts, was ordered last night by Chief of Police Gerk in the emergency created by coincidence of the world's series baseball games here with the Veiled Prophet's ball and parade.

That schedule, to continue from 9 a. m. Monday "until further notice," probably would continue only a week, Chief Gerk said. It is the first time the 3-platoon 8-hour schedule has been suspended in 15 years.

MAN IS KILLED BY AUTO AT BROADWAY AND BLOW STREET

James Wilson, 65, Railroad Crossing Watchman Run Down by Car Driven by Joseph Lichtfus.

BOY, 14, DIES IN ALTON ACCIDENT

Driver of Truck in Collision Trying to Make Up Lost Time After Delay in the Mud.

James Wilson, 65 years old, a railroad crossing watchman of 7128 South Broadway, was killed at Broadway and Blow street at 11 o'clock last night by an automobile driven by Joseph Lichtfus, 29 years old, a cabinet maker, of 412 Little Broadway, St. Louis County.

One-Man Street Car and Truck in Fatal Collision.

Collision of a one-man street car and a grocery truck at Twelfth and Langdon streets, in Alton, at noon yesterday, resulted in the death of James Gaither, 14 years old, of 1809 Belle avenue, and serious injury of Daniel Siebold, 15, of 229 Madison street.

The two boys were riding on the truck with James Maher, 22, of 221 West Twelfth street, employed by Rippley Bros. The truck had just been pulled out of mud, in which it had been mired for 90 minutes, and Maher was trying to make up the lost time. Driving south on Langdon, he attempted to pass in front of a Union streetcar, eastbound on Twelfth.

The street car collided with the truck, jumped its tracks and dragged the machine for 60 feet, stopping against a curb. The Gaither boy, who had been standing on the truck's running board jumped, struck the street head foremost, fracturing his skull, and rolled under the street car. The Seibold boy remained in the truck and suffered internal injuries. Maher suffered the fracture of a rib.

Six men and women passengers on the street car were shocked and bruised. P. L. Perry, in charge of the street car, was not injured. The collision occurred within a half block of the home of Coroner William H. Bauer, who administered first-aid treatment.

Man, 81, Struck by Automobile, Dies at City Hospital.

Patrick Morris, 81 years old, who told police at City Hospital he had no occupation and no home, died there yesterday of injuries suffered Wednesday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Oscar Clostermeyer of 3657 Montana avenue.

Witnesses said Clostermeyer was driving slowly northward on Broadway in a light rain when Morris attempted to cross at Wyoming street.

Four of One Family Injured When Street Car Hits Auto.

Four members of one family were cut and bruised when a street car hit an automobile at Thirteenth street and Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, last night. Those hurt were Huston Brown, 22 years old, the driver; his mother, Mrs. Martha Brown, 55, his sister, Mrs. Gladys Beckerdite, 24, and Mrs. Beckerdite's daughter, Veloroh, 15 months old, all of 1312 Nectar avenue, East St. Louis.

Miss Helen Heinrichs, 20, 1237 North Kingshighway boulevard, St. Louis, and Miss Evelyn Collins, 18, of 1434 North Forty-Sixth street, East St. Louis, suffered minor injuries when struck by an automobile in front of 227 Collinsville avenue.

MAN AND WOMAN INJURED WHEN AUTO UPSETS IN COUNTY

Louis Ostertag and Miss Anna Moones Taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

Louis Ostertag, 29 years old, of 3917 Finney avenue, is in a serious condition, and Miss Anna Moones, 40, of 1600 Olive street, has a fractured right arm, as the result of the overturning of Ostertag's automobile, in which they were riding at 1 a. m. yesterday.

The machine left Clayton road, at the intersection of the Warson road, in St. Louis County, and turned over into a culvert. Ostertag suffered several fractured ribs, one of which pierced his left lung. They were taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

TWO MEN ROBBED OF $1200 IN CASH AND CHECKS IN GARAGE

Bernard Lerner, a meat packer, of 5704 Julian avenue, and his brother-in-law, Paul Felderbaum, an insurance agent, of 1165 Blackstone avenue, last night reported that they were held up by two men at 10:15 o'clock, as they left Lerner's automobile in the garage in rear of his home, and robbed of $1200 in cash and checks.

Lerner reported he lost $900 and Felderbaum lost the rest. Abe Felderbaum, Paul's brother, who also was in the car, was not molested by the robbers, it was said.

CALVES AND US!

A calf at weaning-time is about as unruly as domestic animals grow.

It will not be coaxed, driven or led with any degree of success, so a more forceful method must be resorted to in order that the animal will learn it has a master.

Amusing beyond description are the antics of this calf when placed in "solitary confinement" (a pen all by itself).

Fences restrain it, but its bawling is constant as it paces to and fro in its confines, switching its tail all the while as it seeks a manner of escape.

Kindness, a change of food at its usual feeding time, and a gradual realization that it will not always have its mother with it, accomplish the purpose of its master. It is subdued to its own advantage.

It may not be fair to compare humans to this calf, but—

Are Not Some of Us Eligible to Comparison?

Stampdale Captures Autumn Handicap at Fairmount

BULLETIN MAKES STRONG EARLY BID BUT TIRES; 6000 BRAVE RAIN TO ATTEND

Great Sport, Shortest Priced Favorite of the Afternoon, Wins for Respess' Colors—Track Muddy and Showers Are Frequent.

Chart of the Autumn Stakes

SIXTH RACE—Purse $2000. Autumn Handicap, 3-year-olds and upward, three-quarters mile—Start good; won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:58 p. m. Time, 1 minute. Winner, J. E. Respess's b. g., 4, by Ormondale-Post Mark. Trainer, G. W. Glick. Time, :23 4-5, :47 4-5, 1:15. Value to winners, $1400, $442.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1
Stampdale	108	4	1	1½	1½	1½	1°	G.	Huntemer	$.85
Bulletin	113	1	2	2h	3²	2½	2½	R.	Jackson	2.05
Child's Play	95	2	5	4²	4⁴	4³	3hd	B.	Ray	7.40
Fire Under	104	3	3	3¹	2²	3²	4½	D.	Smith	18.45
Rhadamanthe	100	5	4	5	5	5	5	E.	Cheatham	11.00

Stampdale broke fast and showing a liking for the going and racing in his stride moved into the lead at once and drew out fast in the last furlong to win much in reserve. Bulletin was well up during entire trip but was not good enough for the winner. Child's Play was weakly ridden and showed a good effort. Fire Under began tiring after reaching the last sixteenth. Fire Under had no mishap.

$2 certificates earned: Stampdale, straight $3.70, place $2.60, show $2.40; Bulletin, place $3.00, show $2.50; Child's Play, $2.60.

Racing came back to Fairmount yesterday afternoon. As on the occasion of each previous opening, the heavens fairly wept and drenched the 6000 spectators who ventured out of the stands.

The showers were frequent during the afternoon, but failed to dampen the ardor of the faithful, who hit the machines with a touch that showed they knew their marks.

The track was a belt of mud around the grass-green infield, but the races were surprisingly well contested.

The Autumn Handicap, at six furlongs, was the feature of the day, and it brought out five fast starters.

The event enabled Stampdale to score another victory to his long credit. Stampdale, during the summer on Chicago tracks, developed into a crack and could hold his own with the best that raced around the Windy City.

He displayed remarkable speed in this effort, and led Bulletin by a short margin for the first half mile, but once straightened out in the stretch, he came away like a real runner and won with considerable ease.

Bulletin, after his hard effort to run down Stampdale, weakened badly from his early pace and had to be roused hard to stall off a determined bid made by Child's Play. Had the latter had a stronger finish, she would have been closer to the leaders at the end. Stampdale was a pronounced favorite.

Rajah Takes Opener.

The public got away in full stride in the inaugural number when they voted Rajah as the likely one to capture the purse. He did and never gave his backers much anxiety at any part of the trip, for he led comfortably all the way and was well in hand at the finish to beat home Child with Jake heading the field. Kendall and Jake both made valiant attempts to head the leader, but were unsuccessful. The third punishment meted out to a rider occurred here when F. McGuire and Russell Cave was suspended by the starter for a period of 10 days, for disobedience at the post.

The long shot players got an additional thrill in the second number, when Lucky Mistake, carrying the colors of J. Randolph, was first a winner before Lou Mack and the favorite, Tormentor, landed in third place. The race entered nine juveniles, and they were closely grouped for the main part of the five and one-half furlongs. Lucky Mistake drawing away in the last sixteenth to achieve victory. Lou Mack displayed a great effort to come from far back in the stretch racing to take the place portion of the purse. Tormentor had no mishaps and simply failed when pressed hard in the stretch drive.

Froggatte Wins With Mattie.

Meddling Mattie, which has been prominently on Chicago tracks this season, was the victor in the third race, bringing to the post some good platers to race six furlongs. Meddling Mattie entered a slight margin at the start and Froggatte took advantage of the good break and hustled the Cook-owned mare hard and succeeded in keeping in the van for the entire trip. Pricemaker was closely in pursuit for most of the way.

Howard Kinsey Joins Pyle's Pro Tennis Troupe

Harvey Snodgrass Also Under Contract—Tilden's Name Mentioned.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Howard O. Kinsey of San Francisco, sixth ranking tennis player in the United States, and Harvey W. Snodgrass, Los Angeles, today were added to the star professional list of Charles C. Pyle to accompany Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen on her tour through North America, starting at Madison Square Garden next Saturday.

Coupled with the announcement that he had signed Kinsey and Snodgrass, Pyle declared he would have several more famous players in his troupe within a few days, one of them being of exceptional prominence.

He would not indicate the players he had in view, but reports current mentioned the names of "Big Bill" Tilden and William M. Johnston, along with Helen Wills. Pyle said he would name his entire list of players by Tuesday at the latest.

Following a long distance conversation between Pyle and Kinsey late this afternoon, the Pacific Coast racquet wielder came to terms and Kinsey will leave for New York Monday. Kinsey, who was a member of the Davis cup team as substitute and an international, as well as holder of many championships, is the second player of national ranking to turn professional. Vincent Richards, Olympic title holder and Davis cup player, cast his lot with Pyle two days ago.

Snodgrass was previously a professional, taking up the duties as tennis instructor last year. He ranked sixth in America's "first 10" in 1924. Terms signed by Kinsey and Snodgrass were not disclosed.

Speaking of the Lenglen entourage, Pyle said:

"There will be more famous players, one being of exceptional prominence, who will in the next few days follow the lead of Mlle. Lenglen, Miss Mary K. Browne, Vincent Richards, Paul Feret, Harvey Snodgrass and Howard Kinsey. I am confident that none of the claims or statements made by me in connection with professional tennis movements will be discounted when the first match at Madison Square Garden is played next Saturday night.

"A special floor of cork composition is being laid in the Garden. Richards is supervising the work in order that the courts prove most conducive to perfect playing."

"WITH MAN ON IN EIGHTH, HIT AND RUN WAS THE PLAY INSTEAD OF SACRIFICE"

"Feature Play Was Daring Work of O'Farrell on Ruth's Bunt, Throwing Out Dugan at Second Base."

By John J. McGraw,
(Copyright, 1926.)
As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The opening game of the big series, even though it ended in a 2-to-1 win for the Yanks, showed no superiority in class for either team. With the nervousness now worn off and the excitement of the big day calmed down, I see no reason why the Cardinals should not step out and give a good account of themselves.

This first game, one of those close tense games where every little movement may count heavily, was largely a matter of Herb Pennock. He showed quite plainly why the Yanks banked on him for the opener and why the bettors made him a 6 to 5 favorite.

Pennock was cool and steady every minute of the long route. The Cardinals got to him for two hits in the first inning and did not touch him safely again until Jim Bottomley drove a single to right in the ninth. It was the care and studious effort in Pennock's work that stood out. His control was pretty nearly perfect. He knew what he was about all the time. Pennock's experience told heavily in this first hooking up of southpaws.

Sherdel Also a Master.

Bill Sherdel also lived up to expectations. The game he pitched today was good enough to win most any ball game. He was a little nervous and timid at the start, walking three batters. After that, though, he steadied down, pitching himself out of bad holes on three occasions with the art of a real master.

Pennock frequently took an early advantage by laying the first ball over the plate and then taking his time in working on the batters. A pitcher who is willing to gamble on this first ball and have the control to guide it is always one step ahead of the batter.

The Cardinals allowed themselves to be drawn into this trap of Pennock's by waiting out the first ball and then getting themselves in the hole.

For several innings Sherdel could not get the first ball over or didn't want to. It looked like the proper move for him, but he didn't do it.

Change of Attack Productive.

When Sherdel did start laying over the first one the Yanks suddenly shifted their usual attack in the sixth inning and pulled the surprise that gave them the game. Beginning with Ruth, who singled to left, they started hitting the first ball. Three of them got safe drives, one run scored and the game was over.

It was Lou Gehrig who settled the game. After Ruth had advanced on a sacrifice hit, Gehrig clipped a clean hit to right and the Babe scored the winning run.

The Cardnals made what I considered a mistake in judgment in the eighth inning when they had their one good chance to break through and take the lead.

At that time they were one behind. Instead of stepping out boldly to win, they deliberately played for a tie, and got neither. O'Farrell, the first man up, got a base on balls. To me that looked like the time to shoot all they had in an effort to break up the game. The Yankee infield was out of position and there was a wide gap in the outfield. Thevenow, you know, is a mighty good hitter in a pinch. Tommy surprised me. He deliberately sacrificed so as to advance O'Farrell. Then Flowers went in as a pinch hitter. He hit to the pitcher and the rally was spoiled. I consider that move of the Cardinals a mistake. Even if they had got away with it, I would still think it wrong. Even if they had tied they would have had to start all over again to win.

The feature play of this first game was the brilliant and daring work of Bob O'Farrell in snatching Ruth's bunt in front of the plate and throwing Koenig out at second, when the Yanks were trying the sacrifice game. O'Farrell had to make a perfect throw and he had to make it so fast as to get the runner by inches. He timed it to a nicety. I have never seen many better fielding plays than that.

Some Praise for Hornsby.

Mark Koenig also made a brilliant play in stopping a grounder from Hafey's bat and getting his man. The most exciting and also quick-thinking play of the game was when Hornsby slipped in fielding Comb's grounder. As he fell, Hornsby threw the ball on the ground but, with a lightning-like stab, Jim Bottomley came up with the ball and got his man.

Rogers Hornsby did not show at his best. The worries and sorrow that have beset him could be seen in his general work. He was under a heavy weight and is to be congratulated for handling himself as well as he did.

As I said at the outset, this game demonstrated no real advantage in class. They will have to play several more games before anybody begins to say which club is really better.

I look to see the Cardinals come strong now.

Alexander to Hurl For Cards, Shocker For Yanks Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

RIGHT-HANDED pitchers will be on the hurling slab tomorrow in the second game of the world's series. Grover Alexander, the veteran, will go to the hill for the Cardinals and Urban Shocker, also a right-hander, probably will be Huggins' selection to work for the Yankees.

Harvard Beaten By McMillin's Geneva Eleven

Obscure Pennsylvania College Team Outplays Crimson To Win, 16-7.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2.—Harvard lost the first opening game in its long football history here today to the scrappy little Geneva college team, 16 to 7. "Bo" McMillin's Pennsylvania team clearly outplayed Harvard in every way.

Flenniken, Geneva fullback, scored the first touchdown in the second period. Later in that period he carried the ball 20 yards to Harvard's 20-yard line. Schachern dropkicked over the crimson crossbar from the 27-yard line.

The second Geneva touchdown was made in the fourth period. After Flenniken carried the ball 42 yards in nine plays, it rested on Harvard's one-yard line on Geneva's fourth down. Schachern circled his right end and scored.

Harvard scored late in the second period after Pratt recovered Emerick's fumble on Geneva's 20-yard line. Sayles, on the next play, picked his way through a broken field and crossed the goal line.

Yanks' Waiting Game Helps Defeat Sherdel; Both Hurlers Strong

Statistics Show That Pennoc k Was Better Hurler in Opening Game of World's Series — Rival Shortstops Both Play Brilliantly, Wecke Writes.

By Herman Wecke.
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff and One of the Official Scorers for the Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Herbert Pennock! Around him centers the story of the opening game of the 1926 world's series, the twenty-third in championship history.

It was Pennock from the start to the finish. There were times when it seemed that Pennock must weaken; that the havy hitting Cardinals would drive him to the showers. But Pennock did NOT weaken. He had a bad first inning. Then he grew stronger as the game progressed. Three hits was the Cardinals' sum total, at the finish. It tells the story of the Yankees' 2 to 1 victory, achieved before a crowd of 61,000 paid, close to the greatest in world's series history.

Pennock did not need much help. What little he did need was supplied by Lou Gehrig, first sacker. It was Gehrig whose infield out sent the first run for New York and it was Gehrig's single, which drove in the deciding tally in the sixth.

It was a great game, one in which the pitchers had all the better of the argument. Pre-series dope told of the great slugging of the teams. The pitchers, it was said by many, were just so-so. But the pitchers tood out staunchly on the dark afternoon which served to inaugurate the 1926 classic.

Pennock Seldom in Trouble.

Pennock worked easily throughout. Those twisting curves of his had the Cardinals' sluggers hitting harmless grounders to the infielders or popping them to the outfielders. Two of the three safeties he yielded were real socks, a double by Douthit and a single by Bottomley. The other, a safety by Bottomley in the first, was of the infield variety. It was an infield roller, which Koenig stopped, but on which he was in no position to make a play.

It was that hit which sent in the only marker of the contest for the men of Hornsby.

Bill Sherdel, who opposd Pennock, was not as effective. Bill was wild. The Yanks knew tthis and they waited their time. They wore little William down and then led him to defeat in the sixth. It was a first-ball attack. Prior to that time the Yanks had waited out the little left-hander.

Yanks Change Attacking Style.

But they suddenly changed. They blasted away at Sherdel's first pitch that was over the plate. That this style of attack succeeded is evinced by the score. In this fatal sixth the New Yorkers made three hits and every one of them came on the first one that Sherdel sent across the plate.

The Cardinals also switched tactics against Pennock in this way, but it did not prove as effective as the Yankees' change. The difference was that the Yanks scored and the Cardinals did not. And that was the story.

Statistics on the game tell this story of just how easy Pennock had it. During the nine complete innings, he was forced to pitch but 101 times. In just one frame did his control fail to the extent that he was forced to pitch more called balls than strikes.

That happened in the eighth. It was in this round that it seemed as though the Cardinals had an opening. Pennock momentarily became a wild southpaw. He walked two batters. Hornsby shoved in his reserves, but Earl Combs came to the rescue and the Cardinals were silenced without a tally. Combs in this round made a fine capture of Holm's short fly with Jake Flowers dashing to the plate with the tieing run.

Pitches 66 Strikes, 35 Balls.

The statistical story of the contest shows that of the 101 pitches for Pennock, 66 were strikes and but 35 wide of the plate. That is an average of almost two strikes for every pitch wide of the pay-off station.

How Penhock subdued the Cardinals as told by the figures:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Strikes	14	7	5	6	5	7	6	9	7	—66
Balls	6	2	6	4	2	5	2	10	3	—35
Totals	20	9	6	10	7	12	8	19	10	—101

Sherdel had it tough. In the seven rounds he was on the hillock he was forced to pitch 87 times. Just 27 of these efforts came in the first wild frame of the left-hander. He threw 52 strikes and 35 wide of the plate. Thus in seven frames he pitched just as many wide of the rubber as did his pitching rival in the entire game.

How Sherdel pitched:

Innings:	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Strikes	10	10	7	7	7	7	4	—52
Balls	17	3	2	5	3	4	1	—35
Totals	27	13	9	12	10	11	5	—87

Thus the figures show that Sherdel pitched the toughest as well as the easiest round of the game. The first, in which he pitched 27 times before the side was retired, was the hardest, and the seventh, in which he threw but five times, was the easiest.

Jess Haines worked the eighth. He pitched seven balls and as many strikes.

The two Cardinal pitchers twirled to Ruth throughout. Sherdel, usually a master of control, was having trouble in the first. He passed Ruth on four pitched balls and the crowd booed. The first one was low, the second outside, the third low and the last one wide.

The Babe came up again in the third. This time Koenig was on first the result of a single. The Bambino tried to lay one down but the cat-like O'Farrell leaped on the sphere and his throw forced Koenig. Then came the fatal sixth. Ruth started it and he landed on Sherdel's first effort for a smash through Bell for a single.

The next time he came up was in the eighth against Haines. Haines' first two were wide and the crowd booed. Then a strike. Another wide one and the call was 3 and 1. Babe took a sock at the next. It was a grounder which Bell first fumbled and then recovered in time to throw out the Babe. All of which proves that the Cards really pitched to Ruth.

Hornsby Out of Luck.

The Babe had more success against Sherdel and Haines than Hornsby had against Pennock. In the first with Douthit on third, Hornsby fouled off one and then tapped to Pennock.

To open the fourth, the Cardinals' manager rolled to Koenig for a starter. In the sixth, he had a 3 and 2 call and grounded to Dugan, while in the ninth he waded into the first one and flied deep to Combs.

Hornsby failed to hit, but he turned the feature fielding play of the contest. That came in the seventh round and Earl Combs a fast man, was the victim. Combs started a smash towards right field. Hornsby went over and made the stop, but slipped on the wet turf. While off balance he bounced the ball to Bottomley and the fast Combs was out by inches. It was the one real fielding play of the contest and it brought a round of applause from the spectators.

In five of the nine innings, Pennock put the Cardinals down in order. In but two, the third and the seventh, did New York fail to get a runner on the paths.

Rival Shortstops Shine.

Mark Koenig and Tommy Thevenow, the rival shortstops, put up a fine fielding game. The Yankee shortstop considered a weak sister on the defense handled four chances cleanly, while Thevenow took care of eight, one putout and seven assists. The fielding was almost perfect all around, as the only error of the battle went to Les Bell in the sixth. But the "boot" did no damage.

It was the lack of base hits and nothing else that beat the Cardinals in the series inaugural. Maybe they'll uncork some swats tomorrow when a right hander is due to work.

Many Cheer for Cards.

It was a wonderful crowd. And it was a St. Louis crowd, at least that is the way it seemed. They yelled for Cardinal basehits in each of the last frames, after New York had gone ahead. But those basehits had been parked somewhere between the Yankees' Stadium and the close of the 1926 National League campaign a week ago.

But it's a situation that is nothing new to the St. Louisans. They have faced handicaps all season and come through. And one game does not end the world's series, so the Cardinals are still in the thick of the fight. That despite the fact that the betting odds now will take a longer jump in favor of the New York entry.

Huggins relied on veterans in every position it was possible, so Hank Severeid, a member of the Browns in that hectic 1922 race when St. Louis lost the A. L. pennant by a single game, did the catching for the Yankees in the opener. The other available Yankee catcher, Pat Collins, is another ex-Brownie.

Cards Showed World Series Game Is Like Any Other to Them, Hornsby Declares

"We Don't Have to 'Come Back' in This Series, Because We Haven't Gone Anywhere to Come Back From."

By Rogers Hornsby,
As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—You can't win a ball game when you only make three hits off a pitcher, but we don't feel bad about this 2-1 defeat. I am highly pleased with the way my men played in their first game in a world series. There was no worry or cracking under the strain and it was one of the best pitched games and one of the best exhibitions of fielding you will ever see in any series.

Tommy Thevenow played a brilliant game at short, coming up with everything that was hit his way. His work stood out in the infield, while out in the outfield Hafey played a great game. He made several good catches and his throwing was excellent. His fine throw to Bell prevented the Yankees from scoring more than one run in that sixth inning when they bunched three singles with a sacrifice and an error.

Full Credit to Pennock.

Pennock pitched a great game. It was the first time we ever looked at his pitching and that, of course, had something to do with the way he bothered us. But you can't take any credit away from him. He pitched a great game. He held a hard-hitting team to three safeties and that's great pitching. His control was just about perfect and that was his strongest point. He put 'em just where he wanted and he found the spots where we couldn't do much with him. We hit a few balls hard, but not many, and we take our hats off to him. He was a great pitcher this afternoon.

There's no alibi for losing a three-hit game. Sherdel pitched a great game also, and we might have had played a few extra innings if it had not been for Sherry's wild streak in that first inning. After that, Sherdel pitched just as good a game as Pennock, though the Yanks did make a few more hits than we did. The trouble was that Sherry pitched too carefully in that first inning.

The thing that pleased me most was the way my team played, considering that it was our first shot at a world's series. Many persons expected our team to crack because we have so many young men, but we didn't.

I told the men to go out there and treat this like any other ball game. That's what it was and the way they came through makes me tickled to death. I believe that everybody who saw the game will admit that we looked as good as the Yankees. The New York team played a perfect game in the field. We were charged with one error, but even so we played them even, except for the run they pushed over on the three bases on balls in the first inning.

We showed our defensive power in the sixth inning when we held them to one run, despite their three hits, a sacrifice and an error, and that will give the men a lot of confidence. The first game doesn't mean anything. Look at the last world series. The Senators won it and then took two more of the first four and yet they lost. The year before the Senators appeared to be beaten but they came back.

We don't have to come back in this series, because we haven't gone anywhere to come back from. We just have lost one close game, but we have played so well that we are even more confident than ever.

Alexander will pitch for us tomorrow. We'll have the same team in the field. If any of the boys was nervous over the idea of playing in a world series, it's all gone now and we'll be right in there tomorrow, having our cuts at the ball. We don't care who pitches for the Yankees, as I said once before. We'll have to face all their pitchers and we don't care what order they work in. We don't care whether it's Hoyt or Shocker or somebody else. We've shown we can stand up and give them a battle in a world series and we all expect to win the title. We'll be out there hustling. But I'm proud of my team. It is a fine thing to see a team play so gamely in its first world series.

Pennock's Work Was Best Ever, Huggins Says

"So Far As Any Deep Strategic Moves Are Concerned, There Was None Needed."

By Miller Huggins,
As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—If there was any doubt of the fact that Herbie Pennock is the best left-handed pitcher in baseball, he certainly wrote the answer out there in the first game today. He allowed the Cards just three hits—and one of those a scratch affair. Better pitching has seldom ever been seen in any world's series and I doubt if there will be a more masterful exhibition again.

Herbie was able to do on every pitch the very thing he hoped to do. He put the ball where he wanted it and when he wanted it—which is the real mark of pitching greatness.

So far as any deep strategic moves are concerned, there was none in the game. The whole story was written in the pitching box and every move was an open book. And as I see it, there were no breaks except Pennock's wonderful control.

Of course, I was mighty proud with the result. Not so much with the score, as with the way my ball club performed. Let me say now that my kid combination of Koenig and Lazzeri looms up as one of the best in baseball, once the boys get their bearings.

The fact that we beat Sherdel, too, means a lot. Frankly, and I can say it now, I was rather doubtful whether we would be able to take the little left-hander's measure in that first game. He's the type of pitcher most apt to bother us and the fact that we beat him means a lot. I imagine it will take something out of the Cards. No club can see their ace beaten and laugh it off.

We've got an edge now and that means a lot in a short series. A one-game lead gives the club confidence, and it increases their fighting spirit.

I'll come back tomorrow with Urban Shocker, a right-hander.

Clubhouse Chatter Gives Full Credit to Pennock

"The Game Was All Pitching," Says Huggins—"Only Note Off Key Was Our Hitting and We'll Change That," Hornsby's Comment.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Scenes in the clubhouses of the New York Yankees, winners of a sensational world series opener, and the St. Louis Cardinals, glorious in defeat, were not unlike the anti-climax of dressing after a contest during the regular championship season. Some festive spirits among the Yankees exhibited a little enthusiasm immediately after leaving the field but this soon wore itself out and getting into street togs was made the special order.

Pennock, hero of the game, came out of the brilliant contest with no semblance of a sore arm but suffered a sore back from repeated slapping and thumping by his jubilant teammates.

Huggins Praises Pennock.

"What can I say, but point with pride to Herb," said Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees. "The game was all pitching. You can't take any credit away from a pitcher who holds a team like the Cardinals to three hits and one run. Sherdel pitched great ball, too. All in all, the pitchers were the whole game.

"There was no 'deep stuff' about it. The game just went along and played itself. We are right after 'em again tomorrow and I think after Pennock has set such a good example, Shocker will follow with some more fine pitching. Shocker is my choice for tomorrow's pitching.

"I would like to say something about the youngsters on my ball club. They were there under fire, and you know the world series makes a pretty hot fire. Koenig and Lazzeri didn't show any nervousness that I could see from the bench.

this first game is any indication of what we may expect in the others."

"We'll Get 'Em," Say Cards.

The Cardinals were cheerful enough in the face of a defeat that left them with nothing to be ashamed of. "We'll get 'em," chorused the Cardinals, willing to stop dressing to pose as prophets.

"We didn't hit," said Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinal chieftain. "Of course, they didn't hit much either, but they hit enough. We got some great pitching and the fielding was all right. The only note off the key was the hitting and we'll change that in the other games.

"The boys played just like it was a regular game of the season; if anything a little better than they did to win the pennant. Pennock pitched great ball against us but I liked the way Sherdel worked, too. He will give the Yankees a lot of trouble before the series is over.

"Jim (Bottomley) showed us the way, by getting two hits against left-hand pitching, but we couldn't keep up with him.

"We are NOT down-hearted.."

Hornsby said that he would not be able to decide his pitching selection until tomorrow.

"I think it will be Alex, (Grover Cleveland Alexander) or Reinhart. Either one should go well."

Manager Huggins has not mapped out his pitching program beyond tomorrow's game, but he said that he was not divulging any of his strategy when he announced that Pennock would be back on the mound after a few days' rest.

Only one Yankee issued a statement, in addition to the managerial utterance. "We have met the enemy and they are ours," was Joe Dugan's declaartion.

"A Lot of Pitching."—Ruth.

Babe Ruth said he would rather talk of Pennock's pitching than of home runs he did not get. "Pennock had everything a pitcher needs in a world series or any other game," said the Bambino, who scored the winning run. "Sherdel had something, too," he added.

Ruth said the thick haze which frequently obscured the ball from the gaze of the customers in the stands, did not place any serious handicap on the batsmen.

"We could see the ball," said the Babe, "not so well as if the sun had been shining, but plenty good enough.

"There was a lot of pitching in this ball game."

NOTRE DAME USES 60 MEN IN BEATING BELOIT, 77 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2.—Notre Dame romped over Beloit here this afternoon, 77 to 0. Coach Knute Rockne used 60 men during the play. It was the second largest score ever rolled up by Notre Dame in an opening game. The Vikings held Notre Dame last season to a 19 to 3 score. Two touchdowns were made from the kickoff and the others were the result of long runs.

and he held on for second place, beating out Texas for that portion of the purse. Pricemaker and Texas were both smartly backed, but Meddling Mattie did not lack for a following. Texas changed ownership in the race via the claiming route, E. Houghton securing her at a cost of $2,500.

Music Shop Surprises.

The fourth race at a mile and a sixteenth, bringing out a good band of platers and serving as the secondary feature for the afternoon resulted in an upset by the victory of the lightly weighted Music Shop, which led home Ocean Current and Water Flag. The latter pair were expected to have the race between them and for a considerable part of the early racing they dominated with Water Flag a good margin in advance. Music Shop began gaining on the leaders after half a mile and when straightened for the stretch, where she had saved much ground, she passed into the lead and drew away steadily in the last furlong. Ocean Current under hard urging just beating out Water Flag by a matter of inches, for second place. The other starters in the race were never strongly formidable.

A double was consummated for Mrs. L. M. Holmes, when Foolscap was the winner in the closing race. Meddling Mattie had previously accounted for her purse. The closing number found Foolscap the favored one. Foolscap was far out of it for half a mile, but he began moving up strong when straightened in the stretch and was up in the closing stride to wear down Piquot with latter beating out Reap for second place. The race was won in a heavy downpour and darkness.

Respess' Entry Wins.

J. B. Respess' colors were carried to their first victory in these parts when Great Sport cantered home a good margin before six others that started in the sixth race. Incidentally Great Sport was the shortest-priced favorite of the afternoon and those who backed him for second place were rewarded with better returns than those who had backed him to win.

Great Sport was much the best and he sprinted into a good lead in the first quarter, holding his rivals safe thereafter and winning well in hand from Magic Wand, with Blockhead following.

Night Shade, which found considerable support in the race, appeared to have broken down soon after the start and she trailed far out of it throughout the race.

The current meeting will last 25 racing days.

Horses have been arriving at the track for several weeks and the stable now houses several hundred of them. The Hawthorne track, near Chicago, closes today, and the horses sent from there, as well as other arrivals, are expected to bring the equine population of the park up to 700 by next week.

Director-General Matt J. Winn, who arrived from Louisville Thursday with Maurice C. Galvin, one of the park directors, completed final details for the meeting yesterday in consultation with C. Bruce Head, general manager.

Since the spring meeting transportation facilities have been improved and, besides a more rapid movement along the roads, motorists are assured more parking space. Ten thousand automobiles can be parked in the racing track lot.

MISS PEP AND MRS. WALLACE MEET TODAY IN DISTRICT GOLF FINAL

Former Audrey Faust Favored to Defeat Defending Champion

Country Club Representative Breaks Women's Course Record for 9 Holes With a 35, One Over Men's Par, and Regains Form in Short Game.

Her brilliant performance of yesterday when she scored a 35 on a new women's record on the outward trip made Mrs. Mahlon Wallace Jr. (the former Miss Audrey Faust) the favorite in the final match of the women's district championship tourney at Sunset Hill today with Miss Virginia Pep of Midland Valley, defending champion. The players will tee off at about 9:30 a. m.

Yesterday in the semifinals Mrs. Wallace swamped Mrs. I. S. Hynes, Glendale, 9 and 7, while Miss Pep defeated Miss Katherine Crunden, Country Club, 5 and 4.

Breaks 9-Hole Record.

Mrs. Wallace's 35 is just one stroke over men's par for the first nine holes and six strokes better than women's par.

She was the medalist of the tournament, scoring an 88 in the qualifying round in a heavy rain and although unsteady on her short game up to yesterday, in her match with Mrs. Hynes the winner was practically deadly in this department, approaching the form which she exhibited in the women's national event last year, when she defeated Virginia Wilson of Chicago, later conqueror of Glenna Collett in the twentieth green before going out.

For several seasons the most powerful driver in the district, Mrs. Wallace's improvement in putting and approaching gives her a decided edge in today's match over Miss Pep, who has been shooting steadily around 87.

No crushing was Mrs. Wallace's game yesterday that she was 8 up on Mrs. Hynes at the turn and terminated the match on the eleventh green. Mrs. Hynes will be remembered as the novice who won her way to the final round last year and gave Miss Pep a battle for her laurels.

Missed an Eagle.

Mrs. Wallace was at her best on the No. 8, where she nearly holed a 20-foot putt for a four, a man's birdie and an eagle on the women's par basis. She missed a 6-foot putt for a men's par four on No. 9.

Miss Pep took an early lead from Miss Crunden, winning the first two holes and rounding the turn three up. Her game was sound and steady and her score for the nine equaled women's par.

She took Nos. 10 and 11 to go five up, halved 12, dropped 13, but recovered and won the next hole and the match.

Approaching and putting contests will be held today. Besides the championship flight, Miss Isabel Fulton and Mrs. Kenneth Biddings will meet in the consolation finals.

Other results were:

Class A.

Mrs. George Gough defeated Miss Judith Spencer.

Class B.

Mrs. C. P. Daniels defeated Mrs. Paul Kendall.

Class A Consolation.

Mrs. G. A. Burns defeated Mrs. Harry Kuchins.

They Won Their Way to District Golf Final

MISS VIRGINIA PEP (left) and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace, Jr., who will meet this morning in the 18-hole final round, at Sunset Hill.

Mrs. Mix Shoots A Hole-in-One At Sunset Hill

MRS. GEORGE E. MIX, president of the Women's District Golf Association showed the organization the way it is done by making the second hole in one stroke in the course of the "eliminated" tournament in connection with the annual championship meet at Sunset Hill.

No. 2 is a 140-yard shot across a small lake. Mrs. Mix used a midiron. The eliminated event is open to players who have been put out in the course of play. Mrs. Mix was in the championship class.

A second hole in one here was turned in yesterday when Col. H. M. Dalton of New York playing the Algonquin course for the first time, realized the golfer's dream on the fifteenth hole. Col. Dalton was playing with J. W. Lawler, Edward Campbell and Edward Strassberger.

Cubs Defeat White Sox, 1-0, In City Series

National Leaguers Now Lead, 2 to 1—Game Is Pitchers' Battle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—In a magnificent pitching duel between Grover Jones and "Tommy" Thomas, the Cubs defeated the White Sox this afternoon in the third game of the city series, 1 to 0, and took the lead for the title, two games to one.

An error by Morehart in the fifth inning resulted in the only run of the game. After Cooney had singled with one down, Gonsett sent a hot grounder to the second sacker, who missed connection and the ball went into right field. Cooney, by a great sprint, reached third. Jones, with two out, won his own game by a timely single over second base, scoring.

The hit of Jones was the fifth off Thomas, who retired from the game via the pinch-hitting route in this frame. He did not permit a hit between the third and eighth, and the game might have gone on indefinitely had Hartnett's fatal bobble not given the North Siders an opening.

Jones played the most sensational game at second, accepting seven chances, six putouts and seven assists.

Toronto Leafs Beat Louisville 4th in Row, 4-3

Only Game to Be Played in Southern City, Needed for Title

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TORONTO, Ontario, Oct. 2.—The Leafs made it four straight in the little world series by defeating Louisville, 4 to 3, in another light hitting game here today, and need but one more victory to clinch the series with the American Association champions. The teams jump to Louisville for the fifth game tomorrow.

Doyle and Tincup, who provided a great pitching duel in the first game on Tuesday, started again today, but the former was driven from the mound in the fifth when he was hit for four singles, all that the Colonels secured in the game, which were turned into three runs. Fisher replaced him with two on base but stopped the rally.

In the following inning Fisher was inclined to be wild, but managed to come through safely. Tincup allowed only five hits, three in the second accounting for two runs, while Heath's home run inside the park evened the count in the fifth. In the sixth Schmehl doubled to start the inning and scored on sacrifices by Lawry and Carlyle.

Pants Team New Champion of the Muny Leagues

Beats Laclede, 8 to 4 in Final; Inter-City Game Postponed.

The dope was overturned yesterday at Fairground by the Pants team which beat the Lacledes in the final game of the championship series and won the city amateur baseball title. The score was 8 to 4.

The scheduled contest between the Pants and the Fenwicks, champions of Cincinnati, O., was postponed. The teams will play a double-header this afternoon, starting at 1:30 o'clock, weather permitting.

Johnny Hasmer proved a big factor in the Pants victory. Hasmer not only let the Lacledes down with six hits but batted out four hits in four times at bat, one a triple. Friesmeyer also got four in four trips to the plate, all singles.

Eddie Steinman, star Laclede hurler, was hit fairly hard and left the game in the seventh in favor of Redmon.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 2.—A hard-fighting Amherst line kept the Princeton eleven guessing for three periods of the opening game of the season in Palmer stadium today before the Tigers got under way and won in the final moments, 14 to 7.

"Cards Failed to Hit and Pennock Hurled in Great Form," Alexander Explains

"Sherdel Was Not Far Behind the Winner," Old Pete Says, in Declaring That the Club Needs No Alibis—Thinks Reinhart May Be Today's Twirler.

By Grover Cleveland Alexander.

(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—There is an old saying that the team that wins the first game of the world's series wins the championship. But that saying has been more or less shattered in the last two years. The Giants beat the Senators in the first game in 1924, but lost the championship. The Senators crushed the Pirates in the first game last year, but the Pittsburg team won the title after a gallant fight.

We lost the first game of the 1926 series to the Yankees today, but we're coming back stronger at the New York players in the second game tomorrow, and we're going back to St. Louis tomorrow night with an even break on the series. Hornsby has not decided upon his pitcher as yet, but I understand that either "Lefty" Reinhart or myself will work.

There are no alibis for today's defeat. We didn't hit and when you don't hit you cannot expect to win. Pennock pitched a great game, and no credit can be taken away from him for his victory. But Sherdel was not far behind.

It was just a case of "Little Bill" trying too hard in that first inning and failing to get the ball over the plate.

Advantage With Pitchers.

But the Yankees didn't trouble him much after that first inning. The little southpaw worked smoothly after his bad start and the next time that he faces the Yankees he will walk off the field with a victory instead o fa deefat. Not one of the six hits that the Yankees made off him was good for more than a base. He was a bit unlucky in having two hits and a sacrifice come in the sixth inning.

It was a good day for pitchers, for the sky was hazy and the day was dark. Under these conditions, the pitchers held a slight advantage over the batters and there were only nine hits made during the day—six for the Yankees and three for the Cardinals.

Both Pennock and Sherdel had plenty of speed and mixed their fast ball with a sharp-breaking curve.

Showing Suits Team.

Hornsby, of course, was a bit disapopinted at our failure to hit Pennock. But he is not discouraged and neither is any other player on the club. We fought hard for victory and lost. But we were not disgraced in losing. As a matter of fact, everybody was satisfied with the showing that we made against the Yankees and we are confident that we'll outplay the American League champions during the remainder of the series.

Our fielding was good and so was the pitching. The hitting will improve, for we have a gerat hitting club. As I expected, Jim Bottomley made two of the three hits off Pennock. "Sunny Jim" is going to get many more hits before the series is over, for he is now at his best.

Hornsby and Bell probably will start hitting tomorrow. And when these players start hitting, then the other fellow has a hard time keeping the Cardinals away from the plate. O'Farrell also is going to come through with some healthy hitting before the series comes to an end.

While there was not much hitting, it was a good fielding game. Koenig and Thevenow played a great game at shortstop, while Hornsby made a wonderful play on Combs' grounder in the seventh inning. Taken all and all, the teams looked evenly matched and as I have said previously, the series is going to be a hard-fought ons.

BUBBLES HARGRAVE IS OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—Eugene F. Hargrave, Cincinnati National catcher, was operated on at a hospital here today for appendicitis. Surgeons announced he had undergone the ordeal successfully and that he would recover in a few weeks.

Tarrasfoot Is Victor in Match Race at Madison

4000 Brave Bad Weather to Attend Dog Race Program.

The second of the series of match races to determine the futurity champion of the Madison Kennel Club meeting was won by Tarrasfoot last night. Only three dogs started, Actor Boy finishing second 10 lengths behind the winner, and Little John finishing third. Tarrasfoot will oppose Suir Side in the final of the match series, next Tuesday evening.

A crowd of 4000 attended in spite of bad weather. The track was sloppy.

The best race of the regular program, the sixth, was won by Chantjcleer which just lasted to beat the fast moving Red Juggler by the margin of a nose. Mysterious Stranger was third.

For the most part, favorites ran to form. The only real upset was in the final event, a hurdle race in which Panaroma surprised by finishing second. A place ticket on him paid $26.60. Shenandoah, a comparative outsider, won.

Tunney Says He Plans to Startle the Boxing World

Not Yet Ready to Divulge His Intentions—Advises American Youth.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—Gene Tunney, recently crowned heavyweight champion of the world through his defeat of Jack Dempsey, today revisited Philadelphia and the sesquicentennial stadium scene of his triumph. He came to receive from Mayor Kendrick a diamond-studded medal, symbolic of the boxing championship and to greet thousands of children invited to the stadium to meet him.

The champion, who now is a Lieutenant in the Marine Reserve Corps, entered the big bowl escorted by detachments of marines and sailors, Mayor Kendrick and prominent city officials and friends.

Tunney, in a brief talk, said he was glad to get back to the scene of his greatest victory. "And I will feel well repaid," he said, "if I can get across to the youth of America the importance of good health and the method by which it may be obtained.

"No matter what you start to do, the principal thing is to do it. See that you are in good health; take pride in your body and your mind and give a little thought to your soul. Have the courage to stay away from temptation. My message to you is to caution you to adopt this slogan: 'The will to win—and stick to it.' If you do that you will succeed."

During a talk with newspaper men, Tunney said:

"The time has come when I must think of my future livelihood. I am making plans which I cannot divulge just yet, but they will startle the boxing world when they become known. I am planning something that no other champion has ever done. It is going to be a great help to the boxing game."

ROOSEVELT, PRINCIPIA IN SCORELESS GAME

Roosevelt High and Principia Academy played a scoreless game yesterday at Roosevelt Field, the game being called in the third quarter because of a severe rainstorm.

Principia got within 25 yards of Roosevelt's goal in the first quarter but Richardson's attempt at field goal failed and a Principia back later fumbled when within scoring distance. The second quarter was chiefly a punting duel and Roosevelt had the edge in the third period prior to the storm.

"Green" Billiken Eleven Defeats Springfield, 12-0, On a Muddy Gridiron

Coach Mathews' Rookies Show Unlooked-For Strength on Both Offense and Defense and Football Hopes Rise.

The St. Louis University football eleven which defeated the Springfield Teachers 12-0 yesterday afternoon on the rain-soaked university athletic field surprised even ardent Billiken followers with a display of steadiness throughout the game which was entirely free from the expected loose work of Coach Mathews' first Billiken squad. Backfield and line executed play after play with the precision of a veteran machine.

Starting shortly after the kickoff a Billiken line offensive sent the ball steadily toward the Teachers' goal line. The forward wall functioned smoothly before the thrusts of Denvir, Dirnberger, Kearns, sophomore backs, and Jordan, and the backs found the holes in the Teachers' defense wide open.

Unexpected Strength.

Varying his straight football with occasional passes, Mathews demonstrated that he has developed a weapon which may prove his long slit in later contests when more formidable opponents, such as Marquette and Boston College, are to call on the Billikens. Jordan's flips to the backs and ends were responsible for considerable yardage.

The Teachers, who brought a veteran combination to the fray, failed utterly in the face of the St. Louis rushes. They appeared outweighed and were pushed back or taken out of the path of nearly every play.

Joe Cherry, left halfback for the visitors, outpointed Jordan throughout on the exchange of punts, giving the visitors their only advantage. Cherry also executed the majority of the best plays shown by the visitors and backed his line with considerable effectiveness on secondary defense.

Bob Denvir Stars.

The work of right-half Bob Denvir, newly developed backfield star on the Mathews squad, stood out clearly by reason of several nice runs. Dirnberger and Kearns also contributed heavily to the gains, while Kennedy, sent in for Kearns, scored the companion touchdown to the one Denvir made in the first quarter.

Loose passing by both elevens slowed up the third quarter of the contest in the only portion of the playing time which dragged. At this point interceptions were numerous and little ground was gained, but steady line-pounding and a brilliant 30-yard run by Kearns brought the ball into scoring position just as the rain swept the field, driving all spectators to cover.

Opening Game Sidelights

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The opening game crowd included a host of notable figures in all walks of life. Tex Rickard, recuperating from staging his record-breaking boxing spectacle, the Dempsey-Tunney fight, was there, and so was Charles Pyle, accompanied by the aces of his professional tennis troupe, Suzanne Lenglen, and Vincent Richards.

Mlle. Lenglen, attired in a stylish beige suit, took a keen interest in her first view of American baseball. She admitted afterward is was "so interesting" but also a bit "complicated."

The big crowd took the battle calmly. It came prepared for thrills but got few, if any, out of the play. There was more cheering for Babe Ruth during batting practice than there was during the game itself. There were boos, too, in the first frame, when Sherdel walked Ruth on four straight balls.

Ruth and Hornsby were the favored idols of the crowd, but the Babe was the only one who gave the fans anything to cheer about. Both were accorded ovations on their first trips to the plate, but Ruth's single, vital though it was, was the best either batting star could do in response to appeals to "knock it out of the park."

Manager Miller Huggins was not called on to do much master-minding, except for a hint here and there to Pennock and, an order for Meusel to sacrifice in the sixth inning. This old-fashioned strategy was successful, for the Babe trotted over with the winning run a moment later on Gehrig's hit.

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, Cardinal first sacker, was the only player to get more than one safe hit. His two safe blows gave him a batting average of .500. Ruth hit .333.

Hornsby was rewarded with a good break after he had made a sensational stop in the seventh inning. He slipped as he threw to first on a ball from Combs' bat. The Card manager released the ball before he intended to throw but it bounded into Bottomley's hands on a perfect hop.

University City Game.

The Hubs and Townsends are scheduled to play today for the second half championship of the University City Municipal League at Heman Park, 7200 Olive Street road. Peeples will hurl for the Hubs and Heist or Thym for the Townsends. The winner will meet the Rosegrants, first half winners, for the season pennant.

CATALAN, IN REVERSAL OF FORM, CAPTURES CONTINENTAL HANDICA

SHOWS HEELS TO HIGH STAR AND SARAZEN

Latter Horse Fails to Show Class at Jamaica Feature; Green Tree Stable Takes Baldwin Event.

By G. F. T. Ryall.

JAMAICA, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Catalan, a 5-year-old horse by Fair Play-Catalpa, which ran in the colors of the Bedford Farm Stable, turned what might be termed a form flip flop in the ninth running of the Continental Handicap at one mile and a sixteenth, for 3-year-olds and upward at Jamaica this afternoon.

Following the pace under a well judged ride by Laverne Fator, he beat High Star, Sarazen, Dazzler, Peanuts and the Ziegler pair, Gamble and Needle Gun. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:44.

At Aqueduct last week Catalan was beaten by High Star and before that he finished fourth to Peanuts in the little colt's world's record mile and a furlong. However, this afternoon he had fourteen pounds the better of the weights over High Star and seven over Peanuts, and with Fator in the saddle it was not surprising that he was well backed to win.

Sarazen Shows Badly.

Sarazen, which made the running in the Havre De Grace handicap, won by Crusader a week ago, decidedly was not the Sarazen of other years. Public favorite because most everybody knew that if he would run to his best form he would breeze to this field, he was never close. He broke well enough from the rail position but High Star outran him to the clubhouse turn and then O'Donnell was content to rate him third to High Star and Dazzler. Fator was away well with Catalan and slowly improving his position till the field was half way up the back stretch, made his move approaching the far turn.

In spite of the lure of the opening of the world's series between the Yankees and the Cardinals at Yankee Stadium, about the usual size Saturday crowd turned out at Jamaica. The weather was threatening all afternoon, and just before the running of the second race a light drizzle fell. However, the half holiday crowd did not mind that, it was so busy in its quest for winners.

Clarence Turner kicked Leatherwood home in front of a big field of platers in the claiming event at six furlongs. Julie showed something of her old speed, taking the track and making the running to the stretch but Leatherwood came up fast on the outside and passed her there and then Nightmarch closed with a rash in the last furlong to take the place.

After the race one of the patrol Judges reported interference on the part of Turner when he went up on the outside, but upon investigation the placings were allowed to stand.

Anderson Clears Up.

Fatty Anderson and his friends and associates got back all the money they lost over Carlaris on Friday and a lot more when Just Folks won the mile and seventy yards event for platers by a head from Park Hill. Philpot, whose riding has been nothing to write home about brought Andy Schutlinger's color bearer up with a rush on the rail in the last furlong to nip the Zeus gelding which made most of the running. Reveillon closed fast to be third. Old High Commander showed a lot of speed at the break and going to front led to the five furlongs pole where his unsound underpining failed him and he dropped back and out of it. He pulled up quite lame.

Th Green Tree Stables Lodina and Saxon ran one, two in the Baldwin Handicap, for 2-year-olds, at five and a half furlongs, which was second on the card, while the Rancocas Stable's Cheops, the favorite, was third. The last named, however, probably was the best horse of the stx that went to the post. While it was his first start since the middle of the Saratoga meeting, he was credited with some fast trials under the watch at Belmont Park, and inasmuch as Sam Hildreth seldom shoots for a stake, however small, with a horse that is not thoroughly fit, the son of John P. Grier was made favorite.

Cheops Shuffled Back.

When the barrier went up Cheops, on the rail, failed to show speed enough to hold his position and was quickly shuffled back to last. Lodina, however, breaking fast, led Found One around the two turns. Stepping the first quarter in 23 seconds and the half in 46. By this time Found One had had enough of it and Saxon, saving ground on the rail, closed under Maiben's strong handling. Fator finally got Cheops in his strides and taking the overland, put the colt to a drive. He closed a lot of ground from the eighth pole home, but really never threatened the Green Tree pair, which finished heads apart. The time for the five and a half furlongs was :15 2-5,, and the race was worth $3950 to the winner.

MISSOURI AND TULANE STRUGGLE IN MUD TO A SCORELESS TIE

New Stadium Dedicated In Driving Rain; Game Becomes Punting Duel

Southern Champions Approach to Within 12 Yards of Tigers' Goal Line—Fumbles and Blocked Kicks Numerous.

By the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Oct. 2.—Missouri and Tulane, deadlocked last year at New Orleans, 6 and 6, battled to a second tie, 0 and 0 as the chief feature of the formal opening of the University of Missouri's new Memorial Stadium here this afternoon.

Playing upon a field waterlogged by day after day of pouring rain, neither team was able to launch an attack which could carry real danger to its opponent. After the first five minutes of play it was certain that only a break could send either eleven across the goal line.

Play was in this first five minutes as Missouri staged a driving offensive with Clark, O'Sullivan and Lucas driving through the Green Wave forward wall for two successive first downs after the kickoff which put the ball into Tulane territory.

But the waterlogged field was a death trap for the Bengals and as their legs grew weary of pulling their feet from the soggy gridiron they slackened the attack to punt. The remainder of the quarter was a punting duel, with the ball kept mostly in the territory defended by the Southerners.

Fumbles Puts Line in Danger.

A fumble gave Missouri food for attack early in the second quarter, when a Missouri fumble resulted apparently from missed signals sent the ball kiting in the air to Wilson to fall upon it. A 15-yard gain and a 15-yard penalty for Missouri put the Greenies on the Tiger 20-yard line. Tulane succeeded to the 12-yard line and then two yards to go on the fourth down, tried a pass, which was unsuccessful, and the Bengals took the ball on downs. A punting duel followed for the remainder of the quarter.

Newly Made Field.

The Tigers were defending the south goal in the third quarter, and at the end of the field, which was not used until a few hours before the game, was more than ankle deep in mud, presenting the same handicap to the Missouri punters that the visitors had suffered earlier in the game.

Maurice Morgan booted 50 yards from over the Missouri goal, while Lucas, booting for Missouri, was hard pressed to kick out of danger from the mudhole in which he stood. The quarter ended with a fumble finally blocked kick that left Tulane in possession of the ball on Missouri's 25-yard line. With a slippery kicking surface in the final period, however, the Tigers carried the fight back to the New Orleans goal, though both continually resorted to the kicking game, and neither was able to gain consistently through scrimmage.

Thousands of Ticket Holders Fail to Attend.

The heavy rain not only made inroads into the offensive and defensive powers of both teams, but fell heavily into the crowd which failed to have seen the intersectional battle between the champions of the Missouri Valley and the title holders of the Southern Conference. Thousands who had purchased tickets were unable to reach Columbia because of the condition of the roads, and while some came at the last minute on special trains, the total attendance was probably not more than half what it would have been had the weather gods smiled. A crowd of perhaps 8000 witnessed the contest, though absence of turnstiles and the ragged way in which the crowd draped itself around the rain-soaked stands made an accurate estimate impossible.

Ceremonies incident to the opening of the stadium were cut to the minimum because of weather conditions. There was a flag-raising, while the university band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and cannon boomed. Before the game and between the halves President A. B. Dinwiddie of Tulane and Mrs. Harvey Wilson, bride of the captain of the Green wave received floral tributes.

There were about 7000 persons present.

Granddad Wins Closing Feature At Hawthorne

Finnerty's Excellent Riding Keeps Heaton Horse Going Just Long Enough.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—The Hawthorne race meeting of 18 days came to a close this afternoon before a banner attendance. The races were again contested over a muddy track.

Topping the program was the P. J. Carr Handicap, for 3-year-olds and up, over a mile and a sixteenth, with a $2500 purse, in addition to a silver trophy. Overnight entries called for 10 starters in the event, but by post time scratches had curtailed the field to seven starters, and as the horses were paraded to the post a heavy rain fell on the course.

W. S. Heaton's Granddad was the winner when Finnerty outrode the diminutive J. Morar, after the latter drew up to the leader with Manzana menacingly, entering the stretch, and looked an apparent winner. Finnerty had rushed Granddad into a long lead early, but the gelding began to tire nearing the turn for home. Then by driving and kicking and riding with utmost alacrity, his rider managed to keep him going just long enough to gain the decision by a head from Manzana at the wire. The latter was coupled in the betting with Blue Fish, the J. C. McGill entry, and the pair accounted for place and show. The winner was favorite.

The public quest for winners was further augmented with the success of the heavily backed Porto de Oro, which triumphed over a fair band of sprinters at three-quarters in the third event. May Buddy, helped by the going, closed a great gap in the last quarter mile to get up for second place. Judge Dailey showed a creditable race when he took the show position.

Corbett Sues Sesqui Board

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, today brought suit against the Sesquicentennial Exhibition Association and the city of Philadelphia for breach of contract. Corbett claims he had a contract to hold all boxing bouts at the sesquicentennial stadium, where the Dempsey-Tunney championship fight was held, and that it was broken when the recent bout was put on there. No statement of amount of damages asked was filed, but according to his attorney it will be between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

MAROONS PULL SURPRISE BY AERIAL PLAYS

Stagg's Team's Forward Passing and Drop-Kicking Wins Close Battle From Florida Rivals.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Coach Alonzo A. Stagg displayed to 40,000 spectators that his Maroons could play open football, unprecedented in University of Chicago football history, when his charges took the air to defeat the University of Florida today, 12 to 6.

The Gators lost their own game when the Maroons opened up with a passing attack which kept the Southerners on the defensive. Florida battled gallantly against the odds of weight and an early Chicago lead, acquired on a long pass. They tied the score and forced the Maroons to dropkick twice for their winning points.

Abandoning from the start the straight football for which Stagg is widely known, the Maroons mixed assaults on the line end with an aerial attack. The Maroons won on the dropkick of S. Rouse, left half, who booted the two deciding field goals. Capt. Marks threw most of the Maroon passes.

The passing and punting of Bishop constituted the backbone of Coach Sebring's offense, with Oosterhoudt and Stanley taking most of the passes. The Southerners suffered considerably in the opening period from penalties occasioned by their backfield.

Lineup and summaries:

Chicago.		Florida.
Stewart	Left guard	Wolff
Saara (C.)	Center	K. Rouse
Green	Right guard	Clark
Petronis	Right tackle	Wiesiow
Stanley	Right end	Spence
Walker	Quarterback	McDonough
Livingston	Left halfback	K. Rouse
Ihrig	Right halfback	Anderson
Bishop	Fullback	Marks (C.)

Score by periods:

Florida	6	0	0	0	6
Chicago	6	3	3	0	12

Florida scoring: Touchdowns—Bishop. Chicago scoring: Touchdown Apitz. Goals from field by Chicago, Rouse, 2. Referee—Young, Illinois Wesleyan. Umpire—Mumma, West Point. Field Judge—Ray. Head linesman—Keithley, Nebraska. Time of periods, 15m.

Purple Smothers S. Dakota.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Northwestern University uncovered a wealth of backfield brilliance today and celebrated occupancy of its new stadium by romping over the University of South Dakota, 34 to 0.

Led by Capt. "Moon" Baker, Gustafson and Schumacher, the Wildcats scored twice in each of the first two periods and again in the fourth quarter, meanwhile holding the Coyotes to a pair of first downs.

Michigan 42; Sooner Aggies 3.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 2.—Wavering only in parts of the final two periods when a flood of substitutions weakened its forward wall, the University of Michigan, Big Ten champions, defeated the Oklahoma Aggies, 42 to 3, in the Ferry Field football inaugural today. Friedman's passing and open field running, Oosterbaan's smart defensive and offensive play and Molenbach's game smashing stood out.

Indiana 31; Depauw 7.

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 2.—The Indiana University football team, lent new energy by their new coach, H. O. (Pat) Page, uncovered an eleven of power in defeating Depauw in the opening game of the Crimson season, 31 to 7. Indiana was held scoreless in the opening quarter but scored a pair of touchdowns in the second period, added another in the third and pushed over two counters in the final period.

Ohio State Shows Real Scoring Punch.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—Exhibiting more drive than any Ohio State team has shown in five years, Ohio State today in the opening game of the season piled up a 40 to 14 score on Wittenberg. A string of Ohio State substitutes in the last period failed to hold the Lutherans, who scored two touchdowns in that frame and brought the first string Buckeyes scampering to the rescue.

Bryon Eby, Chillicothe, sophomore halfback, surprised the crowd of 23,000 fans by his unexpected brilliancy at running ends. In 13 tries from scrimmage he gained 101 yards and returned a punt 42 yards.

Illinois Starts Early and Beats Coe, 27-0.

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 2.—Coach Robert Zuppke's Indians downed Coe to the tune of 27 to 0 today in a game that showed the Illini lineup to be strong, while the passing of both teams was weak. Time and again Coe opened up a barrage of forward passing but at no time seriously endangered the Illinois goal.

Illinois got away to an early start when, after a series of end runs and line plunges by Daugherty, Stewart and Peters, Stewart captured the ball for the first touchdown within the first four minutes of play. Illinois again marched down the field late in the first quarter behind a strong interference to score the second touchdown. Peters kicked both goals, jumping the score to 14-0 at the end of the quarter.

England Wins at Rugby.

WIGAN, England, Oct. 2. — England won the first rugby test match against the New Zealand All-Blacks here today, 28 to 20.

THE HUNTING - - CALL - -

By ALEC MERMOD

JUST a short time ago the duck hunters were praying for rain, now we are having too much water. All the duck lakes and ponds are full and overflowing, and the bars in both rivers are under water, but, cheer up, there is plenty of time for the water to subside before the flight is on.

A number of hunters went out last Sunday and some met with fair success.

There has been a touch of cold weather in the North, but not enough to really start the flight.

This rain has not been to the liking of the fishermen who have been waiting for the cool fall days to take their annual float. Just before the rains started a party camped on the Huzzah brought out splendid catch of small mouth.

The Imported Pheasant.

There has been much talk for and against the importation of these beautiful birds and distributing them over a quail country.

Personally, I think it a mistake to introduce this bird in a country that is not adapted to the quail and where this little brown beauty thrives, for notwithstanding arguments to the contrary, I believe that pheasants destroy many nests of both quail and prairie chicken.

If the time and money spent propagating quail, in a quail country that we spend on pheasant raising were devoted to quail sportsmen would be better off.

Illinois has for several years been distributing pheasants throughout the State, and after a number of years an open season of five days was allowed, and sportsmen were delighted with the idea of shooting this wonderful (?) bird, only to be disappointed.

Early Season Failure.

At first the season opened Sept. 1 and closed Sept. 5, and as a rule this time of the year is quite hot, much too hot to work a dog with any satisfaction as well as being very uncomfortable for the shooter.

At best the pheasant does not lie well to the dog, and is apt to flush wild, and after he is once flushed it's almost impossible to raise him again, so taking it altogether, I didn't care a whole lot about pheasant shooting.

After a few years farmers and hunters began to complain about the scarcity of quail in localities where the pheasant had been planted. While there were no great number of pheasant killed during the open season, a great many were killed during the quail season, for it was no uncommon thing to flush a pheasant while hunting quail, and to most the temptation to take a shot at this big bird rising in front of a gunner was too great to resist.

He Bags One, at Least.

For several years I went each opening day with a friend to a certain locality where pheasants were fairly plentiful, but each year this chap failed to get his bird, either failed to get a shot or missed those he had. Once he did knock a bird down, but we failed to retrieve him.

At last (and it was the last season we shot together), we were in this same part of the country shooting quail, had a covey scattered in some heavy clover just at the edge of town, when up jumped a cock pheasant about 20 yards from my partner. A friend who was with us called, "Don't shoot," but it was too late. Tom had brought the bird to bag and remarked, "I knew, if I kept coming down here often enough, I would finally kill a pheasant."

Now the season opens Nov. 10 and closes Nov. 15, which is a great deal better, but even now with this change of dates the shooting is not attractive and very few go out specially for pheasants.

Some of Disadvantages.

In the first place, they are not plentiful enough to afford enough thrills, they do not lie for the dog, and if you do happen to bag one, if he is an old one, he is too tough to eat.

Clover fields seem to be a favorite haunt for this bird, though when quail shooting one is apt to run into him any place; during the heat of the day one is apt to be found along the bushy banks of a stream.

If the hunter is lucky enough to get a shot and unless he is sure he has killed his bird, he had better fire another load before the bird hits the ground, for if only winged, it's a 20-to-1 shot that he won't bring the bird to bag, for they can outrun a greyhound and can hide in cover that a hunter would not think could cover a sparrow. The law prevents the killing of more than two a day, so be careful and don't kill any hens.

A Solitary Bird.

The pheasant seems to be a solitary sort of chap and a pair is seldom found together. If the hunter is lucky enough to bag a cock, he should examine his spurs and if they are longer than half an inch he will be tough and should be baked slowly and basted often. The young birds are splendid, either broiled or roasted in a hot oven.

Amateur Training No. 4.

If the puppy now shows any inclination to hunt, his master may begin his home training. He must now cease to play and romp with him, that is provided he has been doing what so many do, play with a puppy 'till he thinks that's all there is to life.

In training a dog use as few words as possible, a single word is sufficient, such as "come." Don't say "come here." Many trainers use a force collar when teaching a dog to come in, but I think this is unnecessary except in extreme cases.

The puppy will learn to "come" very quickly, for he has learned to love you by this time and is always willing to come to you.

The next in order is to teach him to drop at the word, use one word, drop, down or charge, just as you choose.

This lesson will require some force as well as patience.

Supply yourself with a choke collar and an eight-foot lead, so that you can always keep the puppy with you, as he is very apt to want to run away just as soon as real discipline starts.

Yale Smothers Boston U.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 2.—Yale opened its fifty-fourth football season today by smothering Boston University, 51 to 0. The Yale coaches sent more than two complete teams into the game, using 29 men. The first varsity played only the first half and left the game with the count standing 21 to 0.

Yale launched an aerial attack that gained much ground and accounted for some of the touchdowns. Eight passes were completed by the Elis for a total gain of 178 yards.

Clayton Passes Beat Maplewood

Victors Roll Up Topheavy Score of 24 to 0.

In the opening county high school football league game Clayton walloped Maplewood, 24 to 0, on the Maplewood field yesterday afternoon.

In a non-league contest Kirkwood lost to the Flat River (Mo.) eleven 7 to 0, yesterday on the county school's campus.

Despite the fact that the Maplewood field was treacherous because of the heavy rains, Clayton forward-passed its way to victory, managing to score in every quarter. Quarterback Harold McGrath proved the backbone of the winning team's aerial attack, being on the sending end of several long gains. Captain Noyes Bartholomew proved the star for Maplewood.

Flat River blocked a punt in the second quarter to make the only touchdown of the afternoon. A place-kick added the extra point and in the second half the two elevens wallowed evenly in the morass.

Washington to Battle Ames Here Tomorrow

Only Athletic Event of the Day to Entertain Out-of-Town Crowd.

The opening Missouri Valley conference game between Washington University and Ames (Iowa State) which was postponed from Saturday because of bad weather will be played off tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 p. m., at Francis Field. The postponement has given the Bear squad time to recover from injuries through a week of strenuous practice.

The playing field has been newly sodded and the recent downpours have made the going unsteady, but it is hoped the field will dry out by tomorrow. Monday will be a sort of holiday for those interested in the battle of the Cardinals with the New York Yankees for the world's baseball championship, as the local team will return Monday and be feted by St. Louis. The only big athletic event of the afternoon will be the Washington-Ames battle.

Liniment and bandages have been used copiously at the Francis Gym lately, and there is not one of Coach Bob Higgins' squad who has not been bruised in the struggle by the younger men to displace the veterans. Perhaps the most interesting of these competitions is the three-cornered battle between Walter Vesper, Walter Brown and Choice Elliott for the center position. Vesper is a veteran from last year, but he has weakened his chance for the job by his poor passing in practice. Elliott and Brown need experience to make either of them qualified for the pivot position.

Capable substitutes will help Higgins this year, the lack of which handicapped the Washington eleven last season. Competition has proved the spice of life for the Bears, and the local fans are counting on Washington to do better this year than it has in recent seasons.

All-Star Soccer Team Will Hold Practice Today

To Meet Spartas in Prague Oct. 17; Muny League Will Open on Same Date.

The all-star team which will represent St. Louis against the Sparta club of Prague in an exhibition soccer game at Sportsman's Park Oct. 17 will practice at Fairground Park this morning. Billy Foley, manager of the picked squad, has announced that his players will be in uniform and two regular halves of 45 minutes each will be played.

English Star to Play Here.

Gordon G. Milnes, a young Englishman who starred as a soccer player with an English university team, arrived in St. Louis last week and signed a contract to play with the Ben Millers of the professional league. He has performed at inside left but will probably be tried at center halfback.

The new man is a son of Fred Milnes, one of England's greatest players of a score of years ago. Milnes senior managed and captained the Pilgrim team, which played here in 1904 and 1909.

A valuable acquisition to the Municipal Soccer League is the Peoples Motorbus team. There are several Englishmen employed by the concern and among them are some fair football players.

The failure of the Fairmount Democrats to attend the first meeting of the Municipal Soccer League last Friday evening may indicate that the club backer, Jean Gauldoni, has retired from the game after having won the championship. It is possible that he will be induced to reconsider. Thirty-two teams were represented at Friday's meeting, indicating that last year's total of 42 teams will be easily surpassed.

Webster Eleven Defeats Central

Coach Roberts' County Gridiron Team Blanks City Rivals by a Score of 14-0.

A green Central High School team lost to Webster Groves High, yesterday afternoon, 14 to 0, on the county team's grounds. The game showed that Coach Walker's biggest problem is the development of brain and not brawn if the Red and Black are to be in the running of the city high school race. The right play seemed to be selected invariably at the wrong time.

Webster's first score was the result of a blocked Central punt which gave the ball to the county team. Sample, on the 20-yard line on wide end run advanced the pigskin to Central's six-yard mark. A short pass, Greene to Sample, gave the touchdown. A bad pass robbed Webster of the extra point.

In the following quarter Webster blocked another punt and Hunt fell on the ball behind Central's goal for the second tally.

WOMAN'S NATIONAL GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP GOES TO MRS. STETSON throne of youthful Glenna Collett.

Standing off a brave rally by her opponent on the last nine holes, she defeated Mrs. Wright D. Goss Jr. of Short Hills, N. J., in the final round of the women's national championship over the links of the Merion Cricket club, 3 up and one to play.

By her unexpected triumph, the climax of a tournament which had been rocked from the start by a series of startling upsets, Mrs. Stetson became the fifth matron to take up the sceptre in the 32 years' history of the event. Mrs. Goss had ruled a strong favorite on the basis of her fine medal scores in the previous match play rounds, but in the crucial test today her putter failed her, and Mrs. Stetson was required to play only safe, conservative golf to score her victory.

Mrs. Goss showed only brief flashes of her best form. Close to par figures in all her other matches after qualifying with an 85, the New Jersey player today never seemed sure of herself, playing the morning round in a ragged 92 which found her trailing by three holes at the intermission—a handicap she was never able to surmount.

Critics Passed Her By.

Mrs. Stetson's victory completes an outdoor season which has few parallels for dramatic dethronement of champions and unexpected defeats for favorites. Although she held a high place among golfers in the Philadelphia district, the new champion was given scant consideration by critics in the pre-tournament forecasts. But while golfdom was listening for the knocks of a host of youthful contenders on the throne room door, a woman who had not been in the quest for six years came through one of the strongest fields that ever gathered for the event to snatch up the fallen mantle of the former Providence titleholder.

Defeat virtually came to Mrs. Goss in the morning round, when she took no less than 44 puts on the 18 greens. On six she required three strokes to hole out, while on a seventh she needed four. Later in the match she fas able to bring the truant club under better control, but Mrs. Stetson, realizing that she needed only to save her comfortable lead, pjlayed safely and carefully through Merion's maze of traps to hold her margin to the end.

Trail of Missed Putts.

Over the first nine holes, Mrs. Goss left a trail of missed putts which should have given her many a win where she had to accept a half. She began on the first green with three putts to lose the hole after Mrs. Stetson had given her an opening by topping her tee shot, and three putts almost became the rule rather than the exception thereafter.

One down at the start, when she would have been out in front with the sound golf she had hitherto played at Marion, the New Jersey player was able to draw even at the fifth after both had visited the brook on their drives to play the par five hole poorly in a six and seven.

Mrs. Goss dubbed two shots to lose the next hole, escaped with a half after taking four putts at the seventh and then wound up the outward nine with three more putts to lose the ninth and become one down. This lead Mrs. Goss never overcame during the remainder of the round. Poor work on the greens cost her the tenth, twelfth and fifteenth holes.

Accuracy Wins Day.

Mrs. Stetson, whose success lay inmasterful use of her iron clubs, was content to be out-driven by from 10 to 30 yards on nearly every hole, for she made up in accuracy and steadiness what she lacked in power off the tee. Mrs. Goss went forth to the afternoon test, but the boldness of her stroking, frequently taking her into trouble, failed to break down the short but safe game of the Philadelphia woman, who increased her advantage to fiveup at the twenty-eighth.

Here the New Jersey woman made her last stand, winning three of the next four holes. Then Mrs. Stetson took command agaain to close with a win on the thirty-fifth green for her victory.

MRS. STETSON HAS DAUGHTER, 19, AND ANOTHER OF 17

By the Associated Press.

HAVERFORD, Pa., Oct. 2.—Mrs. G. Henry Stetson of Philadelphia, new women's national golf champion, did not start playing golf until the eldest of her two daughters was 7 years old.

In the dozen years that have elapsed since then, although the schooling and career of these two daughters kept her out of all but two national tournaments, her game became steadily stronger, and it was ready when, the daughters grown, she had the chance to enter again this year.

Mrs. Stetson led Glenna Collett in the three-day medal play Eastern championship at Philmont, Pa., early this season in her outstanding achievement before this tournament. Last year she won the Buffalo invitation over a fine field.

Her last start in the national championship was in 1919, when she went to the third round and was eliminated by Mrs. Wilbert Fraser, then Alexa Stirling.

In 1924 she won the Philadelphia championship for the first time, defeating Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, thrice the national champion, in the final round.

Her two daughters, Elizabeth, 19, and Anne, 17, both play golf—"a little"—said their mother.

Style Should Be Object of Every Tennis Player, Says Helen Wills

It Is Epression of Individuals Personality, a Beautiful Thing to Watch and a Pleasure to Player.

Form Not Dogmatic but Is Guide to Correct Footwork, Body Position and Racquet Grip.

By Helen Wills.

(Copyright, 1926.)

THE California State Tournament which is held each year at the Berkeley Tennis Club, my home club, has just been finished. An interesting feature of this tournament is that there are a number of junior events held in connection with the senior play.

The singles and doubles for girls and boys call forth all the best young players in San Francisco, Berkeley, and in other towns about the Bay, and some of the entrants come from much farther away. William Fuller has done much to stimulate interest among the junior tennis players in California, and is largely responsible for the long entry lists in the events for the younger players.

There were a number of junior players whom I watched during the week of play, who had very promising games, with nearly correct form and attractive style. I enjoyed watching them, for it was easy to see they had a good idea of the game, even though their ages ran in the neighborhood of 13 or 14 years.

Good Form and Style.

Good form and style in junior tennis is very impressive to an enthusiast, because it proves that correct play is absolutely within the reach of the youngest followers of the game.

Perhaps I should define the terms "form" and "style" in tennis as they appear to me.

When a player is said to have correct form, he has accepted and put into practice certain fundamentals and rules concerning the execution of the strokes of the game. These "truths" about stroking and play, as they may be called, are the standards of present-day tennis and have been established by the best players of the country as the orthodox manner in which to carry on the game. Correct form involves footwork, balance, body position, racquet action, racquet grip and many lesser points. One not knowing tennis might suppose that correct form, at least from this description, is dogmatic and hard and fast in its rules.

It is here that I disagree with many who teach the game of tennis. I believe that correct form should be applied to tennis as a guide, and that it should be accepted as a general standard, but that it should not be the entire object of the beginner or the one who is improving his game. Correct form is merely the means to an end.

Helen Wills.

Every Player's Object.

The end, or the object of every person who is learning tennis, should be, in my mind, style.

Style is the thing which makes tennis a wholly delightful game, a beautiful thing to watch, and a pleasure to play. It is what the individual puts into his game. It is his own personality expressed. One's tennis becomes a personal thing, a part of the player, if he puts himself in it. Some players who have good form are uninteresting to watch, and it is probably because they lack style. Manuel Alonso is a fascinating figure on the court because he is a part of his game. R. Norris Williams is another. The master stylist of our time is William Tilden.

He observes the rules of form, of course, but clothes them in a scintillating cloak of style which makes him a tremendously interesting figure on the court and brings to him the fullest realization of the pleasures of the game. One of the secrets of his success is the freedom of his style, and the expression of his personality in his style. I heard him say this summer: "A person's tennis can always go on as long as he feels himself in it. Don't cramp down to the mere bounds of good form. Good form can be beaten, but personality, never!"

And so to beginners, his message is encouragement. Become acquainted with sound and good form, and then express yourself.

Nebraska Mows Down Drake, 21-0

Cornhuskers Score Two Touchdowns and Obtain Other Points by Kicking.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 2.—Drake University failed to repeat its 1925 football victory over the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers and went down to defeat, 21 to 0, at the opening gridiron game of the Missouri Valley Conference here today. The Huskers scored two touchdowns in the second quarter and one in the fourth and were successful in kicking for the extra points.

JONES AND ALEXANDER LOSE TO GUNN AND LOOS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—Bobby Jones missed a two-foot putt on the seventeenth hole in an exhibition match here today and he and Gale Alexander were defeated by Watts Gunn and Leonard Loos.

Jones shot the course in par 71, Loos in 73 and Gunn and Alexander in 77 each. The exhibition was for the benefit of the children's home here.

BETHLEHEM'S STRONG SOCCER TEAM WINS

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 2.—In a bitterly fought game this afttrnoon on Lehigh Field, the Bethlehem Steel team defeated the New York Giants in an American Soccer League match, 3 to 1. The score was tied at the end of the first half at one all, but in resuming play, Bethlehem forged ahead, scoring two goals, and sewed up the game. Capt. Bill Carnihan and Malcolm Goldie starred with marvelous work.

The New York backs kept Archie Stark, Bethlehem's premier forward, covered well, but failed to stop the elusive Goldie. Davy Brown and Guttman, a former Hakoah player, starred for the visitors.

Davy Brown, center forward for the Giants, opened the scoring two minutes after the start when he converted a corner by Horner into a goal. Bethlehem pressed immediately and on a penalty kick awarded against Moorehouse evened the score. Goldie, in handling the kick, failed to get the ball past Geudert on his attempt but on the rebound easily scored.

HORNSBY, THE MAN, A BLUNT, CUSSIN', UNDIPLOMATIC SQUARE-SHOOTE

Has No Use for Liquor, Colleges or Quitters; Inspires Confidence

No Subterfuge in the Texan's Nature—His Display of Courage and Determination During Illness Won the Hearts of Cardinal Players.

By J. Roy Stockton.

What sort of a person is this Rogers Hornsby, champion batsman of the National League for six consecutive years, most valuable player to his team in 1925, and now leader of a pennant-winning team in his first full season as a big league manager?

The public sees Hornsby the hitter. He is a great hitter. The public sees Hornsby the fielder. He is a great fielder. The public sees results. Hornsby must be a great leader, for he has led his team to victory. That is the peak of the player's ambition, unless it be to lead his team to a world's championship. But the public knows little of the personal side of the baseball hero, and office boys and bank tellers, barbers and brokers, if they think you have met and been in close touch with Rogers Hornsby, put the question: "What sort of a fellow is Rog?"

Latent Talent Discovered.

Two years ago the answer would have been that Hornsby was a remarkable ball player, a young man who loved baseball, but, except for his batting prowess and his skill on the diamond, there was not much color to this Hornsby person.

Today, the same question draws a different answer. Hornsby today is another man. Some men's characters and qualities shine forth and blaze the way to high positions. Elevation to the position of manager has changed Rogers Hornsby, the colorless ball player, into a dynamic leader, a chief for whom his warriors would go to any limit to win. Hornsby the player was just a good ball player. Hornsby the manager is one of the most pleasing characters that the great game of baseball has produced.

Hornsby is no drawing room human being. He swears like a trooper, a Texas trooper. He'd rather sit in the lobby of a hotel alone, than be entertained at a governor's mansion.

If you ask Hornsby a question he will not give you a drawing room or diplomatic answer. Hornsby would make a poor diplomat. Courage, confidence, honesty, bluntness and determination are the outstanding characteristics of Rogers Hornsby and you learn about the bluntness first.

On the recent trip of the Cardinals, a New York writer was assigned to the duty of following the Cardinals as long as they remained in the pennant fight. The writer, a college man of refinement, polished language and manner, had to interview Hornsby. After his first interview he shook his head. Hornsby's bluntness had shocked him. He didn't understand how this rough, blunt-speaking Texan could be a big league manager. He said as much to the Post-Dispatch correspondent.

A week later the same writer sought out the Post-Dispatch correspondent.

Square, Blunt Convincing.

"I told you something about Hornsby a week back," he said. "I've been in touch with Hornsby ever since. I did not want to be. It was my assignment. Hornsby has convinced me. He is one of the most delightful characters I ever met. He is the squarest, bluntest, cussingest and most convincing man I ever met in baseball."

Hornsby runs his ball club on a platform of confidence. He told them in the spring that they were going to win the pennant and that if any man doubted that, they could fold up their tents and silently steal away, or words to that, and much rougher, effect. He told them all through the fight that they were going to win. They won.

One of the reasons the Cardinals fought so gamely through the pennant race was the example that Hornsby set them. When he was suffering from numerous boils and a carbuncle and was 15 pounds underweight, unable to field or hit, he was persuaded to agree to rest for 10 days. The attending physician gave Hornsby a course of medicine, and warned him that while taking the medicine it would be dangerous for him to take any violent exercise, that playing in a game of ball might cause serious results.

Personal Courage Inspires Confidence.

The Cardinals took to the road. Hornsby insisted on accompanying the team. Two or three games were won in Philadelphia without him. Then to New York. The first game was won. Then four straight defeats. Gloom. The next day the team played in Brooklyn. Hornsby was advised over long-distance telephone not to play. He put on a uniform and played. The team needed him and he played, though his physician told him violent exercise might kill him.

"I thought I was going to pass out when I scored from first on that double," said Hornsby that night. "But we beat 'em."

Hornsby played the next day and they "beat 'em" again. Six straight victories were scored and eight of the nine games played after he returned to duty were won. His players could not overlook that courage.

Hornsby's players would do anything for him. He cusses them occasionally and cusses them without restraint. But there is no sarcasm. He tells them bluntly and frankly what he thinks of them. The players get mad, but they know he's mad and the next day it all is forgotten. It's a new day and a new deal.

Theaters and Colleges Are Encumbrances.

Hornsby has few interests outside of baseball. He doesn't care for moving pictures and he never goes to a theater unless friends influence him to go. He never would suggest a show. Hornsby does not smoke and he does not drink. That's not merely for public consumption. Hornsby never has smoked and never has tasted intoxicating liquor.

Don't get the idea that Hornsby is a paragon of virtue or perfection. He's far from that. He's stubborn and bull-headed, he uses very bad language and he has some peculiar aversions. He can't mention a college without a few decorative adjectives. If a man comes from a university, he's dumb and the higher the university the greater the degree of dumbness in Hornsby's estimation.

But you can't help liking Hornsby. It isn't the pennant he won. It isn't the success he's had. He's just an honest-to-goodness person, without guile or subterfuge. People trust Hornsby.

Ten Bouts For S. B. A. C. Show

Twenty Boxers Working Out for Next Thursday's Event, Matchmaker Reports.

Officials of the South Broadway A. C. expect to provide a program of at least ten bouts for the club's indoor boxing inaugural on Thursday night, Oct. 14.

Matchmaker Willie Miller stated yesterday that approximately 20 boxers are now engaging in sparring workouts nightly at the South Side gym in preparaion for the opening show.

Miller has also been assured of entries from such organizations as the Business Men's A. C., Tower A. C. and National A. A.

Three special bouts of the inter-club variety are planned as headliners of the inaugural tourney. "Prelim" events will be open to boxers of all weight divisions. Entry blanks can be obtained on application at the club's headquarters, 2100 South Seventh street.

LINCOLN U. DEFEATS WILBERFORCE U., 8-0, IN FOOTBALL CONTEST

Lincoln University of Jefferson City defeated Wilberforce University of Xenia, O., in a gridiron game at Stars' park yesterday by a score of 8 to 0. The game was the first Negro collegiate contest played in St. Louis. The field was a sea of mud and water, which made playing difficult.

Lincoln had Wilberforce playing defensive football throughout the game. C. Gantt scored the only touchdown with the aid of William Woods. In the final quarter Lincoln made a safety to clinch the game. T. Robinson, Gantt, Roger and Woods starred for the winners, while Huff, fullback for Wilberforce, starred for his team.

To Holders of World Series Tickets

IN an effort to help out-of-town merchants secure tickets for some of the world series games, at box office prices, the undersigned wholesale houses have established offices in each of their stores to purchase such single tickets as the holders of series tickets are unable to use. Such action is in keeping with the hospitality of our city, and this consideration is due visiting merchants whose all-year trade contributes to the support of St. Louis industry.

Each of the houses named below, therefore, will receive at box office prices, while the out-of-town demand continues, any individual tickets that may be presented. These will be distributed, at the same price, to visiting merchants only.

With this understanding, we strongly urge all St. Louisans who now hold one or more tickets for single games, which they do not expect to use personally, to co-operate in carrying out the plan. Please present your ticket or tickets promptly at the store which is most convenient.

FRENCH AND GERMAN AMITY, LLOYD GEORGE SAYS, WILL BE WELCOME IN ENGLAND

While Most of the World Expected Explosion of Wrath Because of Recent Courtesies, Public Sentiment of France Echoed Only Approval.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.
War Time Premier of Great Britain.
LONDON, October 2 (By Cable).

WHEN the news reached Britain of the meeting between M. Briand and Herr Stresemann at Thoiry, we in Britain knowing the French public, first raised our eyebrows at the dar- of M. Briand and then wagged our heads in anticipation of the rm that would be raised in France at this informal meeting. To ow your late enemy to sit at the Geneva Council table (after hav- kept him waiting for months on the doorstep) is one thing— to meet him informally over a meal and a bottle of wine, dis- ing frankly the possibilities of future co-operation—surely the nch nation would never tolerate this fraternization with the in- der whilst his devastation of the "patrie" was still unmended and aid for.

Four years ago, they resented tions. The Lokal Anzeiger, an me of golf during a confer- extreme anti-French journal, says e between M. Briand and an "the subjective attitude of M. ed Prime Minister. They felt Briand is a force making for was foozling the interests of reconciliation whose importance nce on the Cannes links. But cannot be denied." t was a trifle compared to the nch Foreign Minister ar- ging a picnic party. The se- shows how little our country derstands of the psychology of ther. And France is always most incalculable of all lands.

France, Possibly, Has an Eye for Business.

Possibly there is more behind all this than a longing for European peace on the part of the French. The financial position of France has at last forced her to see that an understanding with Germany would be more to her advantage than continual saber rattling. There is already talk of definite stabilization of payments under the Dawes plan and of eight milliards of golden marks for France in four yearly payments.

But when Germany hints that this will be in return for a complete evacuation of the Rhineland and affirms that they consider this to be the corollary of Geneva and Locarno, France cries, "Not so fast." There are still obstacles to be surmounted. There will be bargainings and haggling and there may be several hitches before complete agreement is finally reached, but it would be a pity for Europe and for the world if Thoiry did not come to full fruition.

The settling of the details will depend very greatly upon America and American financiers. And French financiers and industrialists know it and say so. As one French journalist subtly remarks, Mr. Morgan might very well say: "You are making a great many plans with my purse." A large part of the capital for the new proposals will have to be supplied by America and for this the latter is likely to demand ratification of the Washington agreement. It seems indeed as though Thoiry were likely to have great repercussions.

Jarring Note Is That of M. Poincare.

And now here is M. Poincare harking back to the horrors of war, baring old wounds and stirring up old hatreds. The picnicking diplomacy is not his style. He is one of those men who, even when they shake hands with you, never really make up a quarrel but sooner or later begin nagging about them again. Sunday is the day he seems to have set aside for the intonation of his carefully prepared litanies of hate. Last Sunday, he pulled one of these out of his wallet.

He had no objection to a rapprochement, provided "it throws no doubt on the responsibility of the imperial government in the war and as long as it is justified by decisive proof of the material and moral disarmament of our neighbors." It is not treason to smile at Germany as long as she is morally and materially impotent. But you must be always vigilant. Wag your tail if you like but keep your bristles up.

But making allowance for this unpleasant habit of snarling with which he was born, one concludes that M. Poincare will not withhold support from M. Briand in the latter's endeavor to bring a

Our apprehensions were falsi- d. Almost unanimously there rst from the French press a rus of approval and encour- ment. The fraternization of rmany and France was hailed the turning point in post-war tory; the one thing needed for pacification and restoration of rope. More Evidence That High Tariff Law Is Not Necessary to Make High Wages

One Unprotected Industry Swamping Foreign Markets

President Winchell of Remington Typewriter Company Tells How Its Machines Are Sold Widely Throughout Europe, and No Foreign Makes Are Sold Here, Without Fostering Protection of Tax.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
Staff Writer of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

IS a high protective tariff really necessary to insure high wages for American workers? If it isn't, the American people workers? If it isn't, the American people certainly are being played for a nation of easy-marks, because they are paying out four billion dollars a year on this account. They contribute every time they pay the rent, the grocery bill or the clothing bill. They can hardly spend a dime which doesn't contribute to the tariff account. The total comes high, but we are told it is necessary to protect the American wage scale.

What is the argument for this tariff? The argument is this: That the cost of production in foreign countries is so much less than the cost of production in the United States, due to cheaper labor, that if foreign manufacturers were allowed to sell their products in this country, free of duty, in competition with American manufacturers, they would soon force American manufacturers either to go out of business or to make drastic cuts in wages. That is the substance of the defense offered by its Republican authors for the Fordney-McCumber tariff, the most extortionate in our history.

What is the argument against it? Generally, it is that American industry is so much larger and better organized, that American machinery is so much more efficient, and that American workers are so much more productive than their foreign competitors, that they need no protection. Against this particular tariff the argument is that it was designed, not to equalize costs of production here and abroad, but to erect a barrier so high as to make foreign competition impossible, thus allowing American manufacturers to gouge the American public, for all "the traffic would bear." And that, the argument concludes, is precisely what it has accomplished.

Confusing Minds of the Voters.

How is the average voter to determine which of these arguments is sound? Every time a campaign rolls around the Republican orators grab him by one leg and the Democrats by the other. They drag him this way and that, one shouting in his left ear and the other in his right. When they are through he knows less than he did before, and is so disgusted with both sides that he doesn't care whether he votes or not.

Nevertheless, there should be some way of getting at the truth. Four billion a year is not to be lightly tossed into the pot without asking whether it is necessary. What we need is to find a test case. A test case, in this instance would be an American industry which has plenty of foreign competition, which has a high labor cost, and which does not have protection under the tariff. If such an industry exists, if it does pay the American standard of wages, and if it does manage to remain prosperous, then we might reasonably conclude that protection is not essential to high wages and continued business prosperity.

Very well, let us take the typewriter industry. The writer chose to investigate this industry because it is one of the very few important industries that have no protection under the present tariff.

It has none because the men at the head of it didn't ask for any. If they had, the Republicans undoubtedly would have given it to them. They did not, and typewriters manufactured in foreign countries can come into the United States absolutely free of duty.

There are other circumstances which make this industry an excellent example. In the first place, there is an abundance of typewriter manufacturers in England, France, Germany and Italy. Germany alone has more typewriter manufacturers than the United States. So there is plenty of foreign competition.

Large Labor Cost In Making Typewriters

In the second place the labor cost in the manufacture of typewriters is an unusually large factor. Of the combined cost of labor and material which go into making a typewriter, the labor cost is 61.19 per cent of the total. Therefore, if the high tariff argument is sound, foreign manufacturers

Wants No High Tariff

BENJAMIN L. WINCHELL,
President of the Remington Typewriter Company. He was born in Palmyra, Mo., and for many years held executive positions with Middle West railroad systems. He was president of the Rock Island from 1904 to 1909, and president from 1909 to 1913 of the Frisco Lines, with his office in St. Louis.

should be able to undersell American manufacturers by a very large margin.

In short, if there is an American industry which would seem to need protection, it is the American typewriter industry. The high tariff argument fits it like a glove. It has no protection whatever. Therefore, we should expect to find it hounded by foreign competition, tormented by labor troubles, forced to sell at a loss to avoid losing its business. And generally hanging on by the skin of its teeth. That is the picture which should confront us if the high tariff argument holds water.

What do we actually find?

For the answer to that question the writer applied to Benjamin L. Winchell, of New York, president of the Remington Typewriter Co. Winchell is one of the ablest and most widely known business men in the United States. He has been traffic manager of the Union Pacific Railroad, president of the Rock Island Railroad, president of the Frisco Lines, and during the war was regional director of all the railroads in the Southeastern States. He speaks not only as an authority on the typewriter industry, but as an authority upon industry in general. No better representative of business could be found. St. Louis knows him well.

"Do you want a tariff on typewriters?" I asked him.

"We don't want a tariff, we don't need a tariff, and so far as I can see now, we never will need any," he replied. "If we needed one I am sure we could get it."

"Has foreign competition cut into your business and forced you to reduce wages?"

Swamping Competition In Foreign Lands

Winchell laughed. "All the foreign typewriters sold in the United States in a year probably could be put on this table," he said. "There simply isn't any foreign competition. On the other hand, we have carried the war into enemy territory so successfully that the Remington Company sells more typewriters in Europe than all the European companies combined. And in the case of Germany and Italy, it sells them over a tariff barrier erected by those countries to keep them out."

Now, this was spilling the dope with a vengeance. According to the protectionist argument, this company should be on the ragged edge. Yet, according to its president, it not only had swept its own field clean of foreign competition, but actually was beating foreign competitors on their ground, despite the fact that they had a protective tariff of their own, Winchell explained.

In the first place, he said, American typewriters are so far superior to foreign makes that there simply is no choice between them.

Wages High, and Labor Cost Is Over Sixty Per Cent of Production Expense, Yet Superior Manufacturing Methods Enable American Corporation to Successfully Compete With Cheaper European Workers.

He attributed this to the excellence of American invention, the superiority of American manufacturing machinery, and the surpassing craftsmanship of American workmen. He did not claim these advantages for his own company alone; he claimed them for American typewriters in general. In the second place, he continued, American typewriter manufacturers have organized their industry on a scale approached by no European manufacturer, and this mass production has resulted in tremendous economics of production, at the same time maintaining quality and uniformity of products. This is the huge advantage which American industry in general possesses over nearly all foreign industry, and the outstanding example of it is the Ford Automobile Co.

A third advantage is the service afforded by American typewriter companies. No foreign manufacturer attempts to service his machines in this country, Winchell said, while the service provided by American companies is quick and universal, not only in this country, but in every country in the world in which American machines are sold. This is another and perfectly characteristic contrast between American and foreign methods.

Gives Credit to American Workmen

But perhaps the greatest and most important advantage of all those possessed by American typewriter manufacturers over their foreign competitors, Winchell said, is the incomparable efficiency and productiveness of American workers. Paraphrasing the words of Jackson Johnson, St. Louis shoe manufacturer (also an unprotected industry), Winchell said:

"Put the American workman in a modern factory, give him the most improved machinery, put him under competent and intelligent foremen, and pay him high wages, and there simply isn't anything in the world that can touch him. He will turn out a better product than the foreign workman, and he will turn out twice as much of it."

"Have you ever had any trouble with employes over wages?" the writer inquired.

"If we ever did, it was so long ago that nobody remembers it," Winchell answered. "We pay a high scale, on a piece work basis, and it has been our policy never to reduce the scale when our employes were able, by reason of increased efficiency and improved machinery, to earn more money. They have got the benefit of improvements, as well as the benefit of their own efforts, and naturally they have been contented and ambitious.

"Since 1913 the basic cost of manufacturing typewriters, that is the total cost of labor and raw materials, has increased 60 per cent, most of which increase has been in wages, but the price of the typewriter has remained the same. We have been able to do this because of improved methods, better machinery, more efficient workmanship and enlarged volume of business."

"But how is it possible," I inquired, "for you to pay the American wage scale, pay the freight on your machines to Europe, pay (in the case of Germany and Italy) a protective tariff there, and still manage to undersell foreign manufacturers on their own ground?"

"We don't undersell them," he said. "Our machines sell for a higher price than theirs. We just give them a machine that is so much better, and a service on it which is so much more reliable and convenient, that it is worth while for them to pay more."

Tariff on Steel Handicap for Remingtons

But the most amazing realization was yet to come. Suddenly the writer remembered that the principal raw material used in manufacturing typewriters is steel, and steel enjoys a stiff degree of protection under the present tariff. In other words, the typewriter man not only was selling in an unprotected market, but actually was buying his raw material in a protected market, and still was making a glowing success of it. I confronted Winchell with this amiable accusation. "I don't want to be in the position of criticising the tariff on steel," he objected. "The steel manufacturers want protection, and for all I know they are en-

TENSE LEGAL DRAMA NOW UNFOLDS IN FIGHT TO FREE TWO CONDEMNED RADICALS

Champion of Conservatism Is Working for Sacco and Vanzetti, Whose Political Theories He Personally Loathes, so as "to Defend Society Against Its Defenders."

By John J. Leary Jr.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 2.

WHILE Judge Webster Thayer in the seclusion of his Worcester, Mass., home ponders the evidence offered on the recent motion for a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, both sides to the now world-famed case are preparing for the next move. For whichever way Judge Thayer rules the case is certain to be in the courts for many months to come.

Should the Judge grant the motion for a new trial, which he has denied on six previous occasions, the State will not be ready to proceed, according to Dudley P. Ranney, now in charge of its case, much before the new year.

Should he rule against the defendants there is no doubt that the case will again go before the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts on law points, with an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States on a constitutional point in the event that Judge Thayer and the State Court of last resort find against them.

Meantime, new developments in the case, which has attracted the attention of radicals all over the world, have split conservative Massachusetts—now not nearly as certain as it was that the men should pay the extreme penalty for the murder of a paymaster in South Braintree on April 15, 1920. Sacco and Vanzetti have been reduced to mere pawns in a game of law with the battle revolving about the personality of one man—William G. Thompson, formert President of the Boston Bar Association, a conservative of conservatives and now chief counsel for the defense.

Convention Led Him to Limelight.

Until he assumed the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti with all the zeal of a fanatic, Thompson was little known outside of Massachusetts save in the higher legal circles, and not over well in Massachusetts save as a lawyer who handled big cases and was the terror of lawyers who might run afoul of the rules laid down for the practice of law. Criminal cases he would not touch save occasionally to argue a brief before the Supreme Court. Publicity he abhorred. He was content to be what he was—a lawyer among lawyers.

To those who did know him he was a man of high standards and intense convictions, with the courage one associates with a big physique to back his convictions take him where they might. Therefore, when he announced without equivocation that he was convinced of the innocence of the two men conservative and legal Boston sat up and took notice. It was surprised, but probably not more than he was, to find himself ranged on the side of the hated radicals, and declaring, as he recently did in the court in Dedham, that it was not a matter of fees and money but of principles. Just how he came to that conclusion is best told by himself.

"My first interest in the case," said he, "was purely that of a lawyer engaged to argue a single motion. It looked like a simple proposition that would not interfere with the regular work of my office. But when I got into it, when I had gone over the mass of evidence and exhibits in the case, heard the stories I have since heard, there was nothing for me to do but take the case when friends of these men insisted I must.

"I did not want to take the case. I urged and pleaded with them to retain some other lawyer. Finally, to scare them off, I placed the fee for preparing and arguing the exceptions before the Supreme Court so high I felt they would not meet it. In twenty-four hours there was a certified check on my desk. The work then contracted for has long since been completed, the fee has been exhausted and there has been no new arrangement or contract made.

"But the case has passed beyond any mere matter of fees or of money. It is not a matter of defending radicals who would destroy society. It is a case of defending society against its defenders.

"I have been fortunate in accumulating some of this world's goods. But what I have accumulated will be no good to myself or to anybody else if the precedent is established in this State that the humblest and least popular of the persons within its borders can be deprived of life by the methods followed in this case.

Confound Their Politics, But Save Their Lives.

"There is where I am as disgusted with the conservatives as I am with the radicals. Neither can seem to see this case as it is or understand why I, a conservative, loathing and despising the things for which these men stand, should wish to defend them in a murder case. Neither can seem to understand that one may not agree with another's politics or economic beliefs and yet be opposed to electrocuting him for a murder he did not commit."

What the conservatives who have ranged themselves with Thompson on the side of Sacco and Vanzetti charge is that in the inflamed state of public opinion existing at the time of the trial, and for which they do not hold the friends of the prisoners entirely guiltless, it was impossible for them to get a fair trial, that the methods used by the District Attorney in prosecuting the case were unfair, that Judge Thayer, despite his intentions or his assertions to the contrary, contributed to the unfriendly atmosphere at the trial, and that in the exercise of the discretion vested in him he leaned toward the State.

"Any psychologist," a member of the Harvard faculty told me in commenting on this phase of the case, "would tell you that is the explanation of the Judge's call upon the newspaper men at the trial, as recorded by Frank P. Sibley, to say that his conduct of the case was fair."

Specifically, however, they stake most on the affidavits of former agents of the Department of Justice presented in the recent hearing to the effect that there was a working agreement between Frederick G. Katzman, the District Attorney who prosecuted, and agents of the Department of Justice that in return for evidence that might be used in deportation proceedings they sought to assist him to convict men of a murder of which the agents believed them to be innocent "as one way of disposing of them."

Government Tyranny Enters the Case.

Judge Thayer, in the exercise of judicial discretion, did permit cross-examination of Sacco calculated to provide the Department of Justice with the evidence it wished. Now, Mr. Thompson

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"Ford and Socialism."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I MUST confess a disappointment in you on account of your editorial entitled "Ford and Socialism." I want you to know that I am not a Red Socialist. However, I am considerably pink. (I can't help it. I am still poor and haven't even got a decent job). And as a "liberal" I fail to see whence comes your right in finding satisfaction with our "state of things" or in feeling any great reverence for Mr. Ford for his contribution toward our general well being.

I grant you that Mr. Ford's minimum wage idea bears in it the seed of an economic and social well being. But is Mr. Ford properly planting and nourishing this seed? Everything that Mr. Ford does just fairly teems with Mr. Ford's personality. He does things and he undoes them. Nothing that he does is any more permanent than his own whim. Nor are his whims by any means logical.

And as respects his minimum wage plan and general policy toward his employes (if he may be deemed to have a general plan), we find that these, too, are expressions of Mr. Ford's whims. There is nothing more permanent or lasting in his scheme than that his present wish permits it to be just so. And tomorrow he may wish for something entirely different. Although fundamentally a good idea, it is by no means secure. Only time, and perhaps the death of Mr. Ford can reveal just how sound his policies are.

And "socialism has been knocked into a cocked hat by Henry Ford," has it? Now, Mr. Editor, I don't want to be pessimistic, but don't you think that our present era of apparent irresponsibility and thoughtlessness, while our "war babies" are still wondering what in the world they can do with the money they made during the war, while a Congressman, or a Cabinet officer, or a Legislature, or a Mayor may be bought over for a song, and when the workers' apparent prosperity is nothing more than his riotousness in the temporary privileges permitted him by "clothes on time," "car on time," "house on time" payment plans and loan sharks, I say, don't you think that this present era is likely to lead to some unpleasant consequences in the end, Mr. Ford and others notwithstanding? Our Views on Marriage.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT IS an interesting and instructive consideration, when one comes to reflect upon it, that the whole conduct of man's life, even that part of his life that we are accustomed to think of as controlled by instinct, and acted upon by the laws and forces of nature, is really ordered by the teachings of wise and great men whose philosophies of life have made us think, speak and act as we do, and not otherwise.

For example, take marriage! The vast majority of people today think of marriage as the natural, inevitable, and perhaps most important end of life. Yet in the Middle Ages people had ideas of marriage so different from ours that they exalted the ideal of celibacy, or the single life, above the ideal of marriage. This estimate of the secondary importance of marriage was due principally to one man, St. Jerome, whose ascetical teachings were accepted by the church, and promulgated as embodying the great ideal of the life on earth. What changed this great Middle Age ideal? Again the teachings of one man, Martin Luther, who proclaimed the divine sanctions of matrimony just as Jerome before him had proclaimed the divine sanctions of celibacy. There was an element of truth in the teachings of both these men. Yet both erred in over-emphasizing one extreme of a golden mean. The simple truth of the matter, of course, is that some persons have a gift for matrimony, and some a gift for celibacy.

The point I desire to emphasize is that great men are able to form and to shape our judgments concerning all matters of life, even matters of life that we are accustomed to think of as determined by instinct and the laws of nature.

CHARLES HOOPER.

Reed for President.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

EIGHT years ago, when the Missouri Democratic State convention saw fit to condemn Senator Reed, who, by common precedent, was entitled to a seat in the Democratic National convention at San Francisco, I made an humble effort to defend him with an article in which, prophetically, as it were, I quoted the beautiful scriptural metaphor, "the stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner."

Four years ago, in an humble communication to the Post-Dispatch, I nominated Senator Reed as a candidate for the presidency. Now, with renewed courage, please allow me again to place him in nomination as the standard-bearer for the Democracy for 1928.

Indisputably, Mr. Reed now is in the available class. Conspicuously and fearlessly he stands for the things that the great conservative masses stand for, and demand, which demand, briefly stated, is the restoration of fundamental democracy in this Government of ours.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is the man of the hour.

W. L. MARLEY.
Bentonville, Ark.

LOW DOWN CAMPAIGNING.

Senator Williams brought his campaign to a low plane in Moberly, when he slurred the good roads work in Missouri and tried to discredit the part Major Hawes played in the good roads movement.

It happened that the continuous rain had made some of the roads in North Missouri impassable, and thus interfered with Senator Williams' meeting. The Senator made the fact the occasion for a few sneering remarks about Missouri good roads and about Major Hawes' work in connection with them. We quote a paragraph from his remarks:

> "Political meetings are being called off in Missouri because of the continuous rains. Rains make the roads impassable and the people cannot come out. I am tempted to talk about good roads for a few minutes. Hawes has filled the State with the advertisement that he is the father of good roads in Missouri, and the country newspapers are bringing you big supplements in which Hawes insists on the fact that he is the father of good roads. That issue is not in this campaign and it may be settled some other day between Hawes and the other claimants to the title like John Malang of Joplin, Gov. Gardner or Henry Ford."

Of course there are roads in Missouri that are impassable in wet weather. The road system has not been completed and Major Hawes is not responsible for the construction of the roads. That work has been done by the Highway Commission chiefly under the administrations of Governors Hyde and Baker. The Highway Commission does not deserve slurs on its work. The system is not yet completed and could not possibly be completed at the present time.

Much however, has been accomplished. Great highways have been wholly or partly constructed through Missouri, and many county roads have been greatly improved. Large sections of Missouri have been lifted out of the mud. If Senator Williams cannot recognize the extent and value of this achievement his mental vision is seriously warped.

As to the work Major Hawes has done in the good roads movement, no fair-minded man can deny him full credit for an invaluable public service. He started, organized and directed a successful campaign for the good roads bond issue in St. Louis County where the first mile of hard-surfaced road in Missouri was built. He started, organized and directed a state-wide campaign for good roads bond issue in Missouri. He devoted his energy and ability to that work with extraordinary success. He sought election to the State Legislature for the sole purpose of framing and passing a good roads law. He succeeded against heavy odds in putting into the statute books the first good roads law ever enacted in this State. Through Major Hawes' sound judgment and foresight the users of the roads, not the general taxpayers are building them.

The fruits of Major Hawes' exceptional service in connection with Missouri good roads supplied the foundations of everything that has been accomplished in building up the system. Giving due credit to every one who has taken up and carried on the work, Major Hawes has fairly earned the title of the father of good roads.

It would be far more becoming in Senator Williams to recognize the unquestioned public service of his opponent and emulate his example, than to slur the good work that has been done and his part therein. We would be glad to credit Senator Williams with a constructive public service as conspicuous and valuable as that of Major Hawes, in initiating and assuring the success of the Missouri good roads movement. It would be worth a thousand campaign speeches in detraction of his opponent.

THE WOMAN DIPLOMAT.

Russia's Soviet Government has named Mrs. Alexander Kollontai, a feminist leader, as minister plenipotentiary to Mexico. She is bound for a land that has a habit of domestic difficulties, and where international controversies are no novelty. Russia is remote enough to have few conflicting interests with Latin-America, but no diplomat there should be without opportunity for exercising diplomacy. Time will tell how well a feminist leader rates in that line, but men who know women will express confidence in her success.

Diplomacy calls for tact, on occasion, and it has ever seemed strange that more women didn't enter the diplomatic corps. A great many of them were diplomats long before they secured general recognition in public life. The complexities of modern society have placed a strain on tactful management of week-end guests, dinner gatherings and bridge controversies that should make it seem a sinecure to wrestle with international problems that perturb the official representatives of nations.

There have been various explanations and accusations in regard to the start of the World War, but no one has blamed a woman for the hostilities, and it is likely there would have been no war, had diplomatic women been authorized to discuss the proper course for Serbia. At any rate, there would have been no war yet, for there was an opportunity for much discussion; there always is, and it is unlikely that the outcome would have been determined so soon.

Nor is conversational delay to be despised as a peaceful influence. If the debate is sufficiently prolonged, participants will take it out in oratory, and lose the urge to loose the dogs of war. No one has called Russia a pacifist nation, but it is safe to assume she is in no danger of conflict with Mexico.

THE $300,000 GUTENBERG BIBLE.

Dr. Otto Vollbehr of New York has paid the sum of $300,000 for a Gutenberg Bible. This is almost as much as Mr. Tunney got for boxing 10 rounds recently; in short, it is a lot of money. There are two similar Bibles in the United States, in the Morgan collection and in the Huntington Library. It is said that Dr. Vollbehr's purchase represents the highest price ever paid for a printed book.

Gutenberg was the inventor of printing with movable type, and this invention was of more significance than all the battles of the world put together. Poor Gutenburg's name does not appear on any of the books printed by him, and his friends and backers did not mention him as having had anything to do with it. History ferreted out Gutenberg and gave him everlasting fame. Before he died his press went into other hands, and one of the most revolutionary works of mankind proceeded to get under way.

It was not difficult for Gutenberg to decide what book should be printed first on his presses. The Bible was the book. It was practically the only book which anyone but scholars knew anything about. There was a great thirst to read the Bible, but there were only a few copies, very expensively copied out by hand, and written in Latin. Gutenberg made the Bible accessible to the people. At first, only a few copies were printed. These were gobbled up. The Bible became a best seller. No one knows how many editions of it have been printed. It remains today a best seller.

Thus two of the most profound influences on the mind of man were joined in that far-off day of 1450—the Bible and printing. Gutenberg's Bible, printed in three volumes, on parchment, was the result. No wonder a copy of this book brought $300,000. If history and tradition mean anything, if the things that have contributed to man's progress are worth remembering, the Gutenburg Bible is really a priceless human possession.

CHICKENS COME HOME TO ROOST.

The Republican party has never suffered any loss of prestige or power because the Harding administration was a tissue of graft and fraud. It has never known the least interference with its sway because Mr. Fall was discovered to have taken bribes in the disposition of government property, or because Mr. Daugherty, as Attorney-General, made the legal department of the Government smell to high heaven. The Big Business men who stand behind the Republican party laughed at the raving Democrats, increased their contributions to the presidential campaign fund—and won by a bigger majority than ever. Perhaps some of those on guard had been very bad boys. That had nothing to do with the conduct of the country for the benefit of Big Business. It had nothing to do with the practice of safeguarding at Washington the rights of the privileged class. So the Republicans laughed, and we had business as usual.

But the chickens are coming home to roost. Mr. Daugherty is being tried in New York upon a criminal charge that he took part of a bribe given the Alien Property Custodian. The evidence against him is damning. To cover his tracks he even destroyed the records in his brother's bank at Washington Courthouse, O. Once again the country is hearing about the unique relation to the Attorney-General's office of Jess Smith, who shot himself when exposure threatened; of the house on K street where the political worldlings of Ohio and the unsavory underworldlings of Washington in that incredible era had their rendezvous.

Then, as if that were not enough to shame the Republicans despite the whitewashing given them at the polls, the Teapot Dome scandal broke out again! A Federal Court of Appeals reversed absolutely the findings of Judge Kennedy in Wyoming, who saw no fraud in what had happened. The Appellate Court, removed from the political bias of the scene, saw plenty of fraud in it. The lease held by Harry Sinclair upon the Teapot Dome oil field was declared to have been secured by fraud and therefore held to be void. Teapot Dome goes back to the Navy. Its oil is the Navy's oil, and Mr. Sinclair and his associates must make an accounting to the Government for any oil they took out. The eagerness of Mr. Fall to have the naval oil fields turned over to his department from Mr. Denby's department was too much for the Appellate Court. It is indignant in its characterization of the whole proceedings as a palpable fraud, the same thing another court had said of the lease held by Mr. Doheny upon the Elk Hills field in California.

Nor is this all. The criminal cases against Messrs. Fall and Doheny are to come up this fall. Just about the time when the people are going to the polls to say whether or not they wish to leave the administration of the country in the hands of the Republicans these two principals of the serio-comedy in which $100,000 was transported in a black bag will answer the charge that they wilfully sought to defraud the Government in the matter of the Elk Hills lease. At about this same time, too, the decision against the Doheny lease will come up from the Court of Appeals in California to the United States Supreme Court. In addition to all that is being said now or has been said in the past about these malodorous affairs, there may be some postcripts not to Republican liking from the highest tribunal in the land.

Will they still laugh then?

A complete skull of Pithecanthropus Erectus, the first upright man, has been found in Java. People who are not upright, numerous always, had left only a lower jaw of the only other specimen ever found.

GOVERNMENTAL MATERNALISM.

The menacing centralization of government, in this land of ours, is still striding forward. While students and orators and Jeffersonian politicians have been hurling denunciations against the rapid growth of paternalism, with its dangerous curtailment of personal liberties and state's rights, the departmental scientists at Washington have insidiously taken us in the flank. We are threatened now with a government of maternalism, regulated from Washington by a series of charts and time-tables.

Mothers, women voters, sister citizens, prepare to defend your inalienable rights. The right to raise your own babies, in the manner mothers have since Eve was expelled from the garden. If you fail in your duty now, to self and country, some near-brained Congressman will invoke a regulatory act of Congress to enforce the rules and regulations now being broadcast by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor on scientific baby raising.

Here is part of the proposed schedule for 7, 8 and 9 months old babies: Give the baby sustenance at 6 a. m., at 10 a. m., at 2 p. m.; at 6 p. m. and at 10 p. m. After feeding at 6 a. m. he is left alone in his cot until 9:15 a. m., when you feed him cod liver oil, followed by orange or tomato juice. At 9:30 a. m. undress him and let him kick and play. At 10 a. m. give him cereal just before his natural diet. At 10:20 a. m. take him out of doors until 2 p. m. Give him a drink of water. Give him vegetables and egg-yolk just before 2 p. m. At 2:20 p. m. take him outdoors again, allowing him to sleep and play until 5:15 p. m. Now undress him for the night. Papa may play with him at this time, if the play is not "exciting or rough." At 5:45 p. m. dose him with cod liver oil. At 6 p. m. give him cereal and natural food. At 6:20 p. m. lights out. At 10 p. m. natural food.

Nothing more to do now, until next morning, even for father.

TO THE RADIIDOLATORS.

(By a Not Too Appreciative Neighbor.)

When I settle down in Sunday calm
To lose my work-day self in young Romance,
Of poetry, or thrill of latest yarn,
I swear it irks my soul to lose instead
The story's thread in bellows such as these:
"Strike two!" "Ball one!" "Hafey's at the bat!"
I hate radios.

I sometimes used to sing a bit myself.
I'm not so bad. But what's the use to try
To tune my dulcet voice to modest strain?
The inspiration's gone. I give it up
When competition shouts across the way
The gargle of a would-be opera star.
I hate radios!

"Valencia" will do. I'll even stand
The same old "Silver Threads Among the Gold."
But when at midnight my tired eyelids seek,
With longing, sweet repose, my dreams are wrecked:
A band bursts forth in blatant blistering jazz!
I'll tell the world, in words scarce fit to print,
I LOATHE RADIOS! L. P.

NOTES FROM A TRANSATLANTIC DIARY.

A very pretty Scotch girl was showing the sights to me. "'Tis great to behold!" quoth I, on first seeing Loch Lomond. Whereat she whispered, "'Tis greater to be held." Whereupon I emulated the American Express who hold mail until further notice.

As there are four women to every man in this country a bachelor's only excuse for not being married is that he was born that way. English people do not wonder that America calls herself the land of the free, so many are the accounts of divorces in the States, but the marriage statistics still show that it is the home of the brave as well.

The police in Glasgow ride bicycles and there is one I've noticed who takes every corner on two wheels—no matter how slowly he pedals.

One feels more and more the necessity of History over here. The ancient grandeur of Scotland is utterly incomprehensible without it. The King of England is absolutely dependent on it and his birth certificate. Everything in Europe hinges on History, and without it, how else would the various countries know whose turn it is to get revenge?

Cheerio!

PRIZE CONTEST.

The channel has been conquered, the pennant race is a thing of the past, the leaves turn yellow and the amateurs turn professional, and our attention to politics is not serious. When thus we lose that keen interest we ordinarily feel in life, when someone has to tell us to lift our feet when we walk, when we become slightly bored and restless, we turn to such of our books as our friends have not as yet borrowed. Then ideas pour in upon us. Why not a book without a blurb? Why not a book which is simply a book and not the best of something or other? Today, we received a notice of a book which we have not read and now do not intend to read. Why? Because we are assured it is the best story of its kind since Cooper wrote "The Deerslayer." Being meticulously careful in our criticism, we would have to read "The Deerslayer" in order intelligently to pass judgment, not on the book, but on what was said about it. And for all we know, someone may have gotten "The Deerslayer" in the meantime, to assure us that "in this book, Cooper positively coups Cooper." Then, in fairness, we would have to read all of Cooper.

"In uttering an approbation,
The best' and 'greatest' bar;
Please speak of books in moderation,
And never go too far."

Sometime ago we were assured that a certain author is a combination of Lamb, Pope, Dryden, Addison and Keats. If Ben Jonson and Shakspeare had been brought in, that author would be a compendium course in English literature. Maybe the blurb writer was so enthusiastic over his pet that he neglected those two. Maybe such a combination is superior to either Jonson or Shakspeare. Cannot a story which is simply a story be written? Must the shade of rare Ben Jonson look to it's laurels every time a typewriter is used? To encourage the writing of a book which simply is, take it or leave it, we offer two sacks of the substance from which we fabricate our cigarettes, and one book of the papers which are on the lips of all those who roll their own to the first author who accomplishes that impossible feat—a book without a blurb. The offer expires when we do.

Tense Legal Drama in Fight to Free Two Radicals charges that in representing that his examination was for the purpose of testing the credibility of the witness, the State imposed upon the Court and that had the facts been known Judge Thayer would have promptly barred it.

On this showing alone, and the further fact that the State has not denied the truth of the charges, he used its influence to have the Department of Justice throw open its records on the case to the inspection of the defense, Mr. Thompson insists that a new trial should be granted.

"When," says he, "a Government can suppress and keep secret evidence bearing upon the guilt of men on trial for their lives, that Government has become a tyranny and no man's life is safe."

In the event of a new trial it is asserted the defense will prove that several of the witnesses who identified Sacco at the former trial had previously picked others than the person they saw about the scene of the murder and in the murder car, and that the most important and vehement of them have either identified others since or recanted or revised their testimony.

Of the identification witnesses who took the stand, only three persons claimed to have seen Vanzetti at the scene of the murder and only five to have seen Sacco. Twenty-two were positive that neither was one of the men they had seen. Four persons placed Sacco in Boston at the time of the murder. Double that number swore Vanzetti was in Plymouth.

Jury Composed of Sheriff's Friends

In any new trial, they further assert, there would be an absence of the adverse atmosphere the defendants encountered in their first trial and no recurrence of the methods, described by them as grossly unfair, by which the jury box was filled. The extra panel was selected by deputy sheriffs largely, as told in the State's brief defending the method used, from among their friends and acquaintances under a clause in the law providing for the summoning of "bystanders."

This, it ought to be said, was approved by the Supreme Court which in its finding specifically disregarded what it termed "the lexical definition" of bystander and ruled "it may be held to mean" persons qualified as talesmen from the county at large, as held by an Arkansas Judge in an earlier case.

So far as the refusal of the Department of Justice to release the evidence bearing on the case, which the defense asserts it has, Mr. Ranney (in charge of the prosecution) says the department has a right to its secrets.

"There is" he declares, "no doubt as to the outcome of a new trial. It may be true that the defense has new witnesses, but it is also true that we have many who are now ready to come forward and testify but did not dare testify at the first trial."

State's Burden on Boyish Shoulders

Ranney's presence in the case is to say the least, interesting. In the past it has been the practice of the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth to represent it in all important murder cases outside of Boston. In this case neither Attorney-General Benton nor his predecessor has appeared publicly at any time. The District Attorney who prosecuted the case and his successor have nothing to do with the present proceedings, and District Attorney Wilbar, now in office, showed in the recent hearings but for a few minutes.

The full burden of the case therefore falls upon the boyish Ranney, who is out of the law school but a few years. Whatever glory there may be in it for the State will be his.

Thompson has gone out of his way to absolve Ranney from any of the charges of sharp practice made against others who have represented the State.

Ranney frankly has no use for the Madeiros confession on which the pending proceedings are technically based, nor for the identifications of members of the Morelli gang produced by Thompson. He dismisses the failure of the State to put on witnesses it had in its control as being within its rights. "The State," he asserts, "has the right to put in as good a case as it can," an assertion that has brought much glee to defenders of Sacco and Vanzetti.

These declare, and they quote the decision of the Supreme Court in the recent ouster of District Attorney Pelletier of Boston to sustain them, that the duty of the District Attorney is not to get convictions at any cost, but to prosecute impartially, to "see that justice is done."

While the battle quietly rages Judge Thayer, to many a more pathetic figure in the case than little Mrs. Sacco, who with her baby haunts the Court House whenever a proceeding is on, is confronted with the necessity of facing criticism, sure to be bitter whichever way he decides upon the pending motion. Thayer has had to sit in every proceeding, save those before the Supreme Court, that has come in this case.

All who have followed the case from its inception say that Thayer has aged beyond his time during its progress. A slight man physically, he looked old, gray and worn during the recent proceedings, somehow giving the impression that he regretted ever having heard of Sacco and Vanzetti, or that his associate in the affairs of Dartmouth, the late Samuel W. McCall, had while Governor taken it upon himself to place Thayer on the bench.

Upheld by Supreme Court on All Points.

However, it is but fair to say that the Supreme Court refused to reverse him on any of the hundreds of rulings excepted to in the Sacco-Vanzetti trials or in the several hearings since, though in upholding him it had frequent recourse to a phrase that to the lay mind appears bromidic—"the discretion of the Court," which lawyers frankly say covers a multitude of judicial sins.

"It is," a highly placed member of the Massachusetts Attorney-General's staff admitted, "a phrase that protects a Judge frequently from the criticism of a reviewing body. We might just as well be honest and say that a trial Judge must be pretty raw in the exercise of discretion before the Supreme Court will reverse him."

Judge Thayer resents the presence of the body guards that at times have been forced upon him.

"I have," he says, "no fear of anything that may happen to me and I will decide the case on the evidence. The public will not decide it. Furthermore, if the facts as shown in the record are such that I would be warranted in giving a new trial to Mayflower descendants, I'll give one to these two Italian immigrants. If it is not good enoug hto give Mayflower descendants a new trial I'll give them none."

He says it slowly, coldly and with the air of one who means exactly what he says. But he fails to give any indication that he is at all happy in the position he finds himself in, or that he does not realize in full the responsibility that is his.

After all, those who know him best say he realizes even better than do counsel on either side that though there be other courts to whom the defendants may turn, their chance of a new trial and possible freedom rests chiefly with him.

MORE EVIDENCE THAT HIGH TARIFF IS NOT NEEDED

titled to it. I can speak only for my own business."

"Nevertheless," said the writer, "isn't it a fact that if there were no tariff on steel you could buy your raw materials cheaper?"

Winchell conceded that he could.

"And if your raw materials were cheaper, couldn't you pay higher wages, cut the price of typewriters, and still make the same profit?"

Reluctantly the witness admitted that it seemed an inevitable conclusion, although once more he insisted that he must not be placed in the position of criticising his fellow manufacturers, nor for that matter, did the writer seek his opinion on the necessity or desirability of protection for other industries. He had given the facts as they affected his own business, and those facts seemed to speak for themselves. What did we find, in the beginning, to be the argument in support of the present tariff? We found it to be as follows:

That the cost of production in foreign countries is so low, due to cheap labor, that if there were no protective tariff the foreign manufacturer could ship his goods into this country, undersell the American manufacturer, and either drive him out of business or compel him to cut wages. That is the argument.

What have we found here in the case of typewriters? We have found an industry which is not protected. It buys raw materials that are protected. It has an exceptionally high labor cost. It has plenty of potential foreign competition. And what has been the result? Foreign competition not only failed to injure it, but actually has been beaten in its own territory. Wages instead of being reduced, have been greatly increased; the price of typewriters to the consumers has remained stationary, while the price of nearly all manufactured commodities that are protected have greatly increased.

What conclusion may we reasonably draw from these facts? We are justified in concluding that the advantages of mass production, more efficient machinery, better workmanship, a superior product and better service, more than offset the advantage of cheaper labor. Indeed, no assumption is necessary; in this case the evidence is conclusive.

FRENCH AND GERMAN AMITY WELCOME, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

spirit of peace into France's foreign relations, or at any rate that he will not interfere with him.

England Will Welcome French-German Amity.

As for Great Britain, she has every reason to be grateful for this rapprochement of two great nations whose animosities and jealousies have disturbed Europe for so long. Discords between France and Germany have drawn us into wars, not merely of late but from the eighteenth century onwards. For generations they have cost us dearly in life and treasure. Our heavy taxes and our stubborn unemployment and unemployed returns are constant reminders of the costliness to Britain of these Franco-German feuds.

Even the great coal crisis through which Britain is now passing is partly due to the invasion of the Ruhr by France and its consequences. Post-war hostile relations between France and Germany have retarded the recovery of trade by perpetuating unrest in Europe.

If France can now settle her difficulties with German help and beyond that conclude an entente, we shall only be too glad. Our chief concern is necessarily to restore the prosperity of our trade and we feel confident that when Europe is once more prosperous, no amount of arrangements or treaties or tariffs or combinations can keep us out or prevent us from having our full share of the new prosperity. If France thinks we shall be apprehensive or jealous of her newly found friendship or that we shall do anything but welcome it, not merely from our lips but from our hearts, it is evident that she completely misunderstands British phychology.

Mayor of French Town 58 Years.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The little village of Saint Simeon in the Department of Orne, is mouring the death of the dean of all French Mayors, M. Laigre-Lessart, who is dead after having been 58 years in the Mayor's chair. There is another record connected with St. Simeon. For more than 22 years M. Laigre-Lessart's father was Mayor of the village, yielding to the son and his father before him occupied the chair for 24 years. Thus the same family held the mayoralty of the village without interruption for 104 years.

SUIT FILED FOR NIGHT AND DAY MONEY

State Finance Department Seeks $10,428 Deposited in Bank at Englewood, Now Defunct.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 2.—A belated effort to recover $10,428 of funds of the wrecked Night and Day Bank of St. Louis, that was a part of the $167,000 shortage of Donald W. Ross, former special Deputy Finance Commissioner in charge of its liquidation, was made today with the filing of a claim by the State Finance Department against assets of the defunct Citizens Security Bank, of Englewood, in which Ross was alleged to have deposited Night and Day funds to his personal account.

The claim involves a test of the liability of a bank for repayment of funds deposited with it by a person who has embezzled the money from another source.

The Finance Department charges the officers of the Englewood Bank knew of the irregularities because Ross deposited in his personal account checks that were made payable to the Night and Day Bank, or were indorsed by Ross as liquidation officer.

The department charges that the nature of the checks was such that it was apparent they represented Night and Day funds.

Ross Withdrew Money

The money was not in the Englewood Bank when it closed early last August, as Ross had withdrawn the two accounts he carried there more than two years ago. The Night and Day Bank closed in 1922 and the shortage in Ross' accounts was discovered in 1923. He now is serving a 10-year sentence in the penitentiary for embezzlement.

Ross is a brother-in-law of P. E. Cole, cashier of the Citizens' Security Bank of Englewood. Affairs of the Englewood bank precipitated a state audit, now in progress, of the handling of automobile license fees collected by Secretary of State Becker's department. The Englewood bank was personally selected by Becker as one of the depositories for automobile license fees, and in turn did some of the financing of a political organ published until recently by Becker and his associates at Excelsior Springs.

Compromise Once Offered.

Negotiations were conducted by the Finance Department with officers of the Englewood Bank, on one or two occasions before the bank closed, to get a compromise of the Ross account. On one occasion the bank officers offered a compromise of $3500, it was stated, but the settlement never was closed and the money not paid.

The claim lists one check of $3180 drawn on the Night and Day liquidation fund, payable to M. E. Geary of St. Louis, and dated November 10, 1922. This was a dividend check on a depositor's claim, it was stated. The department charges that the check was forged with the indorsement of M. E. Geary, and was deposited by Ross in his personal account.

Another check listed was for $7248, drawn by Oreon E. and R. G. Scott of St. Louis, payable to Finance Commissioner J. G. Hughes, for the Night and Day Bank. The check was deposited in Ross' personal account in the Englewood Bank in 1922.

When Ross placed the $7248 check in the Englewood Bank he later was credited with a certificate of deposit for $5000 payable to Ross himself, and the balance was credited to the "D. W. Ross Special Account," according to records of the Englewood Bank.

WASHINGTON U. STUDY TRIP IN ITALY CALLED SUCCESS

A group of 18 university students, under the tutelage of Prof. Paul Valenti of the Washington University School of Architecture, spent the summer in Italy studying classic examples of Greek and Roman architecture.

Prof. Valenti pronounced the experiment of a "traveling university class" a success. His students were abroad from June 26 until Sept. 12, and the trip cost each $625. They received splendid co-operation from the Italian Government, Prof. Valenti said, and many favors extended them materially reduced expenses. Sailing on the Italian steamer Colombo, they were accorded first-class accommodation at second-class rates. Hotels and railroads in Italy made special concessions.

Most of the time was spent in Naples, Palermo and Rome, with visits to other principal cities. The party was received by Premier Mussolini and granted an audience with the Pope. Prof. Valenti conferred with Minister of Education Fedele, who was so enthusiastic about the purposes of the students' tour that he has sponsored a new law admitting foreign students of art and architecture into Italian schools tuition free.

Search for Ancestor Embarassing

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Mayfair is having a good laugh at the expense of an American who came all the way to Europe to trace his ancestor of some 300 years ago, who was a taxpayer in Holborn, a section of London. The books were brought down from their dusty shelves and in due time the name of the ancestor was found. Opposite his name was the remark: "Absconded without paying his rates."

CHILDREN'S STORY HOURS IN EFFECT AT CITY MUSEUM

Classes Under Direction of Miss Mary Powell, Supervisor of Education.

The 1926-27 season of story hours for children and museum hours for adults at the City Art Museum, in Forest Park, began yesterday at 2:30 p. m. when the first weekly story hour was held. The adult hours will be held bi-weekly at 11 a. m. Tuesday and 10 a. m. Friday, the program continuing through May.

The classes, based on exhibits in the museum, are under the direction of Miss Mary Powell, Supervisor of Education at the museum. The children's subject yesterday was "In Ancient Egypt." Tuesday morning the adult subject will be "Landscapes and Marines in the Annual Exhibition of Paintings by American Artists."

WOULD-BE BONDSMAN JAILED ON SUSPICION

John C. Drain, Arrested 123 Times Before, Held for Two 20-Hour Periods.

John C. Drain, who has been arrested 123 times on various charges in the last 12 years, according to police records, owes his latest arrest to his attempt to enter a new field and become a professional bondsman.

Drain, who is about 30 years old and lives at 2126A Oregon avenue, went before the Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction last Aug. 21 and qualified as a bondsman. He made affidavit then that he owned a two-story building at 515 South Twenty-second street, valued at $4000 and assessed at $2500.

His chance came last Monday. Foster Kramer, proprietor of a poolroom at 1910 South Jefferson avenue, was arrested on a liquor charge. Drain went before Judge Calvin Miller in Court of Criminal Correction and got accepted as surety on a $500 common-law bond. Then he hurried to the Soulard Street Police Station to bail out Kramer.

But the police did not like the idea of Drain coming to them as a bondsman. They rejected the bond, discharging Kramer without bond, as there was no real evidence against him. Then they locked up Drain for two periods of 20 hours each, "on suspicion."

Judge Miller said, yesterday, that police might have been justified in refusing Drain's bond, but were "high-handed" in arresting him. Judge Miller said he knew nothing of Drain's record, but accepted him as surety when his responsibility was vouched for by William Trost, grocer, of 4029 Chouteau avenue, a friend of Miller.

Drain, according to police records, was sentenced to the workhouse for 20 days on a petty larceny charge in 1914, was fined $100 on a similar charge in 1915, was sent to the Workhouse for six months on a similar charge in 1916, has been fined six times in police court, from $25 to $500 at a time, on charges of peace disturbance and idling, and has been arrested on more serious charges, but never convicted. His father, a policeman, has declared his son was being persecuted, but this was denied.

QUEEN MARIE WILL VISIT CASTLE ON THE COLUMBIA

Plans to Dedicate Rumanian Room at Maryhill, Wash., Museum.

By the Associated Press.

THE DALLES, Ore., Oct. 1.—Queen Marie of Rumania will signalize the transformation of Maryhill, Wash., castle into an international museum when she visits it on her American tour to dedicate a Rumanian room.

The castle, which crowns a high bluff overlooking the Columbia River about 20 miles east of here, was started a number of years ago when Samuel Hill, good roads advocate and international traveler, was expecting to entertain King Albert of Belgium.

Recently it was announced the castle was to be converted into a museum in which exhibits from various countries of the world would be housed. The Rumanian room will be the first room set aside for an exhibit.

The castle is situated on a 7000-acre estate. It was named in honor of Samuel Hill's wife, a daughter of James J. Hill, empire builder of the Northwest. The structure, built entirely of concrete and metal, is of three stories and contains 44 rooms. Some of the interior is yet unfinished.

INCREASE IN TERMINAL TRAFFIC FOR SEPTEMBER

Car Interchange for Month Was 5½ Per Cent Greater Than for Similar Period in 1925.

President Henry Miller of the Terminal Railroad Association reported yesterday that freight traffic interchanged between connecting lines during September showed a greater increase in volume than in any other month this year.

The interchange in September, 1925, was 217,465 loaded cars; September, 1926, 228,822 loaded cars, an increase of 5½ per cent. For the nine months of 1926 traffic increased 94,000 loads, or 5 per cent.

Although 1925 was a record year in freight traffic, the showing indicates that it will be exceeded this year. All of the lines at this gateway are up to date with car movements.

MISS CLARISSA DYER,
daughter of Mr and Mrs. H. Chouteau Dyer. - Dieckman

Franciscus-Falk Wedding Thursday At New Cathedral

Ceremony Will Be Performed at Noon by Archbishop Glennon — Bride-to-Be Was Veiled Prophet Queen in 1919.

SOCIETY will turn its attention immediately following the Veiled Prophet ball to the wedding of Miss Marian Francis whom His Mysterious Majesty crowned the royal diadem a few years ago, and Oswald Pleus Joseph Falk, which will take place at noon Thursday at the New Cathedral before a brilliant assemblage of friends. The ceremony will be performed by Archbishop John J. Glennon and Monsignor Tannrath will read the nuptial mass.

The bride will be attended by seven young women, some of them contemporary debutantes with her in 1919. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lindsay Franciscus, will be matron of honor, and Miss Lucille Falk, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Eleanor Knapp, Mrs. Wilbur Geoffrey Kimball, formerly Miss Nancy Lee, Mrs. Edmund F. Gorman, formerly Miss Edith Cates, Mrs. Alonzo Christy Church, formerly her marriage Miss Doris Drummond, and Mrs. Harry Hall Knight, who was Miss Mary Hayward, will be bridesmaids. The best men and ushers will be Andrew Jackson Lindsay, Joseph Donohue of New York, Lindsay Franciscus, Morton J. Lucas, Charles M. Franciscus Jr., and John D. Franciscus, brothers of the bride, Henry Farnsworth Bisbee, Dr. Alphonse McMahon, Harry Weldon Knight and Edmund F. Gorman.

Following the ceremony the guests will go to the St. Louis Country Club for a wedding party. After a wedding trip Dr. Falk and his bride will reside in the St. Regis Apartments.

Miss Franciscus is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Madison Franciscus of 10 Lenox place, and is related to a number of socially prominent pioneer families. She is great-granddaughter of John Mullanphy, St. Louis philanthropist, and a great-great-grandson of Bryan Mullanphy. Miss Franciscus is an active member of the Junior League and has been president of the St. Louis Chapter. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville and Miss Wright's school in Bryn Mawr. Dr. Falk is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Falk of 4568 Page boulevard. He is a graduate of the St. Louis University School of Medicine and is a member of the staff of St. John's and the Missouri-Pacific hospitals.

One of the most important weddings of October will be that of Miss Lauralouise Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Price of 6320 Forsythe boulevard, to Samuel Rodger Gay, son of Dr. and Mrs. Rodger Gay of Poplar Bluff, Mo. Miss Price has selected Nov. 6 as the date for her marriage, which will take place at St. Peter's Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock in the evening. She will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Harold Reed Williams. Lee Petit Gay, sister of the prospective bridegroom, Mrs. Robert B. Whittemore III of Ottawa, Ill; Mrs. John Fagg Reynolds of Detroit, Mich.; Miss Jessie Carr, Miss Frances Fristoe, Miss Helen Marsh of Amherstberg, Canada, and Sara Jane Whiteman of Pittsburg, Pa. A reception will be held at the Price home after the ceremony.

Miss Marjorie Brown, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Brown of 501 Clara avenue, will become the bride of Pierce Crosby Bryant of Clarksville, Mo., Saturday, Oct. 16. The wedding will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the prospective bride's mother. Only members of the immediate families will be present. Pierce Crosby, uncle of the bridegroom, will be best man, and Bishop Frederick F. Johnson will officiate. Miss Brown is a graduate of Mary Institute and Briar Cliffe Manor in New York. She made her debut several seasons ago and became a member of the Junior League. Mr. Bryant is a graduate of Randolph Macon College in Virginia.

Many Debutantes To Be Presented Early in Season

AS THE opening of the 1926 season draws nearer, a formidable array of parties, at which an attractive coterie of debutantes will make their bows, appears on the calendar. Miss Martha Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Love of 44 Westmoreland place, who bids fair to be one of the feted buds, will be honor guest at a tea to be given by her mother the afternoon of Nov. 12, and at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Thanksgiving eve, at which her parents will be hosts. She will share honors with Miss Elizabeth Scudder at a dinner at the same club, to be given by Mrs. H. Blaksley Collins, Oct. 16, and with Miss Mary Carter and Miss Anne Kennard Wallace at a similar affair Friday, Oct. 22, by Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Edmunds. Mrs. J. Porter Tirrill will give a luncheon for Miss Love and Miss Eugenie Edmunds later. Miss Carter and her mother, Mrs. L. Ray Carter, are expected home the latter part of the month from England, where they are visiting the debutante's twin sister, Mrs. John Eaton Monins. Miss Wallace and her parents have returned from Magnolia, Mass., and will make her bow at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Dec. 17. Miss Margaret Rumsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Rumsey Jr. will make her debut at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Nov. 6, and on Dec. 4 Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stoner will entertain for her.

Two parties have been planned for Miss Roccena Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Warrington Baldwin of Westmoreland place. Her mother will introduce her at a tea in November, and with Mr. Baldwin will give a dinner dance for her at the St. Louis Country Club Nov. 26.

Mrs. F. R. Peters of 5528 Waterman avenue will give a reception the afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 28, at the Bellerive Country Club to introduce her daughter, Miss Edith, to society. A number of other parties are being arranged for the debutante. Miss Peters was graduated in June from Mary Institute and spent the summer in Europe.

Veiled Prophet and World Series Share Interest This Week

ST. LOUIS, noted for its hospitality, will experience one of the gayest and most interesting periods it has known for years this week with the Veiled Prophet festivities coming in the same week with the world's championship baseball games.

The crowning of the Queen of Love and Beauty will take place at the Coliseum Wednesday night at the forty-ninth ball in honor of his mysterious Majesty and the event will usher in the brilliant winter social season. Seventy-five young women, including the debutantes of the season, will be maids of honor of the Veiled Prophet's Court and an equal number of matrons will share honors. Conjecture as to the identity of the new queen is varied because of the number of young women whose beauty and social graces are factors.

An innovation in the coronation will be introduced this year when the queen will receive her coronet in the middle of the great arena, on a dais below the heads of the

Miss Lydia du Pont of Wilmington, Del., will arrive tomorrow to be the guest of Miss Maud Miller Streett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Streett of 4218 Lindell boulevard, and retiring queen of the Veiled Prophet ball. Miss du Pont will come to St. Louis to attend the Veiled Prophet's ball and will remain as Miss Streett's guest for about 10 days. Another out-of-town visitor will be Miss Elizabeth Houghton of Milwaukee, Wis., who will be the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Samuel D. Capen, of the St. Louis Country Club grounds. Miss Houghton was a debutante last winter in Milwaukee. She will remain as Mrs. Capen's guest for an indefinite period.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Scott Warren of Evanston, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine, to Thomas Bracken Tate of Danville, Ky. The wedding will take place in April. Mr. and Mrs. Warren are former St. Louisans of social prominence.

Relatives Are Guests of Number Of St. Louisans

Mrs. Harry Cooke Williams, of New Mexico Is Visiting Sisters Here.

Mrs. Harry Cooke Williams of Las Cruces, N. M., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Edward L. Adreon of 5706 Cabanne avenue. Mrs. Williams, who is well known socially in St. Louis, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John O'Fallon Clark. She is a sister of Mrs. Rolla Wells of 26 Westmoreland place, and Mrs. Voluntine C. Turner of 5679 Cabanne avenue. Several social affairs have been planned in her honor.

Mrs. Alden H. Little of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis, and her daughter, Miss Marjorie Little, are guests at the Forest Park Hotel. Miss Little will be a bridesmaid at the wedding tomorrow of Miss Jessie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr of 62 Vandeventer place, and John Butler Johnston. Miss Little was a debutante two year ago.

Miss Christiana Wygant, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry S. Wygant of Harrisburg, Pa., is the guest of her brother-in-law and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. Potter Curran of the Castlereigh Apartments, 6820 Delmar boulevard. Miss Wygant also will visit her cousin, Mrs. John O'Fallon Delany of 5105 Lindell boulevard.

Miss Marie Nugent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Nugent, of 5228 Westminster place, has issued invitations for a luncheon to be given Friday at the St. Louis Country Club for Miss Manville of New York, who is Miss Nugent's guest. Miss Nugent with her parents and her sister, Miss Edwine Nugent, recently returned from their summer home in Eastern Point, New London, Conn.

Mrs. Robert Blackmore Whittemore of Ottawa, Ill., is visiting her mother, Mrs. George Lane Edwards of the Forest Park Hotel. Mrs. Whittemore will be an attendant at the Carr-Johnstone wedding tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gorman Lambert, who have been passing their honeymoon at Spear Ranch, Wyo., have arrived to visit Mrs. Lambert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Caleb Sipple of Brentmoor Park. Mrs. Lambert was Miss Mary Sipple before her marriage, which took place last month at Hyannisport, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert will make their home in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Voluntine C. Turner of 5679 Cabanne avenue has as her guest her aunt, Mrs. John Winthrop, of Talahassee, Fla. Mrs. Winthrop will also visit another niece, Mrs. Jesse McDonald, of 4542 Pershing avenue.

Veiled Prophet and World Series Share Interest

spectators. Previous to this season the throne has been placed at the end of the immense room.

During the coronation ceremonies the "Coronation March" from the opera "Le Prophet," by Meyerbeer, will be played by an orchestra of 75 musicians under the direction of Gene Rodemich. Following her coronation, the queen and the Veiled Prophet will open the ball by dancing with others of the royal court.

The opening dance will be followed by the promenade around the ball room, to the accompaniment of the march from Gounod's "La Reine de Saba' and a march from the ballet "Sylvia," by Delibes. The former queen will be seated in a box at the east side of the Coliseum and will receive the homage of the promenaders.

The newly acclaimed favorite of society, her maids and their escorts will be entertained at dinner at the St. Louis Country Club following the Veiled Prophet's ball.

Capitol Society Saves Thursdays for White House

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Washington society learned Thursday from Mrs. Coolidge the dates of the formal White House entertainments this winter. The program of receptions and dinners to be given by the President and Mrs. Coolidge will begin Thursday, Dec. 2, with the cabinet dinner. On Dec. 9 will come the diplomatic reception always the most brilliant event of the season to be followed on Dec. 16 by the diplomatic dinner.

The largest reception of the season will be the New Year's reception which will be open to the general public. On Jan. 13 will come the judicial reception followed by the Supreme Court dinner on Jan. 20 while on Feb. 3 will be held the popular Congressional dinner followed by the speakers dinner on Feb. 10, while the formal White House season will be ended on Feb. 17, by the Army and Navy reception.

All these dinners and receptions will be held on Thursdays so that day will be reserved for such purposes by the hostesses of Washington.

Mrs. Hodgkins will go to Philadelphia on Wednesday, when she will attend the sesquicentennial as a representative of the Washington School Board at the District of Columbia day.

Mrs. Joshhua Evans Jr. entertained at luncheon this week, when her guests included a number of the women who are members of the Scholarship Committee of George Washington University.

One of the outstanding events of the week have been the Pan-American Conference for Public Health and President and Mrs. Coolidge entertained the delegates at a reception at the White House on Thursday while Surgeon-General and Mrs. Hugh Cumming entertained for them on Friday at a tea in the Pan-American Union Building.

Lady Astor, who has been spending ten days at Mirador, Greenwood, Va., her childhood home, came to Washington Friday for a day's visit, where she was the guest of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg. Lady Astor left on Saturday for New York, where she sails on the Aquitania on Oct. 6 for London. Viscount Astor and her children preceded her to England.

The Sports Mode to the Fore! This Week All Smart St. Louis Dons Gala Attire for "The Games"

A WEEK of weeks is this, with World Series games and Fall racing at Fairmount setting all feminine St. Louis a-whirl with thoughts of sports clothes. For these and other events when the sports mode is the only smart mode, the Sports Center has frocks and coats in just the right styles—distinctive and individual. Some are suggested here.

Dashing Sports Coats
$49.75 to $79.50

Soft, sportsy woolens in rich mixtures, bold plaids and good-looking patterns are tailored on simple sports lines, and richly complemented with mushroom, shawl collars, and full-length bands of fur.

Other Coats in individual models, up to $175; and many smart Coats as low as $39.75

Knitted Sports Costumes
$19.75 and $25.00

The very essence of chic for sports wear are two-piece knitted suits, some with blouses in bands of bright color, and plain-color skirts showing the new triple side-pleats. A most attractive selection.

A pullover blouse knitted in "grapevine" stitch in several shades of one color, is $12.75

(Sports Center—Third Floor.)

The Charmosette Girdle Fashioned by Gossard

Of Their Newest Fabric

$12.50

Charmosette, the tested new elastic fabric which will launder and give excellent service without tear, pull or break is combined with another new fabric—royal batiste—into a Girdle to meet the requirements of the well-groomed woman so that she may achieve the lines of the new silhouette.

Gossard Corset, $5.00

An exceptional value is this front-lace Gossard Corset skillfully tailored of fine broche with elastic insets to hold the figure yet give freedom.

(Corset Salon—Second Floor.)

Border Woolens, $3.95

For Frocks and Coats

Bordered Woolens are interesting in colors that are gay or subdued, woven into fancy borders. An excellent quality, soft in texture that is suitable for dresses or light weight coats. 54 inches wide.

Dress Woolens
$2.50 Yard

Flannels and fine serges in the newest and most flattering colors for women's and children's frocks. 54 inches wide.

Velour de Laine
$5.50 Yard

An exceptionally fine coating cloth, soft in texture and firmly woven of selected wool. Tan, gray, blue and green; 54-inch.

Novelty Tweed Coatings
$4.98 and $6.98

For the tailored suit or coat, nothing could be smarter than Tweed in its interesting weave and color combinations. The selection is attractive and the quality is excellent. 54 inches wide.

Weddings and Engagements

Alfred C. Pohle and George F. Faerber.

Among the out-of-town guests, who have arrived for the wedding, is the prospective bride's grandmother, Mrs. Louise Clayton, of Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Moore, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Martin of Maple avenue, will come to St. Louis Tuesday.

A number of affairs have been given in honor of Miss Underhill. The Misses Phyllis and Martha Casey of 5929 Waterman avenue entertained for her last week with a bridge luncheon and the week before Mrs. Brennan gave a similar party for the prospective bride at her home, 3632 Cleveland avenue.

Both Miss Underhill and Mr. Detjen are graduates of Washington University. After their return from their honeymoon they will reside in Wydown Forest, Clayton, where their new home has just been completed.

The marriage of Miss Lucille Lederle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lederle of 2931 Sullivan avenue, and Fred Seifried took place Sept. 22 at 9 a. m., at St. Augustine's Church, the Rev. J. A. Dubert officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Cora Lederle, and Mr. Seifried had Albert Test of Charleston, Mo., as his best man. Mr. and Mrs. Seifried will be at home after Oct. 15, at 3523 Greer avenue.

Mrs. Samuel Ritter of 5620 Maple avenue has announced the engagement of her daughter, Bettye, to Ben F. Berger, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Berger of 4638 Page boulevard.

Miss Betty Conway, daughter of Mrs. Helen Conway of 1959 Semple avenue, and Frank P. McIntyre were married at St. Edward's Church, Sept. 6, at 9 a. m., the Rev. T. J. Lloyd officiating. The bride was attended by Mrs. E. T. McFarland as matron of honor and Miss Alma Lucille Stark as bridesmaid.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, made simply with a draped skirt caught with a pearl ornament. Her tulle veil was arranged with a pearl coronet and she carried a shower of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor was gowned in Nile green georgette, with which she wore a picture hat to match. She carried Columbia roses. Miss Stark wore pink georgette, with a garden hat of white hair braid, trimmed with a pink water lily. Her flowers were butterfly roses. The young nieces of the bridegroom—Rosemary McIntyre and Nadine Schiller—were flower girls and wore pink chiffon frocks. They carried baskets of butterfly roses and baby breath. Mr. McIntyre had as his best man Raymond McIntyre and as groomsman, Charles Stewart. Henry Schiller and Arthur Manley served as ushers. A wedding breakfast was served at the Buckingham Hotel for the immediate families of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre spent their honeymoon in the East and are making their home at 5536 Pershing avenue, where they have leased an apartment.

Mrs. Mary Wohlstadter of 1312 Crittenden street announces the engagement of her daughter, Martha, to Bert Bentley of St. Louis. The marriage will take place Nov. 25, at 2 p. m. A wedding reception will be held at the home of the prospective bride's mother in the evening.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Gladys Mizell of Affton, Mo., to Leon A. Klink of 3505 South Grand boulevard. The marriage took place at St. Anthony's Church at 9 a. m., Sept. 30.

The wedding of Mrs. Olive Holbert Gibson, a St. Louis artist, and Roy Orestes Chaffee of Webster Groves, took place Sept. 28 at the Webster Groves Congregational Church, the Rev. Dr. Dwight Bradley officiating.

A reception for 100 guests followed at the Shortridge Galleries, 4418 Washington boulevard, with Mr. and Mrs. Shortridge as hosts. The bride's gown was rose-blue crepe meteor and her hat and hose were in corresponding tones. She carried cloth-of-gold roses.

The bridal table was laid at one end of the gallery and the other was an old-fashioned garden. Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee departed on an automobile trip east on their honeymoon.

Among the pre-wedding parties for the bride were a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. John Sluggert, Friday, Sept. 17; dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark, Webster Groves, Sept. 20; dinner, by Mrs. Vinnie Davis, sister of the bride, Sept. 22, at her home, 23 South Taylor avenue; luncheon and shower, Sept. 24, by Mrs. Charles Parks, Claytonia terrace; and parties by Mrs. Francis M. Allen, Mrs. W. B. Stephenson and Mrs. Shortridge, respectively, Saturday, Sept. 25. Mrs. Shortridge entertained 60 guests at luncheon.

Mrs. T. Rosser Roemer of 3368 Shaw avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Virginia, to John Clifford Patrick of Los Angeles, Cal., Monday, Sept. 27, the Rev. Father J. J. Hedderman of St. Margeret's Church officiating. Miss Berenice Roemer was her sister's maid of honor, and Charles Ward best man. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick have departed for Los Angeles and will be at home there after Nov. 1 at 3514 Sommerset drive.

Miss Henriettte Peltason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo H. Peltason of 6014 Westminster place, was married Thursday to Irwin R. Harris. The ceremony was performed at Hotel Chase by Rabbi Louis Witt and was followed by a wedding breakfast. The bride wore a gray ensemble costume and a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] departed the same day for [illegible] on a wedding trip.

The marriage of Miss [illegible]rish, daughter of Mr. and [illegible] Darrish, 4131 Flad [illegible] Aaron Kohner, will take [illegible] evening at 7:30 p. m. at [illegible] Temple. Engaged Couple Guests of Honor at Several Affairs — Author to Read New Play at Studio Opening.

Miss Jessie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr, of 62 Vandeventer place, and her fiance, John Butler Johnstone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Johnstone of Hampton Court, were the guests of honor at a number of social affairs last week. Miss Frances Fristoe gave a dinner for them at her home, 5257 Washington boulevard, Tuesday evening. Wednesday evening Mrs. Leonard Hall of 4947 Buckingham court, gave a dinner for the bride and her attendants. The same evening Mr. Johnstone gave his bachelor dinner at the Missouri Athletic Association. Miss Carr was complimented with a luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club Wednesday, at which her sister-in-law, Mrs. Peyton T. Carr Jr., was hostess. Mrs. Johnstone, mother of the prospective bridegroom, entertained Miss Carr and her attendants at luncheon Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Carr, parents of the bride to be, will give a dinner following the rehearsal at their home, and this evening Miss Lauralouise Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Price of 6320 Forsythe boulevard, will entertain 30 guests at a buffet supper for the engaged couple. The wedding will take place tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock.

Among the social affairs of last week was a dinner given by James M. Franciscus of 10 Lenox place, at the Florissant Valley Country Club Tuesday evening for his prospective son-in-law, Dr. Oswald Pleus Joseph Falk, whose marriage to Miss Marian Franciscus will be a society event of Oct. 7. Those present included Dr. Harvey G. Mudd, Col. Joseph Gilman Miller, Breckinridge Jones, Charles Morrill, Frank Victor Hammar, James M. Franciscus Jr., Andrew Jackson Lindsay, Henry Miller, Edward A. Faust, Harry Block and Lindsay Franciscus.

Miss Carla Clingman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Clingman of the Forest Park Hotel, entertained 25 of her friends Friday evening in the Oriental room of the hotel. The guests came dressed as children and spent the evening playing children's games and dancing. A buffet supper was served.

Mrs. Donald MacDonald will read her new play, "Cartouche," at the opening of her new studio, The Little Theater, on the third floor of her new home, 4448 Washington boulevard, Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. This is Mrs. MacDonald's third play.

A group of students of the art department of Lindenwood College, under the tutelage of Miss Alice Linnemann, will visit the St. Louis Art Museum Saturday, Oct. 9. They expect especially to inspect the work of the American artists' collection.

The Euthenics Club of Lindenwood's home economics department has elected officers as follows: President, Miss Marjory Wills; vice president, Miss Ruth Foster; secretary, Miss Marguerite Tainter; treasurer, Miss Bessie McNary.

The Good Fellowship Club will hold its regular Friday evening meeting Oct. 8 at Westminster Hall, 3806 Olive street. Those interested may attend.

Actress Tells Secret

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water all 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

Makes Hair Behave But Doesn't Show!

There's a way to keep your hair just-so, without any of that objectionable, "plastered-down" look. Just use a few drops of Danderine—comb it through hair, or use a Danderine dampened towel—you'll be amazed at the way your hair then behaves, and its beautiful luster!

Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff. Dissolves every bit of it. Puts scalp in the pink of condition. Invigorates hair and hair-roots. Why use anything else?

Just in Time for the World's Series

BROADWAY, FOURTH, WASHINGTON AND ST. CHARLES PHONE GARFIELD 4500

Smashing All Our Radio Sales Records!

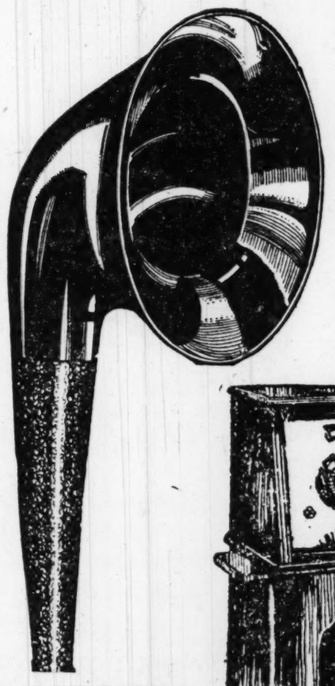
Just a year ago our enlarged Radio Department held its first sensational sale. Thousands of dollars' worth of radio sets were sold. New selling records were established. This year we are determined to smash all previous records.

Our Radio Buyer planned this year's event months ago—so that values would be most remarkable—that only high quality sets would be offered—and the price would be amazingly low. There is no question that he has more than succeeded.

Here Is a Radio Value That Will Surprise Even Those Who Have Learned to Expect the Supreme Value at Nugents. Never Have We Offered You Such a Radio Opportunity

500 MORE 5-TUBE GENUINE FRESHMAN MASTERPIECE RADIO SETS

Equipped With All Accessories—Nothing Else to Buy



The New Freshman Consolette

5-Tube Set Completely Equipped—at an Amazing Low Price

A special feature of the sale is the first introduction of the dainty Consolette Model, the last word in radio tone and beauty.

A tremendous concession was made by the manufacturer to allow us to offer this Radio at the unheard-of price of $79.50.

Completely Equipped

Nothing Else to Buy

- Freshman Consolette
- Manhattan Senior Speaker
- Complete Aerial
- 5 Cunningham CX301A Tubes
- 1 (100 Ampere) Rubber-Case Storage Battery
- 2 (45-Volt) Beacon B Batteries

The Consolette Pictured

Is one-piece; 36½ inches high, 19½ inches wide, 10 inches deep. Ideal for the small apartment.

$79.50

Small First Payment! TERMS As Low as $3 Weekly

The rich duo-tone Mahogany Cabinet Work, the Slender Lines Make this Consolette Appropriate to Any Music Room or Boudoir

The fastidious woman who dislikes batteries and wire around the floor will delight in this graceful model which conceals the equipment. The batteries, tubes, speaker are all contained inside the cabinet. The new peephole speedometer-type dials are an important feature for precise, accurate tuning.

This is a complete Freshman unit, not to be confused with assembled sets in cheap cabinets. The low price of $79.50 includes complete equipment—nothing to buy—and every item of equipment has passed the rigid test of the Fleetwood Laboratories, New York, who only approve accessories of high standard.

Just a word about our sale of Freshman Sets advertised at the opening of the Harvest Sale. Our entire allotment has been completely sold and we cannot secure additional models. In place we offer the above consolette, a startling value and price.

DEAFNESS REPORTED CURED BY INVISIBLE DISCOVERY

That instant and permanent relief for deaf persons can be gained has been proven by the wonderful discovery of the eminent Detroit specialist, Mr. Geo. P. Way, who himself was formerly deaf for 25 years. Strangely unlike anything else, his amazing invention is said to be restoring the hearing of thousands of people where everything else failed. Some of the remarkable features of his invention are its invisibility, its feeling of natural comfort and the fact it can be used day and day without even knowing it is on. Mr. Way is glad to send any deaf person who writes, the true story of how he restored his hearing and how he can make you hear. Write him at 766 Hoffman Bldg., 2539 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich.

Women's Clubs and Societies

The first meeting of the Wednesday Club for the fall season will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The Poetics and Education sections will meet, the sessions to be followed by a tea. Mrs. Samuel P. Goddard is chairman of the Poetics section. Mrs. A. R Smyth, winner of the club's first award for original verse, will be the leader for the first meeting. Mrs. Smyth has chosen Edna St. Vincent Millay, Lizette Woodworth Reese and Eunice Tietjens from American contemporary poets for discussion. Miss Elizabeth Hays will assist Mrs. Smyth by readings from the work of the above mentioned poets. Soprano illustrations will be given by a club member, Mrs. Carl Howard. At the beginning of the program original verse by club members will be read by Mrs. Chester Williamson.

The Education Section, of which Mrs. T. W. Van Schoiack is chairman, will meet at 3 o'clock. The subject will be "Vitalizing the Curriculum for Home Making." Mrs. George Bass will be the leader. Mrs. Frances Vinton Ward, lecturer in Home Economics at Washington University in the Extension Division, will be the speaker for the afternoon. Prof. E. W. St. Louis Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, celebrated its third anniversary with a luncheon at the Fairmont Hotel last Monday, with Mrs. Edward P. Walsh, regent, presiding. The three vice-presidents lighted the candles, each giving a toast to the chapter. Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, an honorary State president, told of the memorial service in memory of the massacre at Ft. Dearborn. Mrs. Ottofy had the honor of placing the wreath on the statue, as her grandfather was one of those who fell at that time.

The "Star-Spangled Banner" has been selected by the chapter as its hymn. Mrs. W. R. Painter of Carrollton, Mo., chairman of Historic Sights, presented the chapter with a banner on which is painted the Seal of Missouri. Mrs. William Baer gave several musical numbers. Mrs. Eugene Crutcher of Nashville, Tenn., a guest of honor, related events of her home chapter. Mrs. Elias Michael, a member of the school board, spoke on "Patriotism."

After the summer vacation the Book Club resumed its regular meetings last Monday at the residence of Mrs. J. C. Blythe of 6135 Victoria avenue. There was no program for the day, but the time was spent in hearing the members tell where and how they had spent the summer. Mrs. J. H. Roth was elected a delegate to the biennial to be held in Columbia, Mo., this month.

The social section of the Scottish Rite Woman's Club will give a card party in the lounge of the cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard, Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. John A. The Alpha Delphian Chapter held its first meeting of the year at the Shaw Branch Library Tuesday. A social hour preceded the program. Next Tuesday the Alpha Chapter will meet at the Art Museum at 11 a. m. to hear a lecture on the "Exhibit of American Artists," now on display there.

The first regular meeting of the year of the St. Louis College Club will be held at the clubhouse, 5428 Delmar boulevard, at 3 p. m. It will be largely a social affair and in charge of the Hospitality Committee, of which Mrs. Roy V. Coffey is the chairman. Miss Viola Green of this committee, who is to be hostess for October, will have active charge. The former presidents of the club will act, with the members of the Hospitality Committee, as hostesses for the afternoon. Elaborate preparations are being made for this opening tea, at which Mrs. Evarts Graham and Mrs. Edmund F. Brown, former presidents of the College Club, will preside. A short business meeting will be held at the close of the afternoon for the purpose of voting upon the budget of the Finance Committee.

The Fiction and Drama Study Group will meet Friday for organization. There will be a short discussion of the humorous works of Marcus Roy Cohen, particularly the stories contained in "Black and Blue." A number of invitations have been issued by members of the group to their friends. Tea will be served.

Last Friday Mrs. F. Ray Leimkuehler gave a tea for the officers, board of directors and the committee chairmen at the clubhouse.

The Woman's Chamber of Commerce has opened its new office in the City Club Building and will formally inaugurate its fall activities Thursday, with a luncheon and program at the Missouri Hotel. City Club Building. Former Gov. Gardner will speak on "Missouri Day Celebration." Another feature of the program will be a talk on the subject of the proposed county and city merger. Dwight Currie, former president of the St. Louis Bar Association, will talk on "Greater St. Louis," and Dr. Stephens, professor of economics at Washington University, will talk against the consolidation. The public has been invited and members of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce have been asked to attend.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready for use, for only 75 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Grandmother's Age

Looks like a girl of 19

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Mine is a grandmother's age. My life has been spent in the limelight. Yet I am still a stage star, still a beauty, still a girl. Thousands who see me daily marvel at my youthful bloom. Countless young girls envy my hair and complexion.

I sailed on Steamer Homeric, June 12, 1926, for my 35th trip to France. I go there every year to keep in intimate touch with the latest beauty discoveries.

I have searched the world for beauty aids. The best I found were produced by French experts. I became by their help a famous beauty, gained a glorious career. They have preserved my beauty, kept my youth, as all who see me know.

Now I am placing these helps at every woman's call. Toilet counters everywhere supply them in my name. Every girl and woman who desires may use exactly what I use, and at a modest cost.

My Beauty Aids

White Youth Clay—Purges the skin of impurities. Combats lines and wrinkles. Brings a new complexion.
Facial Youth—A liquid skin cleanser. Cleans to the depths taking grime, dirt, dead skin and clogging matter with it.
Youth Cream—To soften, whiten, feed and beautify the skin. Cold cream and Vanishing types. Both are unsurpassed.
Hair Youth—Combats dandruff. Stimulates hair roots. Exquisitely perfumed. Apply with eye dropper.
Youth Cream Powder—Heavy clinging cold cream type. Favorite of Stage stars.
Light Face Powder—Fluffy and exquisite. Highest type possible to produce.
Quindent Tooth Paste—Utmost in a dentifrice. Whitens teeth—purifies breath.
Beauty Talc—Fine as vapor.
Fruity Shampoo—To cleanse, restore lustre, beautify hair and make it glisten.
Youth Hand Lotion—For hands, face, arms, chapped skin, sun or windburn and all roughness. Heals chapped lips.
Wave and Sheen (Greaseless Hair Dressing)—A many-purpose hair beautifier. Gives instant results. Brush down for smooth, sleek appearance. Comb upward for fluff and wave. Use curlers for fixed enduring curl.
Cream Deodorant—Refined under-arm cream. Best I have ever found.
Liquid Nail Polish—For youthful tint and lustre. Imparts a brilliant gloss.
Hair Remover—For superfluous hair on any part of body.
Eye Bath—For tired, aching, inflamed eyes, to preserve lustre and brilliancy.
No-Shine—Astringent Cream. Ends all shine on the nose or forehead.
Freckle Cream—Banishes freckles quickly.
Eyebrow-Eyelash Beautifier—Indispensible toilet requisite.
Lipstick—True to nature. Exquisite case.
Vanity Rouge Compact—Incomparable for beauty and daintiness.
Beauty Soap—For those who demand the best.

Island and its Bras d'Or ... known to yachtsmen the world over, then to Grand Pre and the Evangeline country.

Romantically Lovely Grand Pre.

"There is on all this continent nothing more truly romantic than the Grand Pre country," said Prof. Murray. "This region is superbly beautiful, with its mingled charms of land and sea, its low ranges, fertile valleys and fine farms, its wonderful apple orchards. We shall always remember Cape Blomidon, and its long bluffs across from Grand Pre and projecting into the Minas Basin, a spreading out inland of the Bay of Fundy. On the other side South Mountain, the famed Gasperaux River and valley at its base, and the orchards on the mountain sides. And everywhere memories of the Acadians and their sad fate."

The Bras d'Or lakes, Prof. Murray said, are long and varied of outline, in places narrow and river-like, in others several miles wide, their bold, rugged shores clothed with forests.

From Grand Pre, they retraced their way to Moncton and followed the shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the province's northern limit at Campbellton, on the lovely Restigouche River. They found Nova Scotia roads generally excellent gravel, and had a good gravel road along the Restigouche until they crossed it into Quebec province.

50 PER CENT OF ARKANSAS ACCIDENTS ARE BLAMED ON DRUNKEN, CARELESS DRIVER

By the Associated Press.

FIFTY per cent of the traffic accidents reported to the State Highway Department by employes of the State roads from Jan. 1, 1924, to Dec. 31, 1925, could have been avoided by the elimination of the careless, reckless and drunken drivers, an analysis published by Office Engineer O. Hemphill in a department bulletin declares

LUXURY CAR FOR HINDU POTENTATE BUILT IN ENGLAND

Auto Has Three Powerful Searchlights for Use on Big Game Hunting Expeditions at Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—A remarkable car has just been completed in England for an Indian potentate, Prince Hamidullah Khan, the reigning Nawab of Bhopal. Its body and equipment have been designed for the use of Hamidullah Khan himself on big-game shooting expeditions, and the car is one of a large number of British cars of various types that he has had shipped to him recently.

Holds Four Passengers.

This special car accommodates four passengers, the front seats being adjustable and separate. The accommodations at the rear is a double-seated dickey, with plenty of leg room, the passengers being protected by a hinged lid fitted with a V-shaped screen similar to that mounted in front. Both screens are so arranged that they can almost instantly be lowered so as to fall forward flat on the decks," thus allowing the personnel complete freedom of scope for their guns and rifles.

The folding top applies to the front compartment only. It can be erected or lowered in a moment, and when out of use falls down perfectly flat. The finish of the dashboard is in teak, calculated to resist the effects of heat and sunlight, the body itself being oil finished in a grained imitation of natural wood.

Clips for Rifle Barrels.

On each flank of the body there are clips for the barrels of high-velocity rifles, suitable wells for the butts being sunk in the running boards. Special compartments inside the front doors provide accommodation for automatic pistols of large caliber, with convenient pockets for ammunition. The main supply of cartridges is carried in a locker at the tail end of the body. On the luggage carrier is mounted a special trunk, fitted with tiffin baskets, ice chests, Thermos flasks, etc.

An equipment of lamps is provided, with a view to rendering the car particularly suitable for big-game shooting at night. In addition to the two head lamps with a dipping mechanism, the two side lamps and the tail lamp, which, comprise the normal lighting set, there is a powerful searchlight arranged immediately in front of the middle of the radiator. This can be moved through an angle of 45 degrees by means of a knurled wheel on the instrument board. Then there are two high-power spotlights, one on each side of the cowl; these are within reach of the front passengers and can be moved in any direction, being mounted on universal joints.

Two High Power Lights.

Next are two high-power searchlights designed to be manipulated by the rear passengers; they are attached to telescopic standards, which not only provide for movement in all directions, but allow the lamps to be raised to such a height that their beams are clear of the folding top when it is raised.

These rear searchlights are detachable, and to allow them to be used at a distance from the car (for example, when picking up game) cables of 300 feet in length are furnished; these cables when not required are wound upon small windlasses attached to the running boards. When in action these windlasses are swung outward on hinges.

Such a large demand on the electric current necessitates the use of a special installation of accumulators, of which four are carried; two in a metal locker on the left-hand running board, and one on

Extension Searchlights on Rear of Prince's Hunting Car

PASSENGER CAR OF 300 HORSEPOWER BUILT BY BUGATTI

Construction Details of Auto With 180-Inch Wheel Base—Will Sell for $15,000 in France.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Sept. 22 (by mail)—In the Alsatian (French) village of Molsheim, where M. E'ttore Bugatti (maker of Bugatti racing cars which won the world's championship this year) has his factory, a new car is being made that is difficult to compare with any existing automobile. In the first place it has an engine of exceptional size, with eight cylinders of five-inch bore and six-inch stroke, giving a capacity of 915 cubic inches, and in building it no expense has been spared to attain perfection.

The size of the car is very much greater than that of any other private passenger vehicle, for it has a wheel base of slightly more than 180 inches, and a tread of 66 inches. It will carry a seven-passenger body, and as a model M. Bugatti has taken a body off an eight-cylinder Packard chassis and has placed it on the first of his own chassis with less rear overhang than usual.

300 Horsepower Available.

There is no intention of producing this car in big numbers, but at the same time most elaborate machinery is being laid down, and jigs and dies are being made so that the parts will be rigorously interchangeable, while the instructions accompanying the drawings permit no latitude in dimension anywhere. The selling price of the car is not decided, but it will be not less than $15,000 in France. The "Golden Bugatti" or ("Gold Bug"), as it has been termed by those who have

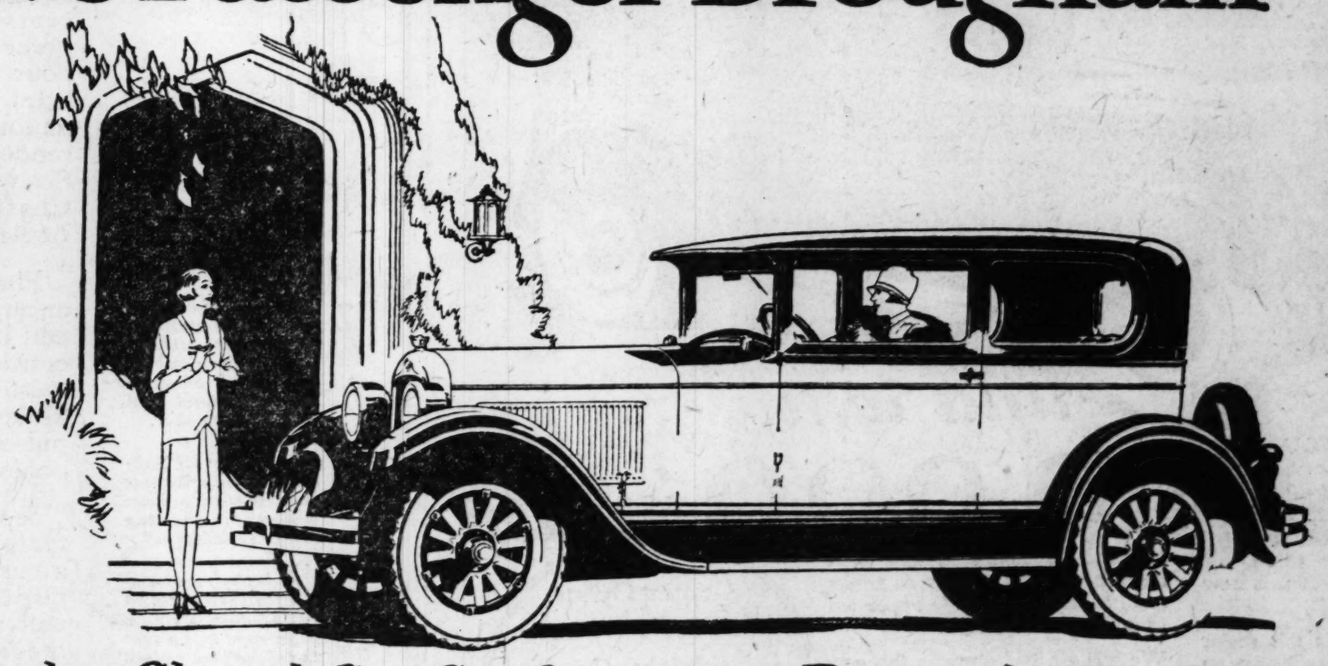
Announcing the NEW Five-Passenger Brougham



The Beautiful Hupmobile Eight Brougham

$2245

F.O.B. DETROIT, PLUS TAX

Eight Cylinder Closed Car Comfort at a Remarkable Price

A refreshing departure from ordinary body types, the new Hupmobile Brougham offers eight-cylinder smoothness and performance with compact beauty of line and supreme riding comfort for five adult passengers.

At the lowest price ever placed on a closed car mounted on the Eight chassis, the Brougham stands out as one of the really great values of the year.

Built for those who prefer an intimate car—and whose choice has heretofore been confined to the coach or 4-passenger coupe types—this distinctive car affords immensely greater luxury, comfort and convenience.

Without sacrifice of exterior beauty, the Brougham provides exceptionally generous seating capacity.

Two front passengers are accommodated by extra large individual seats, deeply upholstered and tilting forward to allow access to the rear seat.

Three passengers in the rear occupy a generously wide seat, with upholstered arm rests on each side. Two wide doors permit easy entrance and exit from either side.

The mohair upholstery is identical with that furnished in the highest priced Hupmobile Eight closed cars. Exterior finish is Pelham Blue, with black upper structure. Rear deck space is provided for a large trunk.

Combined with the finest of straight-eight performance, and Hupmobile reputation for reliability, long life and low cost of maintenance, the Brougham meets the needs of a great majority of motorists.

See the new Brougham now on display at our salesrooms. You will be amazed at its custom beauty and luxurious appointments.

If you prefer, a car will be sent to your home or office at a time convenient to you.

seen it, will be produced concurrently with other models.

In full running order this Bugatti will weigh slightly less than 3000 pounds, but to propel this weight it has an engine developing 300 horsepower at 1700 revolutions, thus giving a ratio of less than 20-pound per horsepower. There are three gears, one being an emergency or starting gear, the second being the direct drive, and the third a geared-up ratio for very fast travel.

The engine weighs 770 pounds, of which 238 are accounted for by the cast-iron cylinder block, and 220 represent the crankshaft, without the flywheel. Examined externally, it is difficult to understand how the engine is built, for it appears to be a huge block of aluminum, with carburetors added on one side and exhaust pipes on the opposite side.

Water-Cooled Bearings.

The peculiarity lies in the casting, which is an extraordinary piece of work, for the eight cylinders, measuring 55 inches from end to end, form a single block with an integral head, having a water space completely around each cylinder barrel, and the water-jacket extending right down to the nine crankshaft bearings. The main shaft is carried, not in a separate crankcase, but by the cylinder block itself. In other words, this casting, with its water-cooled main bearings, constitutes practically the complete engine; the light aluminum casings built around it act as dust excluders and oil and water retainers, and in no way add to the rigidity or solidity of the whole.

The crankshaft has circular webs; it is carried in nine plain bearings; the pistons are a special aluminum alloy; the connecting rods are I-section, and the big-ends have white metal bearings. By reason of the machinery installed and the processes employed, there is no hand-scraping at all, and it is claimed that the rods and their bearings come off the machine rigorously exact to a thousandth of an inch, and any rod and piston can be changed for any other. The valve arrangement is similar to that of other Bugatti engines, there being two inlets and one exhaust, with an overhead camshaft.

Engine Mounting Unusual.

Three bronze hangers on each side attach the engine to the frame, but instead of the bolts being secured to the outer aluminum casting, as might be thought at first sight, they go right through the cast-iron cylinder block. Dry-sump lubrication is fitted, there being two scavenging pumps and one feed pump from a tank on the forward face of the dashboard. Double ignition is used by magneto, and battery and coil of a special type.

Separate from the engine, immediately under the driver's seat, are a light flywheel and clutch contained in an aluminum housing. The three-speed gears are in the rear axle, which has a central housing of aluminum and two tubes containing the drive shafts. Straight bevels are used for the direct final drive.

The frame members are special by reason of their dimensions, for they have a depth at the center of 10 inches. The front springs are semi-elliptics, having their rear extremities received between semi-circular bronze blocks. At the rear there are two sets of quarter-elliptic springs, one pair being behind the axle, outside the frame members, and the other set, which only come into play when a heavy load is carried, being ahead of the axle and beneath the frame members.

Front Axle Construction.

A front axle of the same general type as that used on the Bugatti racing cars is employed. The construction of this is very unusual. It is a straight forging bored out from end to end, and having a greater thickness of metal outside the spring seats than is really necessary. After being bored out, the two extremities are hammered up until they are almost solid, the axle is heated and shaped, and the finished article is a one-piece axle, hollow in the center and solid at the extremities.

The tires for this car have had to be specially made; they are straight-side balloons of 1000x180 m. m., mounted on special aluminum wheels forming a single casting with the brake drums.

There are innumerable details of construction which attract attention. All the brake rods are on roller bearings. The wearing parts of the universal joint can be changed in five minutes. The radiator filler cap is a bevel-faced valve with a hinge and a quick release catch. Instead of an automatic oiling system for the chassis parts, the design is such that attention has to be given only once every month or six weeks.

There is no intention of exhibiting this car at either the Paris or London shows, for it is recognized that it will not appeal to the ordinary purchaser.

ST. LOUISANS FIND NOVA SCOTIA HAS SUPERB SCENERY

Quebec, and the Quebec-Montreal highway they found paved. On the way to Quebec, they were much of the time in sight of the river, which for many miles was very wide, with a number of islands. Whenever they were out of sight of the river, they were impressed by the uniformity of the narrow, rectangular fields, the closeness of buildings to the roads, the clustering of villages, and the inability of the inhabitants to speak English or to sympathize in any way with the viewpoint of other Canadians. It was like traversing a foreign country.

There was little to see away from the river, Prof. Murray said, and much monotonous forest driving, whereas the Nova Scotia scenery was varied and always beautiful. "In 800 miles of motoring in Nova Scotia," he commented, "we never found anything tame."

A charming drive was of 25 miles down the north shore of the St. Lawrence, from Quebec to the Shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, with the lovely Island of Orleans in plain view all the way. This island slopes gently from the river's edge to a flat top of strangely uniform height.

On the way from Quebec to Montreal they found more varied scenery, especially when in sight of the river.

They were told that the road to Toronto was in bad condition, so turned south from Montreal, crossed the Victoria Bridge, at the foot of the famous Lachine Rapids, and motored into New York State and the Adirondacks, turning aside at Elizabethtown to cross the mountains to Westport, on the shore of Lake Champlain, then running south to Port Henry and back over the mountains to Chestertown and south to Lake George, Saratoga and Schenectady where they visited the WGY radio station, and home via Buffalo, Cleveland, Elkhart, Chicago Heights and Springfield, Ill.

Prof. Murray said that the only really good detours they found were in New York.

They made the trip in a Buick "Master Six" sedan, and Prof. Murray said they made every grade on high gear when the road was not obstructed, had no repairs or adjustments to make and no trouble of any kind except two punctures.

The Stubborn Problem of 31 Years Solved in the Rubber-Silenced Chassis

1 The Harmonic Balancer—built into the Oakland crankshaft—eliminating torsional vibration.

2 Close-up section of engine mounting, showing rubber cushion and complete rubber insulation between motor support and frame side-member.

3 Cut-out view of Rubber-Silenced drive unit on transmission main drive shaft, showing rubber cushion.

4 New, heavy cross-member for the Oakland frame, completing a super-rigid support for the entire power-plant and body assembly.

Oakland has conquered the problem that has defied automotive engineers for 31 years—the elimination of perceptible vibration . . . Four vitally important features, plus the perfect coordination of every working part, render the greater Oakland Six, with Rubber-Silenced Chassis, practically vibrationless at all speeds.

First—The Harmonic Balancer, pioneered by Oakland and built into the Oakland crankshaft, prevents any twisting of the crankshaft under repeated piston impulses and eradicates torsional vibration.

Second—Rubber supports for the Oakland engine form a cushion between power-plant and frame and effectually silence any vibration in the frame due to the torque reaction of the engine.

Third—The Rubber-Silenced Drive—not only does the Oakland engine ride on rubber, but it also drives through rubber, by means of this entirely new and exclusive development, which erases all body rumbles and vibrations communicated from the rear wheels, drive shaft and transmission.

Fourth—A new, extra-heavy cross-member, added to the frame, completes a super-rigid support for the entire power-plant and body assembly, and constitutes the final step in the conquest of vibration.

These features—found in their entirety only in the Greater Oakland Six—impart a smoothness and quietness of operation and a freedom from closed car rumble, unsurpassed by any other automobile, regardless of price.

TOWING OF DRIVE-AWAYS FORBIDDEN BY CHEVROLET

Practice Likely to Damage One Car or Other or Both, C. E. Dawson Explains.

Taking another step in perfection of its drive-away system, and to make sure that its cars are delivered into the hands of its customers in perfect condition, the Chevrolet Motor Co. has sent instructions to all its assembly factories and dealers stating that in the future no cars may be towed on drive-aways.

"Careful study has shown that the practice of towing drive-aways may result in impairment to the towing car, the car towed, or both," said C. E. Dawson, assisant general sales manager. "The towing of one car by another, no matter how scientifically they are coupled, always places a strain upon the first car. With a new car the possibility of damage is increased. Its bearings are tight and its piston clearance is but a few thousandths of an inch, causing a tendency to tighen up and overheat even under normal usage. The chance of overheating is especially great when a new car is used for towing.

"The second car suffers too, in many instances. It inevitably gets the first car's dust, which it would escape if following at a normal driving interval, and it sometimes is damaged by stones cast up by the leading car."

STUDEBAKER CHIEF PREDICTS ANOTHER 4,000,000-CAR YEAR

A. R. Erskine Looks for General Prosperity in Country During 1927.

Continued prosperity, in which the automobile industry will share to the extent of making 1927 another 4,000,000 car year, is predicted by A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation of America. "The United States is facing a long period of prosperity," he says. "I believe 1927 will be a big year for the automobile industry, and if these expectations are realized production will amount to approximately 4,000,000 cars. Studebaker's production will be from 150,000 to 200,000 cars."

Erskine believes the value of American cars will be maintained without important price changes. "As the volume of production determines cost," he explains, "it becomes manifest that present prices are made possible by this year's record production. Automobile values are at least 25 per cent greater per dollar of price today than in 1915, when only $18,000 passenger cars were produced as against 3,839,000 in 1925."

He expressed little fear of overproduction or credit inflation resulting from large scale installment buying, factors to which critics have lately pointed as sources of imminent danger.

MUST MAINTAIN HOT MOTOR FOR HIGHEST FUEL EFFICIENCY

"Few motorists know that in order to obtain maximum fuel and oil efficiency it is necessary to maintain a hot, not a cold motor," says a Chandler factory bulletin. "Engineering authorities agree that an automobile motor performs best when its temperature is about 40 degrees below boiling point of the water. This does not result in an overheated motor. On the contrary, an efficient cooling system not only maintains its water at the proper temperature, but in addition it provides a method in which the motor may be brought to the required temperature quickly, regardless of climatic conditions.

"To maintain proper cooling requirements, Chandler's Pike's Peak motor is now provided with a highly efficient temperature-regulating valve known as the 'Motorstat.' This vital unit may be termed the watchman of the cooling system—since it regulates the motor temperature under constant boiling point, and builds up the required temperature in the shortest possible time."

The cowl has a large adjustable central flap for ventilation and also two marine type ventilators.

The chassis is a standard six-cylinder Bentley with an overhead camshaft engine of 4-inch bore and 5½-inch stroke, a four-speed gearset, four-wheel brakes and a wheelbase of 144 inches. The tires are 33x8.75 inches, Dunlop balloons on wire wheels fitted with detachable aluminum discs.

This vehicle is undoubtedly one of the most striking examples of special luxury car that has ever been produced in Great Britain, and is believed to be the most elaborate thing of its kind ever designed.

Makes an Important Statement

Buyers of Light Small Cars will do Well to Ponder these Facts

Essex Has These Fine Car Details

Motor with Famous Super-Six Patents—Gives absolute smoothness.
Front End Timing Chain—Adjustable for wear.
Chain Driven Generator.
Roller Valve Tappets—For long quiet wear.
Aluminum Alloy Pistons—For smoothness and efficiency.
Rear Axle with Four Pinion Differential.
Oil Lubricated Chassis—With oil capacity for hundreds of miles.
Balanced Tubular Propeller Shaft.
Aluminum Transmission Case.
Body—Rigid, Comfortable and Attractive.
Genuine Plate Glass Throughout.
Walnut Steering Wheel—With wheel adjustable for driving positions.
Ball Thrust Bearings in Steering Gear and Front Axle—Give easy steering.
Adjustments to Take Up Wear.
Spring Shackles—Adjustable for wear.
Ventilated Crankcase—Preventing oil dilution.
Air and Gasoline—Cleaned of impurities.
Automatic Ignition Advance.
Radiator Shutters and Moto-Meter—For motor heat control.
Extra Size Chromium Steel Springs—Giving unexcelled riding qualities.
Oversize Brakes—Very efficient.
Adjustable Front Seats—For individual comfort.

Essex was built to meet the demand for a small car of enduring and brilliant performance. It was never intended to dominate a price field.

Consequently its design and construction are different from the usual practice in cars selling at or near its price.

And so, also, is its performance. You see this on every hand, in the nimble, powerful way it speeds over the open road or threads through congested traffic. You see it in the endorsement of owners and the lasting character of its performance.

Essex quality is not confined to those details which please the eye. It extends to parts that can never be realized except through long severe service.

Read over the list of characteristic Essex qualities, and try to match them in other cars. When such design and construction are used, it is only in cars costing much more than Essex.

Ask owners about the service they get from their cars. You will find some whose mileage runs as high as 50,000 to 75,000 miles, and who report such small repair costs as to be of no consequence.

Look well to these important details when you choose a car. Be sure it is built to last, built to give long service at small cost. Ride in an Essex "6". Drive one. Note the ease of its operation and that no car regardless of size or cost rides easier.

Note in the adjoining column how Essex "6" is built, and be sure to drive the Essex.

Standard Equipment Includes: Combination Stop and Tail Light, Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Transmission Lock (built-in), Rear View Mirror, Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter.

St. Louis Has More Autos Than Italy, Says Hatfield

Head of Mississippi Valley Motor Car Co., Back From Abroad, Finds Field For Increased Sales in Europe.

The extent of the field for automotive sales expansion in Europe is indicated by the fact that in all Italy there are fewer cars than in St. Louis, says E. A. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Car Co., who has just returned from the Chamber of Commerce tour abroad.

"Italy, at present, is hardly a country for pleasurable motoring," says Hatfield. "The country, of course, is mountainous. But, in addition, its hard roads are worn rough and very dusty, the rock and cobble stone surface not being treated with oil or tar as in this country. Its city streets generally are narrow, mostly one-way. In Naples, for example, I saw only one thoroughfare that was good for driving—that is, level, wide and smooth. So it is a case of use a car for business, hardly for pleasure. Why, there are only about 114,000 cars in all Italy, fewer than in St. Louis.

Saw No License Plates.

"One thing that impressed me was the fact that I never saw a car carrying license plates in any country in Europe. The license numbers were painted on the tank or some place on the body, in the rear. It looked as if it would be easy for anyone to paint on a number to suit himself and evade the fee. But I was told that an auto owner must always be prepared to show his license receipt to a policeman and that failure to produce it would mean serious consequences.

"Cars in the cities all have bulb horns, and their drivers seem to use them only, though they generally have electric horns also. And they blow those bulb horns every 10 or 15 feet. I never heard such 'horning' in my life. It was 'toot', 'toot' all the time. I heard more of it in Paris in one day than one would hear in St. Louis in a year.

Taxi-Charge, 6 Cents a Mile.

"How the Paris taxicab companies can exist is beyond me. The taxis are owned by companies. With the franc worth about three cents, one can taxi a mile or so for two francs, or six cents. The drivers, who draw no pay but depend on tips, settle with their companies according to the meters. How a taxi company can survive on a rate of six cents a mile is a mystery to me."

Hatfield said he found such French roads as he motored over reasonably smooth, but very dusty, as in Italy. A number of these roads, he said, are made of cobbles or crushed rock and look as the Telegraph road, beyond Jefferson Barracks, would if it were not treated. "England has generally nice roads," he said. "I noticed there, as on the Continent, especially in Italy, that cross roads are relatively few. One often goes long distances on roads abroad without seeing an intersecting road."

4 Major Motor Troubles- Banished!

Cleaning carbon~Grinding valves~~Excessive upkeep~ periodic lay-ups~~the sleeve-valve-engined Willys-Knight gets rid of them all ~~~~~~

Abolish carbon troubles . . . Do away with valve grinding . . . And you add years to the life and usefulness of your car . . .

In the same process, you save your share of the $420,000,000 tax which American owners must pay, this year, for the correction of damage done by these twin evils inseparable from all poppet-valve cars.

Carbon has no harmful effect on the Willys-Knight Great Six. Nor are there any valves to grind. Its sleeve-valve engine-construction, patented exclusive—does away with both . . .

As a matter of fact, the presence of carbon in this car is a desirable condition. It serves to seal compression—to prevent power-waste. Instead of hampering and harming, and putting you to the endless inconvenience and expense of removing it, carbon literally helps the Knight engine to perform.

Here is the Final Proof of Straight Eight Economy

Twenty-two Jordan Straight Eights—driven 3024 miles—in all parts of the United States—averaged 20.85 miles to the gallon

SOME people think that the Eight cylinder motor is less economical than the Six. They are wrong.

That isn't strange.

It was true before Jordan built the Straight Eight.

Eights of the heavier, bulky type were always used in bigger cars.

Jordan produced the first really economical Eight.

Here is the definite proof.

Twenty-two Jordan cars in twenty-two different cities of the United States have just run 3024 miles through all kinds of country with an average of 20.85 miles per gallon.

This test was run through traffic in New York—over the hills of Pennsylvania—through the mountains of California—over the sand roads of Florida—and under the hot sun of Texas.

No special preparations were made—no stunts were allowed.

Jordan cars were driven under ordinary driving conditions, and the consumption records throughout the country were about the same.

This test will be interesting to those who do not know about the Jordan Straight Eight motor.

Six cylinder salesmen have tried to convince people that the Eight is not economical. Their own experience is based on the motors incorporated in heavier cars.

Here are the reasons for Jordan Economy.

Light in weight. Balanced. Moves steadily forward and never sideways. Holds the road. Does not consume energy in side sway.

The lightest, smoothest Straight Eight on the road today. Try it and see for yourself.

Hudson Car Averages 20.6 Miles Per Gallon of 'Gas' Throughout 1772-Mile Test

Notable Improvement in Gasoline Economy Shown by One of New Coaches—Much of Distance Driven in Rain.

A total of 1772 miles on 85.75 gallons of gasoline—an average of 20.6 miles per gallon—was made by one of the new improved Hudson "Super Six" coaches, after being broken in, during a test observed and checked by the automobile editor of the Post-Dispatch, who rode in the car on most of the runs. The test began Sept. 9 and was concluded Thursday. The Hudson was a stock model bearing the number 722,528.

During the breaking in period, the Hudson, beginning with a run on which a dragging brake held it to 14.1 miles per gallon, gradually worked up to 17.3 m. p. g.

Up to 23 Miles Per Gallon.

After the breaking in and setting of the carburetor for an ideal mixture, the Hudson worked up from 19.8 to an average of 22.45 miles per gallon, its best performance being last Thursday, when it did 305 miles at the rate of more than 23 miles per gallon. About half of Thursday's mileage was made in a pouring rain.

The Hudson was turned over to the automobile editor to handle as he saw fit. It was driven throughout by his own driver and he observed and checked the test and the filling of the tank with gasoline himself. The tank always was filled until it slopped over. He also time and again during the runs checked the gasoline performance. The Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., which turned the car over to him, only serviced the car at regular intervals.

The changes in the manifold and carbureting system of the Hudson "Super Six" have resulted in a marked improvement in gasoline economy, this test shows. An owner driver who takes pains to keep his carburetor properly adjusted, his timing exact, his car properly greased, lubricated and easy rolling, and drives steadily and with reasonable regard to sensible operation, should get very satisfactory gasoline mileage from one of these improved Hudsons.

Breaking in Process.

The car was received from the Hudson-Frampton Co. Sept. 9 with 70 miles on its speedometer. On the following day the breaking in process was begun, and from the time the Hudson-Frampton Co. had nothing to do with the test, except to service the car at the regular intervals.

For the first 500 miles the car was driven consistently at 15 to 25 miles per hour. It used 14 gallons of gasoline in running 196 miles the first day, averaging 14 m. p. g. This was mostly on pavement.

Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 11-12, a run of 630 miles was made. The first 425 miles included 58 miles of gravel; 15 miles of very rough, rutted and dusty dirt road with bad grades, and the remainder pavement. The 425 miles were run on 30 gallons of gasoline, the average being 14.1 m. p. g. Not being satisfied with this showing, the car was gone over and a dragging brake found. This was remedied, and the next 204 miles were run on 13.5 gallons of gasoline, an average of 15.1 m. p. g. Except for 15 miles of gravel, this was on pavement, but in heavy Sunday afternoon traffic and 155 miles in pouring rain all the way.

Monday, Sept. 14, the car was taken to the Hudson-Frampton Co. service station for the usual greasing, oil change, etc. As it had done virtually 900 miles, it seemed sufficiently broken in for an adjustment of the carburetor to give a leaner mixture.

Sept. 17, the run was resumed, the car being driven 218 miles that day—75 miles on gravel, the rest on pavement. Only 11 gallons of gasoline were used, the average being 19.8 m. p. g.

Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 18-19, carrying an additional passenger, the Hudson ran 225 miles on 11.5 gallons of gasoline, an average of 19.5 m. p. g. The run was over 162 miles of pavement and 63 miles of gravel ranging from good to rough.

Finding the mixture still richer than necessary, the carburetor was adjusted again, and Friday, Sept. 24, the car ran 204 miles on 9.5 gallons of gasoline, averaging 21.4 m. p. g. The carburetor adjustment seemed ideal. The car ran sweetly, showed power on the grades, accelerated well and never showed any tendency to "pop," "spit" or backfire.

The next run was 207 miles, made on Sept. 25-26, in heavy Saturday and Sunday road traffic, with considerable rain on pavement and gravel roads and strong head winds. The car used 11 gallons of gasoline, averaging 18.8 m. p. g.

17.3 M. P. G. in Downtown.

Sunday evening and Monday morning, Sept. 27, the Hudson was driven 104.3 miles in the rain in St. Louis downtown streets, using six gallons of gasoline and averaging 17.3 m. p. g.

The car by that time had run nearly 1900 miles, so a final adjustment of the carburetor was made on the afternoon of Monday, Sept. 27. Again the car had plenty of power, accelerated snappily, and did not "pop," "spit," backfire or show any other signs that the mixture was too lean.

Sept. 27, 28 and 29, the Hudson was driven 814 miles, mostly in pouring rain, back and forth between St. Louis and Arcadia, Mo., using 36.25 gallons of gasoline and averaging 22.45 miles per gallon.

The best record was made on Thursday, Sept. 30, when sunshine in the afternoon dried the pavement. A total of 305.8 miles were driven back and forth between St. Louis and Arcadia, and only 12.75 gallons of gasoline used. This gave an average for the 305.8 miles of 23.9 miles per gallon.

Good Speed Maintained.

Approximately 25 per cent of the distance covered in the long test was gravel roads, and 10 per cent of the distance was in city traffic. All runs were made to and from West Pine boulevard and Vandeventer avenue. Oil was changed twice in the first 600 miles, then every 500 miles. All greasing, oiling and servicing was carefully done at stated intervals. Radiator shutters were kept adjusted to maintain the operating temperature at maximum efficiency.

After the first 1000 miles, the speed was maintained at 35 to 40 miles per hour wherever road and traffic conditions permitted. There was no speeding or reckless driving, and no trick driving. Coasting was indulged in only when the pitch and length of down grades would invite any ordinarily economical driver to coast. The speedometer was found accurate, mileage made invariably checking with that recorded by the Automobile Club of Missouri. A route of 102 miles through city streets and then via Flat River, Farmington, Doe Run and a country road to Arcadia was made consistently in 3¼ to 3½ hours. The running time for 303.3 miles was 10½ hours. On the final day's run, 175 miles were made in five hours. So it can be seen that a good speed average was maintained.

So much of the test was run in heavy rain that the road adhesiveness shown by the Dayton "thoroughbred" tires with which the car was shod is worthy of comment. The car showed no tendency whatever to skid on wet pavement, and the roads were wet so much of the time that the way they clung to the surface must have had considerable to do with the excellent gasoline average made.

BRITTON NAMED FOR SAFETY CONFERENCE

St. Louisan to Represent A. A. A. at Meeting in Washington, Oct. 15.

Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, has been nominated by the American Automobile Association as a member of the Executive Committee of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, to represent the American Automobile Association, at a joint meeting of the Public Relations and Executive committees which will open at Washington, Oct. 15, with Secretary of Commerce Hoover presiding.

Britton, who is a member of the Executive Committee and Board of Directors of the A. A. A. will be identified with the enforcement phase of the national safety program.

The meeting at Washington will take stock of the progress and develop information on plans carrying out the safety measures recommended at the 1926 meting of the safety conference.

Britton was informed of his nomination in a letter from Secretary Hoover.

NEW MODELS OF CADILLAC TO BE ON DISPLAY OCT. 9-16

Distributors and dealers of the Cadillac Motor Co. in 900 cities of the United States will hold a silver anniversary salon Oct. 9 to 16, displaying models of the new line. The number and variety of the new body models, in addition to displays in the usual show rooms, has caused many distributors and dealers to obtain exhibition halls or auditoriums for an adequate setting.

Included in the exhibition will be striking examples of Fisher and Fleetwood coachwork, as well as creations by individual custom coach builders.

26 M. P. G. BY WHIPPET IN CITY STREET TEST

Car Locked and Sealed In High Gear Makes 2683 Stops and Starts During Run.

Check by William Leininger, engineer with the Pierce Petroleum Corp., on the high gear run of a Whippet coach for five days over St. Louis streets last week showed that the car averaged 26.6 miles to the gallon. The Whippet was locked in high, seals being attached by Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, who certified after the run that the seals were not tampered with in any way.

The car made 898 miles, the drivers observing all traffic rules. It made 2683 counted stops and starts in high. It used 33 gallons, 24 ounces of gasoline, 1½ pints of oil. No water was added to the radiator.

As was told at the time, last July, Leininger made a test of a Whippet on a county road of bituminous macadam that has a slight uphill trend. The Whippet, his check showed, made 28.8 miles to the gallon on the uphill trip and 32.4 on the return, averaging 30.6 miles to the gallon for the both trips.

He leaves the sales managership of the Wilson Motor Car Co. to organize his own firm.

BROCKMAN ELECTED MEMBER OF AUTO DEALERS' BOARD

The board of directors of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association have elected Philip H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., Oldsmobile distributer, as a director of the association to fill the unexpired term of John T. Salisbury, whose resignation was accepted.

A committee, consisting of A. E. Archer of MacCarthy-Archer Auto Co., G. M. Berry of Berry Motor Car Co. and Edward Weber of Weber Motor Car Co., was appointed to arrange a golf tournament among automobile men.

Two meetings of the association, at which speakers will be furnished by the National Automobile Dealers' Association, were arranged for Oct. 29 and Dec. 3. A meeting of the executives of the association was set for Oct. 13, to discuss an important trade topic.

The Wills Ste. Claire Co. of Missouri, of which G. Fred Mayer Jr. is president, was elected to membership in the association.

Authority was given to Manager Robert E. Lee of the association to address several meetings of the National Automobile Dealers' Association in other cities.

BUICK MOTOR CO. TO BUILD $5,000,000 IRON FOUNDRY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—For the second time in 12 months the Buick Motor Co. has found it necessary to increase the production capacity of plant units to keep pace with the demand for cars.

The latest addition to the Buick factory is to be a $5,000,000 iron foundry with a capacity of 500 tons of castings a day. The old foundry has been taxed to furnish castings for the present production schedule of over 1200 cars per day.

Prior to introduction of the 1872 models the Buick Motor Co. completed a $2,000,000 expansion program which increased production facilities from 1000 to [illegible] day.

$10,000 OFFERED FOR NAME OR SLOGAN FOR NEW JEWETT

Must Express Smartness, Style and Charm of Sedan; Contest Closes Oct. 31.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Ten thousand dollars is offered for the word or slogan that best expresses the smartness, style, charm and vogue of the new Jewett four-door sedan, and a Jewett sedan will be awarded for each of the two next best suggestions. The contest is open to everybody except children under 14 years of age.

"The conditions are simple," says the Wilson Motor Car Co., Paige-Jewett distributer. "First, see the car—for the slogan must be descriptive. Obtain an official ballot at the showroom, and after it is filled in, return it to the distributer for authentication. The name or phrase must be in six words or less. Besides the slogan itself, the contestant must write, in 50 words or less, in support of its appropriateness. Originality of thought, cleverness of name or phrase, soundness or brevity of the reasons advanced for its use, and clearness of expression and neatness will be the basis for rating the suggestions."

The contest will close Oct. 31. Only suggestions sumbitted on official ballots will be considered.

STRAIGHT 8 TO BE POPULAR CAR, SAYS AUBURN CHIEF

"The straight-eight type of motor car is destined to be the popular car of the future," says E. L. Cord, president of the Auburn Automobile Co.

"This is a natural trend as standards of living are raised," Cord declares. "At one time the two cylinder car was considered as sufficient though it was speedily replaced by the four and this model is still popular in the lower price field. The six rapidly gained popularity after its introduction and few persons bought fours that ever owned sixes. The same thing will be true of motorists who have owned eight-cylinder cars. After once appreciating its increased power, smoothness and exceptional speed a six can hold no charm for them.

"Auburn was one of the first to realize the trend to eight-cylinder models and the proof of the popularity of the Auburn 8-88 even though in the higher price range has been shown by Auburn's great production increases since its introduction of the Straight Eight."

REO BUS MAKES TEST RUN INTO ARCTIC OF FINLAND

"Pohjoismaiden Auto Tuoti"—no matter what this combination of words may seem to mean to you, it really is the name of a company dealing in automobiles in Finland. This company decided recently to drive a Reo bus from Abo on the Baltic Sea to Pitkajarvi, the most northern point reached by a Finland highway. Beyond lies the Arctic Ocean and continual ice.

The trip was in the nature of a test of reliability under actual Finland road conditions for a sustained period and the bus came through with a perfect score.

No attempt at speed was made and an average of 29 kilometers, or 18 miles, per hour was maintained for the entire trip, which was excellent considering the roads. The actual time was 290½ hours and the road running time 102 hours and 10 minutes. The distance covered was 2937 kilometers, or 1856 miles.

HUPP SIX WINS 1250-MILE ENDURANCE RACE IN EUROPE

A standard Hupmobile six touring car placed first in a 1250-mile road race through Holland and Northern Belgium. Entries included European and American cars, especially those advertising high speed. This reliability race was over a longer course than the distance from New York to Chicago.

NOW DRIVE THE CAR!

Only those who have driven a Dodge Brothers Special Sedan—or any Dodge Brothers car BUILT RECENTLY—can fully appreciate all that Dodge Brothers have accomplished during the past few months.

So swiftly has improvement followed improvement, that today the car, to all intents and purposes, is a different and incomparably finer vehicle.

The announcement of smart new body lines and attractive color combinations first attracted general favor. But since then improvements even more fundamental have been accomplished mechanically.

Drive the car NOW! Observe its impressive new silence, smoothness and elasticity of performance, and you will then begin to realize just how vital and varied these and other later improvements actually are.

Mrs. Flossie Erickson of Bloomington, Ill., built a ground as follows: Thin copper sheeting, four inches wide and 50 feet long, is buried in a trench. There are four layers of copper separated from each other by a pulpy mixture consisting of salt, water and newspapers, mixed together.

NEW KSD FEATURES WILL BE BROADCAST THIS WEEK

Programs of Varied Appeal to Come Direct From New York—Address by Coolidge Monday Night.

Several new features and new types of programs by artists who have won favor will be broadcast this week direct from New York through KSD and its allied chain of stations.

Tomorrow night will bring an address by President Coolidge from Washington, where he will preside at a session of the annual convention of the American Red Cross. A half hour concert by the U. S. Marine band orchestra is scheduled to precede the President's address.

Tuesday evening the Vikings will return. The first program will be 45 minutes long, although subsequent weekly programs will only be for a half-hour. These programs will bring the spirit of Norway to the United States through the air waves. The opening program will be a radio version of the coronation of King Haakon VII, who was crowned King of Norway on June 22, 1906, when Norway's independence from Sweden was consumated. The ceremony took place in one of the great cathedrals and was featured by a royal procession, the music of which will be reproduced. The national anthem of Norway will be a feature. The placing of the royal purple and ermine robe upon the king and the presentation of the scepter will be related in detail. "The Triumphal Recessional" will bring the program to a close.

The leading role in this first Vikings program will be assumed by Sigurd Nilssen, who is well known to the radio audience as "The Viking" of Maj. Edward Bowes Capitol Family. Nilssen graduated from the Whiteman Conservatory of Music at an early age, and then took up operatic training under the famous Jean de Reszke in Paris. He made his debut at Monte Carlo. He has toured extensively through the Scandinavian countries, England, Scotland and the United States in concert.

The musical background of this program will be furnished by the Tollefsen Trio, assisted by a viola soloist. The trio includes Carl H. Tollefsen, violinist; Augusta Tollefsen, pianist, and Paulo Gruppe, cellist.

Tuesday evening the audience of KSD, WEAF, WTAG, WTAM, WWJ and WSAI will hear for the first time the Jolly Buckeye Bakers' male quartet and a string trio. This quartet is composed of four noted soloists. They have done much recording and have frequently appeared at the chief motion-picture theaters. Their opening program will include, ensemble, "Where My Caravan Has Rested"; string trio, Beethoven's "Minuet"; quartet, "Breezing Along with the Breeze," and closing ensemble, "Sweet and Low."

Eveready Continuity Program.

The first of the continuity programs of the Eveready hour will be broadcast by the Eveready group, assisted by professional players, on Tuesday evening through KSD, WEAF, WEEI, WFI, WCAE, WGR, WWJ, WOC, WJAR, WCCO, WTAG, WGN, WTAM, WSAI and WRC. It is based on Edna Ferber's book, "Showboat." The Eveready group will offer what might be termed a dramatized book review of this story, which is a chronicle of events which occurred on the "showboats" on the Mississippi River between 1888 and the late nineties.

The chief character of the book is Magnolia Hawkes, daughter of the owner of the showboat. The early part of Miss Ferber's book deals with Magnolia's childhood impressions of this varied though somewhat drab life. As the story progresses Magnolia marries the leading man in the troupe of the boat, but is ill treated and has an exceedingly hard life. At length, however, the lure of the old-time showboat calls so strongly that she leaves her home and goes back to it. Her own daughter becomes involved in the life of the "showboat" and becomes a famous actress.

In the absence of Wilfred Glenn, the bass soloist of the Eveready group and Eveready male quartet, Frank Croxton will be added to the group. Glenn is in England. In a few months he will rejoin the group.

Collegiate Act Wednesday.

The Smith Brothers, "Trade and Mark," who will be impersonated by "Scrappy" Lambert and "Billy" Hillpot, two well known collegiate singers, will begin broadcasting a weekly program through KSD, WEAF, WTAG, WGR, WRC, WCAE, WWJ, WOC, WCCO, WDAF and WSAI on Wednesday. They have a piano, banjo and singing act. Lambert and Hillpot are former Rutgers University students. They have done considerable recording.

Thursday evening will bring the first appearance of the new Goodrich Zippers through KSD, WEEI, WFI, WCAE, WWJ, WGR, WOC, WCCO, WTAG, WSAI, WJAR, WGN, WADC and WCSH. The Goodrich Zippers will replace the Goodrich Silvertown Cord Orchestra and Silver Masked Tenor, who probably will return to the air early in the spring. These programs are being arranged through collaboration of Henry Burr, well-known recording tenor; Harry E. Humphries, who will be "master of ceremonies" before the microphone, and Arthur Johnson, who is associated with Irving Berlin, popular song composer. This new weekly program will bring a male quintet, a novelty orchestra of 12 pieces and a xylophone soloist. This group is well known in recording. Henry Burr is one of the best-known American tenors. It is said his voice has been recorded more frequently than that of any other living American tenor.

The program each Thursday evening will consist of new songs, orchestral selections, xylophone solos, original character sketches and vocal solos.

A Victor Herbert program will be given by the La France Orchestra Friday evening. This special program will consist of nine selections and will feature "Pan Americana," "Orientale" and selections from "Yesterthoughts." Other bits from the light operas of Herbert will be played. "The Mysterious Baritone" will be heard in "My Dream Girl" and "Absynthe Frappe."

The Whittall Anglo-Persians' program Friday evening will include selections from "Caucasian Sketches" by Ivanov and "Kamennoi-Ostrow," by Rubinstein, which musically depicts a lover's stroll by a river.

U. S. STATIONS GIVEN SEIZED WAVE-LENGTHS

Commerce Department, Powerless to Do Otherwise, Confirms Canadian Allotments

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The two United States broadcasting stations to be definitely assigned, at the owners' request, to wave lengths heretofore reserved solely for Canadian stations, are WJAZ of the Zenith Radio Corporation of Mt. Pleasant, Ill., and KSBA, owned by W. G. Patterson at Kennonwood, La. Although only just listed officially the stations have been operating on these lengths for some time. The reserved wave length being used by the Zenith station is 329.5 and that assigned to KSBA is 312.6.

The final assignment of these frequencies were made only after the Department of Commerce endeavored to persuade the station owners not to ignore the "gentlemen's agreement" made between the United States and Canada, whereby a few of the more favorable wave lengths were given to the Dominion stations.

Denial by the courts of the right of control over broadcasting wave lengths to the Department of Commerce legally sets aside any provisions of the agreement negotiated by representatives of the two Governments more than two years ago.

Four new broadcasters entered the field simultaneously with the assignment of WJAZ and WSBA and two others jumped their wave lengths.

The new stations are WKBP, the Battle Creek Enquirer and News at Battle Creek, Mich., assigned to 265 meters; KGCR, Cutler's Radio Broadcasting Service, Brookings, S. C., assigned to 252 meters; WCAH, the Entrekin Electric Co., Columbus, O., 265.3 meters, and WKBM, Radio Electric Service Co., Youngstown, O., 360 meters.

The stations that jumped their wave lengths were WAAW, Omaha, which moved from 277.6 to 384.4 meters and KFIO, Spokane, that moved from 265.3 to 273.6.

FIRST SUPERHETERODYNE STILL IN USE, ALLAYS FEARS OF OBSOLESCENCE

THE fact that the original superhetrodyne receiver is still in use in Washington ought to bolster up the courage of the prospective purchaser afraid to buy a set for fear modern improvements may render his purchase obsolete.

There always seems to be a well defined feeling among the uninitiated that some sweeping radio development is about to occur and purchasing ought to be deferred, yet this old set, invented and built by Maj. E. H. Armstrong back in 1918, seems to be keeping up with the best of them.

WFKB STATION ACQUIRED BY VESTA BATTERY CORP.

Station WFKB will be known as "The Vesta Battery Corporation Station, WFKB, Chicago. WFKB has been operating for more than a year on 217.3 meters, as an experimental station, though it was off the air temporarily, during the summer. The station—as now acquired by Vesta—is equipped with the very latest transmitting apparatus and was opened on 1000 watts. It will be on the air every week day evening, (except Monday), from 6:30 to 8 and from 9 to 10:30 (Central Standard), and Sundays 2:30 to 4 p. m.

TUBE USED FOR 8175 HOURS

How long is the life of a tube? Chief Technical Supervisor N. D. Garver of the KNX station at Los Angeles found a new answer to this frequently asked question when one of the Western Electric 212-A tubes recently established what is believed to be a world's record.

The tube was used for a total of 8175 transmitting hours. The company considers the record phenomenal, inasmuch as the average life of this type of tube is about 2000 hours.

FREIGHT CAR SWITCHING DIRECTED BY RADIO SET

Test Indicates It May Supplement Signal Lights in Railroad Yards.

An evpirement in the use of radio as a supplement to the old system of signal lights for switching locomotives in freight yards was successful recently in the yard of the Indana Harbor Belt Railroad at Gibson, Ind.

To this yard come freight trains from all directions made up of cars destined to go to many places. It is the purpose of the yard to sort out the cars. The incoming train is shoved up to the top of a hill called the "hump"; a car or group of cars is cut from the train and coasts down the other side of the hill into the track appropriate to its destination.

The usual railroad method of directing the switching—colored signal lights set from a switchboard at the hump—had many drawbacks. A mist almost obliterates the signals; at best they are only dimly visible in good daylight and in the afternoon, with the sun back of the signal, its light is almost invisible to the engineman.

Radio Set in Yard.

Through the Western Electric Co. the railroad engineers brought their problems to the attention of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. It was suggested that a radio system would give the same latitide of communication between the hump and the locomotive. For the tests a small radio transmitting set and a receiver were built in the Bell laboratories. The transmitter was installed in the house at the hump and a small antenna was erected between the house and the top of the pole holding the signal light's which the radio system was to supercede.

One of the difficulties encountered was that of finding room on the locomotive for a suitable antenna for the receiver. Finally this was given up and a small antenna was erected on the rear of the tender. The receiver was placed in the tool box under the antenna. The output of the receiver was connected to a loud speaker in the locomotive cab just above the head of the engineman. As the engineman could not operate the receiver as well as attend to his locomotive, the receiver was constructed so that it could be tuned, the controls locked and the cover closed and fastened. The engineman then only had to turn it on or off.

Test Is Successful.

A code was then arranged for answers by the locomotive whistle. All went well until the engine got down to the end of the yard, a mile and a half away. No answer from the locomotive was received. Somewhere a link had broken in the chain. Investigation showed the link was not radio. The signals were received by the engineer but back at the hump his answering whistle could not be heard.

The system was then turned over to the yard master for operation. All he needed to do was push the

Dubilier Condenser Type 901

IT is the working voltage that determines the life and efficiency of the condensers you use. Buy "working voltage" as well as capacity.

All DUBILIER CONDENSERS are clearly marked with their recommended maximum D.C. working voltage. This tells you exactly what voltage your condensers will stand in continuous service.

The new DUBILIER CONDENSERS—Types 901, 902, and 903 may be used for any purpose where the potential at continuous operation does not exceed their rated working voltages of 160, 400 and 600 volts D.C. respectively. Each type may be obtained in 1, 2, 4 and 6 mfd. sizes at prices ranging from $1.50 to $13.50.

Look for the DUBILIER name and the rated working voltage on the condensers you buy for battery eliminators, power amplifiers and receivers.

STATIONS are placed around the Grebe S-L-F tuning dials at equal intervals; station selection is thus made very easy, whereas on the average set low-wave stations are so crowded together that it is difficult to separate them, even by "microscopic" tuning.

Besides its S-L-F Condensers, other exclusive Grebe developments on the Synchrophase are:

Binocular Coils—which bring in any station, then prevent all others from breaking in;

Colortone—which gives complete control over the quality of tone independent of the loud speaker;

Flexible Unit Control—whereby one dial controls all three, or all may be set separately at will.

Ask a Grebe dealer for a demonstration of Grebe superior reception.

Action Exhibits Prepared For St. Louis Radio Show

Progress in Receivers, Tubes, Batteries, Eliminators and Other Parts to Be Illustrated.

Radio progress will be illustrated by a series of special manufacturers' exhibits in the St. Louis radio show, which will be at the Coliseum Oct. 18-23.

One will be a glass case containing the chassis of a radio set, with chargers and "B" power units, all showing the operation and layout of receivers.

A tube manufacturer will show the 37 operations involved in making vacuum tubes.

A battery manufacturer will show a storage battery submerged in a tank of water, with a number of lights under the water operated from the submerged battery. Live goldfish will be in the tank to prove that batteries, at last, are made so as not to leak acid.

An Eastern manufacturer will display the only apparatus for testing grid leaks and resisters. The public can use this apparatus free and test set parts which never before have been checked and tested and may be causing trouble in reception.

Other unusual feature displays will be announced. Some exhibitors assert they have wholly new things to bring out at the show and will not announce them until Ovt. 17.

Harold Wrape, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, has just returned from a trip to Milwaukee and Minneapolis where he spent two days each at the radio shows in those cities. Wrape was a guest speaker on the program in each city.

BISHOP OF LONDON WILL SPEAK OVER STATION KYW

The Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley, Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London; the Rev. Dr. Henry Howard, the Rev. Henry Van Dyke and the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick will be among noted preachers who will broadcast over station KYW in the new series of services of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club.

The first service will be broadcast tonight.

AUTO CLUB WILL RECEIVE RADIO RETURNS ON SERIES

Radio returns of the world's series games between the Cardinals and the Yankees will be received at the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard. Telephone requests for information as to the games will receive no attention.

A special Western Electric power amplifier and Crosley radio receiver have been installed. With this outfit all persons within a radius of several blocks of club headquarters will be able to receive the returns.

Protection to Tubes.

In wiring the set, always bring the "A" battery wire, that carries the "B" negative, through the battery switch. This is a positive insurance to the set. When the switch is off, both "A" and "B" batteries are shut off from the set.

FADA Radio

You haven't heard the half of it

NO matter how good your present radio sounds—no matter how well satisfied you are—you haven't heard the half of it!

Now, for the first time through the New Fada Harmonated Reception you can hear all that radio has to offer!

We believe that Fada Harmonated Reception as rendered by the Fada 8 and the Fada Cone Speaker is by far the nearest approach to perfect radio performance as yet achieved.

Every detail of the receiving, the reproducing units—from the total individual shielding of every stage to the permanent magnet in the floating cone—has been designed to operate in perfect unity with every other detail.

The result is practically perfect "team work" and a quality of reception never before attained.

Right in your neighborhood is a Fada Radio Dealer who'll be glad to demonstrate this brand new radio development.

Don't miss it—you've never heard anything like it before—it will astound you! Don't take our word for it—trust your own ears—hear it today! If there is no Fada Radio dealer in your neighborhood, communicate with

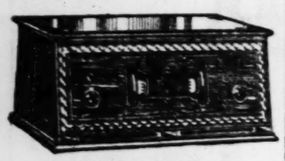
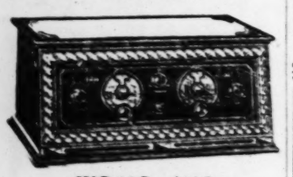
This remarkable set gives you the station you want when you want it without interference,—and with only 2 drum type dials. Stations slide in one after the other in the hands of the unskilled operator. Tunes sharply—yet it's non-critical. Cuts through local stations like a rapier and gives volume on distant stations. Operates on indoor or outdoor antenna or loop.



WC-20G—$225
9 Tube—Beautiful Walnut Cabinet

Volume Without Distortion

Because five of its nine tubes are in the radio frequency end of the circuit you get tremendous volume without slightest distortion—even on distant stations. Volume is under absolute, stepless control and is handled by two power tubes. Yet set (employing 9-3 volt tubes) uses only 19 to 21 milliamperes of "B" battery current—where average 5 tube (6 volt) set consumes about 25 mills. Coils shielded—cushion mounted sockets. The WC-20 is built in three models, priced from $225 to $595.



WC.19G—$125
6 Tube—Walnut Cabinet

Five and Six Tube Sets

The 6-tube set has tremendous volume, fine selectivity and wonderful tone. 6 tubes yet only 2 dials. Easily tuned and non-critical. Economical to operate. Seven models, priced $110 to $485.
Compare, too, the WC-15—a 5 tube, 2 dial set that sells for only $49.50, with any set selling for $75 or more. Radiodynes are sold only thru reliable, authorized dealers. Go to one nearest you and operate these great sets.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

With only ONE Dial!

When you see an Atwater Kent ONE Dial Receiver, you say, "How beautifully simple!"

Only ONE Dial for bringing in the stations —a rheostat for regulating volume—and a tiny battery switch. That's all.

When you try it you say, "How wonderful!"

You don't hunt for stations. Everything within range comes marching in—easily, quickly, surely—with ONE Dial.

When you buy it you say, "Think what I've been missing!"

The tone you wanted—the mastery you wanted—the years of pleasure you wanted —all at a price that makes you wonder how so little can go so far.

See and try—at any Atwater Kent dealer's.

NEW PACENT CONE, IN TEST, SHOWS FINE TONE QUALITY

One of the new Pacent cone speakers was tested thoroughly the past week in St. Louis with a standard five-tube set, a standard six-tube set, a multi-tube, loop-operated set which is winning a reputation for quality, and finally with a set which gives an output of a clarity that shows up defects in a loud speaker. The Pacent cone acquitted itself finely throughout the test, which occupied parts of five evenings. Its tone was mellow and clear; it reproduced bass notes and treble correctly and consistently; it made piano broadcasting sound natural, and reproduced singing voices with richness and sweetness. As much as it is possible for a loud speaker to minimize the effects of static, the Pacent did so. In reproducing speaking, a set must be tuned correctly when using a Pacent cone. But when this is done, is handles speeches very well, indeed. A number of radio listeners commented that it was a pleasure to hear it working with a receiving set.

NEW THOROLA SETS USE RELATIVELY LITTLE CURRENT

Economy in operation is said to be a characteristic of the new Thorola radio receiver, a five-tube set that is claimed to be equal in distance getting ability, selectivity and volume to any six-tube set. Working with the new detector and power tubes, this Thovola draws only 11 milliamperes, a very small battery drain.

The Thorola transformers and doughnut type coils in these receivers have played a considerable part in the advance of radio set engineering. The coils, with their self-sustained field, obviate uncontrolable "pickup" and internal interference, according to the Cooper Tire and Battery Co., which has done some extensive experimenting in receiver selectivity.

A distinctive Thorola model has a speaker on one side and a cone, with two diaphrams, on the other, with very pleasing results in reproduction. This double diaphragm cone is said to cover the entire range without sacrificing tonal accuracy at either end.

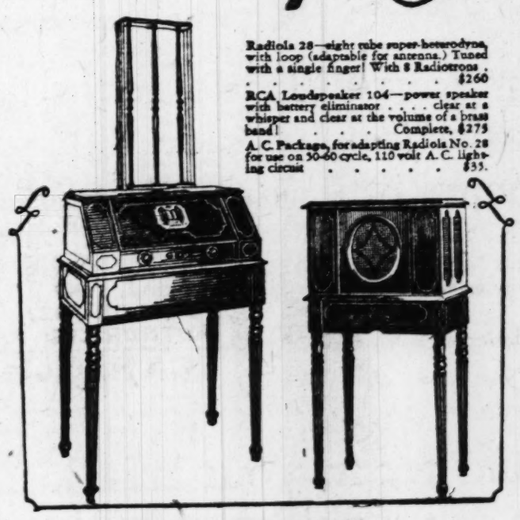
the Sets that pioneered the newest advances of radio

—tried • tested • perfected—

WHAT'S new in radio? Operation on the house current without batteries? RCA achieved this a year ago, and today has tried, tested and perfected it, until in RCA Radiolas it is still far ahead of the times. Single control? RCA presented that a year ago, and its success has made it the demand of the times. Power reception means realism. A year ago, the Radiola 30 filled a great hall with the music of a full orchestra. And its first demonstration has been repeated in daily use in thousands of homes.

Radiola 26—6 tube super-heterodyne. As a portable it has a loop in the cover, loudspeaker inside, place in the back for small batteries. At home it has a box that holds larger batteries and has a coupler for an antenna. In a fine walnut cabinet.
With 6 Radiotrons, $225

Radiola 30—combines in one luxurious cabinet all that's newest in radio. An eight tube super-heterodyne, single-controlled. An enclosed loop—no antenna. An RCA power speaker. And no batteries. Just plug it in and tune in! . . . Complete, $575
(Operates on 50-60 cycle, 110 volt A.C. lighting circuit)



Radiola 28—eight tube super-heterodyne with loop (adaptable for antenna.) Tuned with a single finger! With 8 Radiotrons $260

RCA Loudspeaker 104—power speaker with battery eliminator . . . clear as a whisper and clear at the volume of a brass band! . . . Complete, $275

A. C. Package, for adapting Radiola No. 28 for use on 50-60 cycle, 110 volt A. C. lighting circuit . . . . . $55.

No Batteries

The RCA sets built for complete lighting socket operation were a year ahead of others—and now tried and proved. They are made to operate without batteries—not made over for it.

Realism—through power

The RCA power speakers have brought to the home music finer than ever before—music that is clear and real at any volume—even the volume of a whole orchestra.

No Antenna

For three years, the super-heterodynes have operated successfully from a loop! Or for those who prefer it, provision is made to adapt them for an antenna.

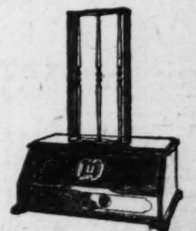
Single Control

With no sacrifice of quality—and unusual selectivity. Tested and proved for a year.

Sealed Construction

The "catacomb" of the super-heterodyne is famous. All the delicate parts are permanently sealed against dust, air and moisture—to last a lifetime.

FINER music—simplicity—enduring quality—any feature of make or performance that stands out in your mind as most important in radio, you will find in RCA Radiolas. And as RCA pioneered most of the developments of modern radio, you will find them in Radiolas—not new and untried—but perfected through a period of trial—and proved by the "road test" of experience. If you have not heard the latest Radiolas, you can have no conception of modern radio. Ask for a demonstration today.



Radiola 25—six tube super-heterodyne with all the far-famed super-heterodyne quality of tone and performance—and the "catacombed" sealing of the vital parts. Single controlled! With 6 Radiotrons . $165

Radiola 20—five tube Radiola—of remarkable tone quality. Single controlled. And enduring . . . . it passes every test of temperature and humidity, and has proved quality in use. With 5 Radiotrons, $115

RCA Loudspeaker 100—still unmatched at anywhere near its price! Clear through the whole tone range—and clear at any volume you give it. Especially right for the power tube sets . . $35

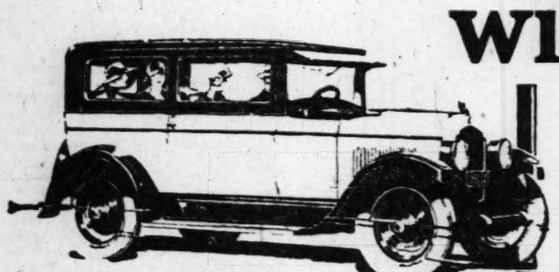
CHRYSLER "50"

Standardized Quality

What your own eyes see will make you choose the Chrysler "50"



Coach $780
f. o. b. Detroit

If you are attracted by the Chrysler "50" it is well to bear in mind that your choice, in any event, must be made among five cars.

Only four four-cylinder cars other than the Chrysler "50" are now being built in quantity.

This despite the fact that 60 per cent of all cars built today are fours.

You should fix in your mind, therefore, the prices which Mr. Chrysler has placed upon his Chrysler "50" cars—$750 for the Coupe; $830 for the Sedan; $780 for the Coach. Then study the Chrysler "50" in contrast to everything else offered.

You will be rushed to a decision by the startling character of the contrast. The mere appearance and dimensions of the Chrysler "50" alone will startle you by comparison—its family seating proportions, its size, and its marked beauty of design, finish and fittings.

But the vital thing is the contrast in performance—the power and speed of 50 miles and more per hour; the acceleration of the Chrysler "50"—5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds; and above all, the ease with which it travels.

The Chrysler plan of Standardized Quality has built into the "50" elements of superiority so outstanding that they are revealed at a glance, and overwhelmingly verified in performance.

Never, it seems to us, was it so easy for the buyer to make sure that his money is buying the utmost as in contrast between the "50" and all others.

"Legitimate" Season Opens Here Tonight

"Artists and Models" Starts Ball Rolling at the Shubert-Rialto, But American, Which Presents the Picture "Ben-Hur" for a Run Starting Next Sunday, Will Not Have Any Stage Shows for a Month.

AFTER a long summer vacation the Shubert-Rialto season will get under way tonight when the Shuberts present their latest edition of "Artists and Models," the company coming here from Chicago where it has been playing three months. Phil Baker and the Hoffmann girls are among the features. Next Sunday night "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" goes to the same theater, also out of Chicago where it has had a long run. On the same date the American will get under way with a picture instead of drama or musical show, "Ben Hur," being down for a stay of 4 weeks at the Market Street playhouse.

So far nothing very definite has been outlined for the rest of the "legitimate" season but the picture bookings give promise of cutting deeper and more into the field of the drama and are announcing a number of stars who are headed this way for personal appearances. The talkie and the Vitaphone, which got under way at the little Capitol theater last Friday night in connection with John Barrymore's picture "Don Juan"—a novelty which its sponsors say is going to revolutionize the show business—is going to make it hard sledding for the regular play houses and once again the opening of a theatrical season finds the motion picture business reaching for the birthright of the so-called legitimate theater—an act which may cleanse the stage of its stars and dance stars and leave it ready for the enactment of the artistic spoken drama.

THE movement has become marked this year with the nationalization of motion picture exhibition through chains of theaters that earlier in the year found such producers as John Robert Anderson, Ned Wayburn and Gus Edwards into their ranks to stage revenues for their houses. And with the arrival of the fall season, they have stolen from the stage such "names" as Paul Whiteman and his symphonic jazz orchestra, Eddie Cantor, one of Flo Ziegfeld's revue stars, Gilda Gray, another Ziegfeld discovery, and others, performers, who could resist the huge sums dangled before them.

The encroachment on the province of the legitimate stage has been occurring as the infant movie industry grew sturdier and found itself in theater finery such as not known to the Shuberts or Belanger. But the latest step in the stretching of the octopus's arms to names who, it was thought, would be among the last to succumb before the lure of movie gold, have the desertion of the legitimate stage will stop few in the show business profess to know. Since the beginning of motion pictures critics have predicted the end many times, but the movies continue to spread like mushrooms, and the stage suffers more and more every year and St. Louis this season will see fewer dramas than in past seasons.

Some persons blame the disintegration of the road show on the high cost of transportation, the exorbitant salaries demanded by

"Second Thoughts -- on -- First Nights"

By Alexander Woollcott

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

IN the outlying theaters of our town, a notable chapter in the history of the American stage is drawing to its close. Along the route known to the booking offices as the subway circuit, in the remote playhouses of Brooklyn, Harlem and the Bronx—spots so far from Times Square that its fircely provincial denizens think of troupes playing there as being somewhere east of Suez—Jeanne Eagels is giving her final performances in the extraordinary tragedy called "Rain." For the last times, the strange duel between the scarlet woman and the hot-eyed, tortured missionary is being fought out within the storm-bound Pago-Pago boarding house and within another month, Miss Eagels will be trying for the first time in more than four years the feel of another role. One does not envy the task of the playwright who must write for her a role which will not seem small and flimsy to her and to us after the magnificence of Sadie Thompson.

Some day someone will write a history of this eventful tragedy, of which the purgative pity and terror have satisfied the hunger of a generation. One chapter will tell how the man who first spun the story from which it was made though himself a playwright of experience and repute, never saw the play which lay implicit in his tale and so left to other hands its transmutation for the stage.

Another chapter on the almost ignorance of the knowing (with side references, of course, to all the experts who recently bet their respective shirts on Mr. Dempsey) will tell how the manager who produced the piece so little appreciated the jewel in his hand that, during the preliminary trial flight inPPhiladelphia, he sold all but 10 per cent of his share in its future profits. Still another chapter will follow the effects of "Rain" on other plays then and still in the making.

THE dispassionate, clinical ruthlessness with which "Rain" lay bare the tormented heart of the amorous preacher would have awakened a thousand protests a dozen years ago to one that was actually heard when the play was staged back in the fall of 1922. David Belasco, in his astonishment at the success of any play outside the walls of his own temple of the drama, has been known to ascribe the undisturbed New York success of "Rain" to an untoward event which did, as a matter of fact, immediately precede it. He feels the soil was prepared for the play by the Hall-Mills murder which, a month before, had taken place on a remote but (according to all the latest evidence) far from lonely farm.

CERTAINLY the play's triumph here set a lot of lesser dramatists to tweakling and berating the clergy. This is now so common an attitude in the Broadway

Symphony's 15 Children's Concerts

THE ST. Louis Symphony Society announces that its orchestra will play 15 concerts during the coming season for the children of St. Louis and surrounding territory. Five of these will be for the Board of Education. The other 10 will be for private, public and parochial schools. At the latter 10 concerts the programs will be sprinkled with the works of the old masters which the children have come to appreciate through their association with these concerts over a period of years.

For instance, they will get acquainted with a real symphony in four movements, the first one by Beethoven, a bright, brilliant, melodious work of spontaneous inspiration, one movement for each one of the four concerts. This is one of the shortest symphonies ever written. Instead of performing the entire work at the fifth concert (duration 30 minutes), Mr. Ganz will end up this last one of the series of five with another symphony, the one by Haydn, called "Farewell." There will be a small orchestra, stands will have lighted candles, and during the last movement the musicians, having "lost their jobs,"-will file out one by one until the conductor alone is left, he then bows to the audience sadly, and departs.

For these concerts Ernest Schelling, conductor of the children's

YVONNE D'ARLE LEAVES METROPOLITAN OPERA

Yvonne d'Arle, who was with the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company last season and who now sings the title role in "Countess Maritza" at the Shubert Theater in New York, has made definite her return to the theater from the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera by signing a three-year contract with the Messrs. Shubert. A two-year renewal clause is attached.

A similar contract was offered her by the Messrs. Shubert early this summer when "Countess Maritza" was first assembled. Miss d'Arle declined, preferring to wait until the New York debut of the operetta. Several works are under consideration for her.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

LON CHANEY will appear as an armless man in his next picture, which is to be directed by Tod Browning. It is called "Alonzo, the Armless," and Mr. Chaney will play the part of a man without arms who becomes a power in the underworld of a European city. This film will go into production following "The Ordeal." Chaney has already commenced an intensive course of training in using pencils, knives, forks, and even pistols, with his feet.

Camera work on "Sunya," Gloria Swanson's first United Artists picture, has been started in New York. The screen story, by Earl Browne, is from the basic theme of Max Marcin's stage play, "Eyes of Youth." Miss Swanson has three characterizations in the picture. Several new faces will be brought to the screen in "Sunya." John Boles, who was featured in a Broadway musical comedy success, has the leading male role opposite Miss Swanson. Florence Faire, a niece of Douglas Fairbanks, has the Characters and Types.

IT IS extremely gratifying to observe that movie directors are beginning to realize the enormous value of character. They are departing farther and farther from the standard traditions of "types" that dominated and stultified the silent drama throughout the apparently interminable years of its infancy.

These types were not born with the silent drama. They were hand-me-downs from the dark ages of traveling stock companies, when every play had to be adjusted to the standardized requirements of a male lead, a female lead, a heavy, a juvenile, an ingenue and so forth.

Men or women of distinguished individuality might enter the movies and create one memorable character; but once a player was accepted by the public as worthy of attention, he or she was immediately molded to conform to the regulations of type. Any effort to break away from this type was frowned upon by the lordly exhibitors, who are notoriously apt to view with alarm any suggestion of radicalism. They have their own theories as to what the public wants, and to those they adhere just as a slugworm adheres to the decaying fiber of a fallen tree.

GIVEN a group of standardized types, the stories prepared for them also had to be standardized, and but little originality could be displayed in the development of those stories.

Thus it came to pass that the process of producing motion pictures came to resemble closely the process of manufacturing Fords.

At which point, the public began to betray traces of boredom and turned, in great numbers, from the box office at the nearby film parlor to the dials of the nearer radio.

The radio, at least, had the elements of novelty. Even the possible presence of static made the thing hazardous and fascinating. There was nothing hazardous about the machine-made movies. You could shut your eyes at any given point in any given film and be able to guess accurately just what would be happening when you opened them.

WITH "The Birth of a Nation" the D. W. Griffith proved that mobs of people could accumulate tremendous dramatic force on the screen. That has been proven many times since then—by Rex Ingram, James Cruze, Ernst Lubitsch, Fred Niblo, King Vidor and many others; now, mob scenes on the screen are actually bromidic.

The directors are now getting down to individual cases, they are discovering the human equation.

Charlie Chaplin, of course, realized this when he first started making his own two-reel comedies, 13 years ago. Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton and now Harry Langdon have followed his example. They are the real pioneers in the development of legitimate characters, as opposed to rubber-stamp types, on the screen.

OF the more impressive serious directors, it was D. W. Griffith again who pointed the way. In "Broken Blossoms" he escaped from the tradition that a picture's greatness must be measured by the number of extras employed in its mob scenes.

George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man" and Henry King's "Tol'able David" were other early examples of this progressive tendency. Then came "A Woman of Paris," to open the gate to an en-

'DEEP RIVER,' AN OPERA WITH JAZZ

First Attempt to Reconcile Music and Drama in the Theater.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.

WHEN "Deep River's" pageantry of tone and color floods the Imperial Theater tomorrow night, New Yorkers will encounter not merely "a native opera with jazz," as the playbills have it. They will hear the first attempt ever made to achieve in choral writing what Paul Whiteman has accomplished with the orchestra. And beyond all else, they will behold another effort to solve the age-old problem of reconciling music and drama in the theater—an undertaking so boldly drastic as to merit the praise of a new and original form.

As has often been the case in pioneer endeavor, this invention arose from arduous experiment rather than deliberate design. The fact may be explained by recounting the evolution of "Deep River."

Twenty years ago Arthur Hopkins produced in vaudeville a one-act play, "A Light From St. Agnes," by Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. It so chanced that Mrs. Fiske some years later engaged as musical director a young composer of English birth, Franke Harling, to whom she showed her play with the suggestion that it might be made into an American opera.

Harling had enjoyed a musical education of classic rigor, his principal teacher in composition, piano, organ, violin and violoncello having been Theo Ysaye of Brussels, a brother of Eugene Ysaye, violinist and former director of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. In his boyhood Harling had been a choir singer, thus gaining an intimate knowledge of the vocal idiom.

In Tin Pan Alley.

Moreover, under the duress of earning a living in America, he drudged several years in Tin Pan Alley, doing the hack work of notation and ochestration for Beethovens of syncopation who were often so illiterate as to be unable to find A on the piano, but who had a knack of creating tunes and rhythms. He even composed several scenes in the vernacular for the revues.

In this way he gained a mastery of American folk music, commonly termed jazz, which was that of a practical worker, on the inside.

As a musician he proceeded to analyze this new argot of tones, and found that syncopation and bizarre novelties of instrumental hue are not its fundamental characteristics. The essential qualities of jazz, he determined, are two. The first is a sostenuto bass derived from the African tom-tom—a relentless, unwavering tramp of sound on a pulse of one, two, three, four. The second, reared upon it, is a structure of as many as four or five rhythmic patterns, at least one of them syncopated.

In a word, jazz is rhythmic counterpoint. Whereas Palestrina and Bach wove into a coherent fabric many independent strands of melody, jazz interlaces metrical figures in a polyphony of rhythm. Though jazz is usually employed for dancing and comedy effects, Harling saw in this form—the only important musical invention in the last 75 years, he believes—a vehicle intrinsically fitted for the expression of emotional turbulence and stress.

Tested His Theory.

This theory he tested a bit hesitatingly in a setting of "A Light From St. Agnes," which was produced last season by the Chicago Civic Opera. The work created national interest, and not the least inveigled was Arthur Hopkins, at seeing his old vaudeville production advanced to the rank of grand opera.

In addition, Mr. Hopkins believed in the possibilities of jazz as an artistic medium and had for several years been convinced that the exile of music from the dramatic theater was a serious error.

The spoken stage, he says, has gradually been talking itself to death, as is shown by the fact that we are able to produe in each generation only two or three playwrights whose work is so valuable in itself as to be able to stand on its own feet. The theater of the future, in his belief, will consist of an increasing merger of good drama and good music.

But not on the terms of conventional grand opera. "Aida" and "Tristan," he thinks, would be more appealing works if their plot points were delivered as straight dramatic scenes instead of being veiled in recitative, which, as he justly remarks, is neither good music nor clear speech.

Stallings Librettist.

With these ideas in mind, he telegraphed to Harling, engaged as librettist Laurence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory?" and creator of "The Big Parade," and set to work on the opus which he was convinced would be the crowning achievement of his long career as a producer and his supreme contribution to the theater.

It was his insistence, as a veteran manager, that at all costs the story should be comprehensible, which resulted, after months of working out, in the unique structure of "Deep River." Of course operetta and musical comedy have employed spoken text, but never before were music and dialogue completely divided into compartments.

The experiment resulted finally in the selection of a cast which consisted of two separate companies, one dramatic and the other operatic, which even rehearsed in different theaters until the moment arrived for assembling the production as a whole.

It was then found that the first act had become in essence spoken drama, with music introduced only incidentally, and with the characters revealing their personalities and situations in oral exposition; that the second act had turned into thorough grand opera, without a single spoken word; and that the third, for the purpose of unraveling the plot threads, had reverted to the dramatic style of the first act.

Before the curtain rose on "Deep River" the other night at the Sam S. Shubert Theater in Philadelphia, I had an opportunity to scrutinize Mr. Harling's array of instruments in the pit. It was neither a jazz orchestra nor a symphony orchestra, but an original combination of both.

The Instruments Used.

There were 10 first violins, no second violins or violas, four violoncellos, two double-basses, two flutes, oboe, clarinet, bass clarinet, bassoon, four horns, alto and tenor saxophones, two trumpets, trombone, bass tuba, two grand pianos, a percussion battery requiring two performers, and a set of chimes with an unusual equipment of 18 notes. In all, there were 40 musicians.

On the stage during the first act appeared an auxiliary orchestra consisting of violoncello, banjo, accordeon, piccolo, flute, violin, double-bass, trumpet and trombone. And behind the scenes, during this act, sang the best chorus I have ever heard in a theater. The ensemble, in fact, comprised two antiphonal choruses of 64 voices, a considerable proportion of them Russian. They were chosen not from musical shows but from New York studios, and for musicianship as well as voices.

A Gorgeous Second Act.

Musicianship was indispensable, for in the gorgeous second act, which is actual jazz from the first note to the last, the choristers were more than once entwining five separate rhythmic patterns. This is probably the most intricate choral music ever attempted on the stage.

But during the first act music, which usually insists with feminine vehemence on dominating wherever it enters, is subdued with a virile hand. There could be no more charming evocation of mood than the singing of the invisible chorus, chanting airs steeped in the plantation spiritual. But it was used merely as an adornment for the dialogue of quadroon belles, Creole bloods and Kentucky planters who, in costumes of 1830, occupied the front of the stage.

We heard that the mistress of M. Brusard, a wealthy rakehell, had proved unfaithful, that he would attend the quadroon ball that night for the purpose of choosing her successor, and that modest and pretty Mugette was being groomed by her mother for that distinction. A rival enters in Hazzard Streatfield of Kentucky, who has come down the "Deep River" to New Orleans with his elder brother, Col. Streatfield, and a fire-eater named Hutchins. Hazzard and Mugette fall in love.

The second act occurs at the Place Congo, and thither come Mugette and her mother to beg of the Voodoo Queen a charm to ensnare Brusard's heart.

Devil Worship.

The girl turns the prayer into one for a spell over Hazzard; and the rites of devil worship, in which are used a toad and a snake, together with the dramatic conflict, are expressed in jazz of stunning emotional power, both in chorus and orchestra.

The third act has its setting in the patio of M. Hercules' ballroom. Hazzard wins Mugette from Brusard, and both are killed in a duel. The extermination of Kentucky Colonels would appear to be a favorite pursuit of Creole gentlemen, for previously Brusard had killed the elder Streatfield in a duel, and another had escorted Hutchins into eternity with a dagger.

This ambitious work is not without defects. A principal one appears to me a lack of musical unity. The first act is saturated with the spirit of the plantation melody, the second is jazz, and the third mostly French and Spanish. The second act climax is dramatically feeble. Mr. Hopkins' passion for clarity is betrayed by the obscure enunciation of several of the singers and actors. It seems not quite rational for Hazzard Streatfield to sing an amorous ditty while his brother is being slain next door, or for Mugette to plead with her lover to flee at once for his life, and then detain him for a lengthy duet.

If the story if far from distinguished, and the lryics have little pretension to poetic or literary skill, the characters have realism instead of being the burlesque or sterotyped mannikins of operetta.

The Creoles discuss sex matters without equivocation, and the Kentuckians are addicted to those vigorous reflections on the maternity of their enemies which helped turn "What Price Glory" into a box office triumph.

But "Deep River" has all the symptoms of a resounding success. It is exquisitely costumed, and the first and third act sets are exploits of scenic loveliness. Its chorus will prove a sensation. For the student the work will serve as a landmark in the development of a native music drama, and as a proof that jazz has the vitality and resource for a restatement, fresh and vivid, of dramatic emotions.

tirely new field of pictorial expression.

Since then, simplicity has been increasing, and extravagance has been on the wane. Ernst Lubitsch, on coming to America, abandoned the historical pageants that had made him famous, and devoted himself to impretentious productions in which characterizations were emphasized. Erich von Stroheim, in "Greed," tried to do the same thing.

There are many other notable disciples of the new school, on both sides of the Atlantic. They are the men with whom the future development of the motion picture now rests.

OF ALL the stars of the motion picture firmament, one stands out as the greatest characterizer of them all. His name is Emil Jannings. He has brought conviction and a high appreciation of reality to such widely contrasted roles as Louis XV, a vaudeville acrobat, Pharaoh, Henry the VIII, a doorman, Peter the Great, and Danton.

Mr. Jannings could probably play Peck's Bad Boy and get away with it beautifully.

Behind the Screens

role of the star's sister, and Hugh Miller, who has been starred in English and German pictures, is playing the Yogi. Andre Segurola, former Metropolitan Opera Co. singer, has the part of an impresario.

Charles Sellon, character actor, has been engaged to play an important role in "The Lady in Ermine," Corinne Griffith's new starring vehicle, shooting on which has been started under the direction of James Flood.

Frank Griffin has just completed for First National Productions a new play entitled "The Social Cohens." The usual order is reversed, in that the story will be first produced as a screen attraction and followed later by the stage presentation.

Opening shots on "Orchids and Ermine," Colleen Moore's next starring vehicle to follow "Twinkletoes," are slated to be taken in New York City this week, with Alfred A. Santell directing. Miss Moore arrived in New York with her husband, John McCormick, general manager of First National producing activities on the West Coast. Jack Mulhall will play opposite Miss Moore.

The complete list of Ben Lyon's next feature vehicle, "Not Herbert," has just been announced. Pauline Starke has the leading feminine role. The other players are Sam Hardy, Virginia Lee Corbin, Lloyd Whitlock, Diana Kane, Tammany Young, Charles Craig, Christine Compton, Byron Douglas and little Helen Rowland.

Dick Barthelmess is wearing a fine crop of real whiskers in "The White Black Sheep," his newest Inspiration-First National picture, which Sidney Olcott is directing.

Following completion of Raymond Griffith's current starring comedy, "You'd Be Surprised," the comedian and James Cruze, who will direct his next effort, have decided upon the story they will film. It will be called "The Waiter at the Ritz" and will be based on W. Somerset Maugham's stage play, "Jack Straw."

plays as to have become almost a stencil. The mere sight of an actor in clerical garb is almost a warning to the audience that the character is a rascally fellow, smug, furtive, sex-starved and likely, before the end of the Second Act, to be found embroiled in an indecorous relationship with the pretty chambermaid. I have seen three such stage ministers in as many weeks.

The epidemic is, I suspect, only the spitting out of a long accumulating poison. For centuries the pulpits thundered with denunciations of the theater as a temple of sin, scarcely distinguishable from a brothel or a gambling hell. Actors were scourged, dreated as rogues, denied burial in consecrated ground and the sinful parishioners who encouraged them by attending their performances were warned that they themselves would probably come to no good end. This ancient nonsense died out long ago but even in our own time vestigial traces of that point of view have been evident in enough pulpits to suggest that in its recent rough handling of the clergy, the theater is merely enjoying the urchin pleasure of sassing back.

THE production of "Rain" was but symptomatic of the new freedom, now so part and parcel of the thought of this community that the manifold uses to which it is put are scarcely noticed. Thus, in the past fortnight, plays have been produced on Broadway without creating a ripple in the town's vast calm which, had they been written a dozen years ago, would either have called out the police reserves or, more likely, been denied production altogether.

CONSIDER for instance, the farce called "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." It arrived, full-panoplied, on Tuesday night and with one accord every man in the first audience had selected as his partner for the evening the most decorative blonde of his acquaintance, though, of course, some were driven to escorting fair creatures whose fairness had been achieved by sheer determination. This seeming demonstration of the eternal truth that gentlemen do prefer blondes was set down by the cynical rather as an effort on the part of the first-nighters to establish themselves as gentlemen—thus settling an old dispute.

This gay play by Anita Loos and John Emerson is, as far as I now recall, the first play to treat the fallen woman with levity. Under sundry euphemisms, such as "Lilies of the Field" and "Ladies of the Evening," certain comical hussies have lately gamboled on the outskirts of the plot, but the authors of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" are, I think, the first in our time to place a strumpet in the center of the stage and ask, as one man of the world to another: "Isn't she a scream?" Thus but redresses the balance in the theater where, ever since the early days of "Camille," the playwrights had never led a fallen woman out onto the stage except for the purpose of having a good, old-fashioned cry over her.

THEN even more pathfinding was that pioneer tragedy called "The Captive") which came to the Empire on the following night. This is the American translation of Bourdet's widely heralded play called "La Prisonniere," done into English by the younger Hornblow, son of the Mr. Hornblow who has been solemnly "going to the play" these many years for the Theater Magazine. It is the study of an unhappy woman whose inaccessibility to the solicitude of her father, the companionship of her sister and the puzzled courtship of an old suitor are finally, as in a slowly unfolding mystery, traced to the circumstance that she is under the spell not of some tyrranous man but of a woman—a woman who never enters on the scene from first to last but whose shadow thrown athwart it is as truly the protagonist of "La Prisonniere" as Hamlet is the protagonist of "Hamlet."

The nature of the hold the dire Unseen has upon the hapless captive is suggested by the author with such reticence and such tact that a large proportion of every audience that might stray into the Empire Theater these days would follow the play from beginning to end and go home untroubled by even a suspicion of the author's chief intention.

That proportion would be smaller in Paris; it will be larger in every American city outside New York to which the management may be moved to take the play when this town is done with it. But, for all the discretion with which the theme has been formed into the shape of a play and for all the fine, surgical calm with which this study of an unhappy erotic abnormality has been studied, "The Captive" remains a sufficiently brusque violation of an ancient taboo to place it foremost among the current plays which would not have been so much as attempted a dozen years ago.

concerts in the City of New York, has contributed a number of interesting lantern slides, which will be used to show pictures of the composers and in some instances the houses in which they were born. These lantern slides for the concerts will also illustrate the flute, tympani, drums, piano (with Mr. Ganz presiding at the keyboard), violin and harp.

In the list of concerts the first one will emphasize the importance of the flute in the musical family. The pictures will show the evolution of the instrument from the small whistle of the ancients to the present one of complicated structure.

Mrs. Agnes Moore Fryberger, who has been brought to St. Louis by the Symphony Society to act as educational director especially for the young people, will prepare school bulletins with program notes and suggestions for class room lessons before each concert. She will also visit private and parochial schools and speak to the young people concerning the orchestral numbers to be performed.

by stage hands and musicians, and other increases in expenses. Others contend that the movies with their lower prices have won away much of the drama's clientele. And still others point out that the producers may have brought it on themselves when they turned to the song and dance shows, and developed a public taste that can be satisfied only through the mass appeal of the 4000-seat motion picture theaters.

As yet the movies have sought out legitimate actors only for participation in pictures such as they have done with John Barrymore, who now seems loath to return to the more rigid task of doing "Hamlet" nightly. For stage their houses the movie have preferred those do eye and ear entertainment.

JANNINGS HONORED

Houses to Devote Week to Films; Comes to U. S. This Month.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Emile Jannings, hero of the film drama, is to be signally honored prior to his departure Oct. 8 for the United States, where he is to star in a picture under the direction of Ernst Lubitsch. Moving picture houses in Berlin and several other cities will devote a week to producing each night a Jannings film to show the public the whole career of Germany's most popular screen star.

SOUSA TO PLAY HERE NOV. 3

John Philip Sousa and his band are announced for their annual concert at the Odeon on Wednesday evening, Nov. 3. The matinee of the same day will be played in the auditorium of the East St. Louis High School.

Sousa has been active all summer at the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial and at Willow Grove.

Shakspeare Play at London Docks.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—After 300 years Shakspeare has at last arrived in London's dockland. Sir Frank Benson, the veteran actor, who has toured the United States and Canada with a Shakspearean repertory, has introduced the "The Bard of Avon" to an audience at the Cannington branch of the dockland settlement. A star company presented "The Merchant of Venice" and many persons who live not far from the site of the old Elizabethan Globe Theater heard of Shakspeare for the first time in their lives.

FRENCH PUSSY WILLOW

(Salix Caprae)

Not the wild Pussy Willow but a cultivated French variety that grows on any good ground into a beautiful round shrub or tree 8 to 15 feet high, from which you can make 400 to 600 cuttings each winter. This variety has made a sensation wherever grown. Just plant one or more of them this fall on your lawn or use them for a tall screen or background. In January or February cut the ends off the branches, bring indoors, put in water, and then watch them unfold their unique flowers—as interesting as gladiolus. Ideal for schools and convalescents. Commercially the branches sell in cities at $1.00 and up per dozen.

Order Now

No matter how many trees or shrubs you now have, be the first in your neighborhood to grow the French Pussy Willow. Don't fail to plant some this fall—we suggest 3, 6 or a dozen. All trees 3 to 4 feet high—price 60c; 2 for $1.00; 6 for $2.25; dozen, $4.00.

Send No Money!

Just send your name and address and the number of trees wanted. On arrival pay the postman plus a few cents postage. Or if you will send cash with order we will send all prepaid. Safe Arrival Guaranteed. Send your order NOW.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

ONE-REEL MOVIE FILM TO AID POLICE FUND

Picture of Patrolmen's "Duties and Dangers" Shown in Towns of State.

Missouri towns are viewing "inside stuff," the workings of the St. Louis Police Department as portrayed in a one-reel thriller, with policemen as actors, which will be shown in St. Louis for two weeks, beginning Oct. 18.

On Nov. 2 voters of the State will pass on "Proposition No. 2," a constitutional amendment to enable cities to establish pension funds for disabled policemen or their dependants. The proposition means nothing either way to smaller towns, since they will neither benefit from such funds nor have to contribute to them, and the Board of Police Commissioners ordered the film to arouse their support from the stadpoint of "doing the right thing."

Whether policemen make good moving picture actors is not put to any severe test in this picture. What they have to do in it seems to come natural, for it is along the line of what they do every hour of duty. The only apparent stiffness is in the devastatingly military salutes which appear in one or two scenes.

"An Every-Day Hero."

The picture has a professional aspect, in fact, from the first scene, a summer night with the characteristic subtitle, "The brilliance and beauty of a summer noon is lost amidst the flashing, glittering lights of a great city," to what the movie critics have nicknamed the "final fadeout." It's title is "An Every-Day Hero."

Motor Cycle Policeman Richard Palmer takes the role of Dan Harrigan, the "everyday hero." Lieut. Fred Lang, head of the motor cycle squad, also has a principal role, as have Policemen William Cubuka and Victor Bragee of his squad.

Dan is a watchman, a disabled policeman forced to take that job because there was no pension. A storm blows out a warning lantern at a barrier where a road ends at the edge of an embankment. A careening flivver full of joy-riders strikes Dan when he tries to head it off, goes through the barrier and over the embankment.

Outdoor Night Scenes.

At City Hospital Bragee tells Dan's story to nurses, and Dan is shown in police school, as a patrolman guiding school children across a street, directing traffic and then as a "motor cop." One night he volunteers to go to a house where two burglars are terrifying a woman and child. A burglar blackjacks him and the two dispose of him by the novel method of binding and gagging him and then dropping him from the second floor porch, ending his police career.

At the National Film Studios, which made the film, it was said that the outdoor night scenes were something new in this section. Illumination was provided by "daylight arcs" of 9,850,000 candlepower fed by a generator carried on a truck. An airplane motor with propellers gave the storm effect. The accident "location" was at the bridge on Clayton road just east of the Mouted District Station in Forest Park.

The story reverts to the hospital. A physician reports that Dan will be an invalid for life. "I never knew before what a police pension fund could mean," he remarked, and the fadeout is Bragee exhorting, "Vote 'YES' for this amendment on Nov. 2 and have your friends vote 'Yes,' too."

FIND DOWN-AND-OUTS POLIT.

London Judge Dons Ragged Clothes to Investigate.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—A London Magistrate has investigated personally the condition of the "down-and-outs." He changed his robes in court and donned tattered clothes, old shoes, a scarf, string to support his trousers, and an old worn-out cap. Then his Honor began a lonely all-night pilgrimage through London's underworld. He sat for a while on the benches along the Thames embankment where a few men and women were stealing some sleep. A young woman, a down-and-out herself, slipped him a three-penny bit.

Then he went "to bed" for a couple of hours on the flagstones beneath the National Gallery. He had some eight companions there, one of whom mutely gave him a bundle of old newspapers for a pillow. Another offered him a piece of bread. He observed hundreds of men sleeping in the crypt of a church. "They were all decent people, unable to find a job, and I found more kind-heartedness among them than in my own usual surroundings. None was intoxicated, and I feel certain that had a passer-by dropped his purse they would have picked it up and returned it to him," remarks the enterprising Judge.

Many Berlin Slayers End Lives.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Police officials admit that in comparison with American metropolitan forces they have an easy time. About 70 per cent of German murderers, municipal reports show, either commit suicide immediately after their crimes or surrender. Hence the proportion of killing to be solved is small. Last year there were 68 murders in Berlin. Recently police received a postcard signed Leo Blankenstein, saying he was wanted for embezzling 3000 marks and would return to Berlin on a certain train. The incident was not uncommon and Blankenstein walked into the arms of waiting policemen.

Soldan High Mothers' Club.

The Soldan High School Mothers' Club wil hold its first meeting of the season at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the school auditorium. "School Year Resolutions" will be the subject of discussion and a group of students will give a demonstration of physical education. Mothers of students to graduate in January are urged to attend.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY AND GIRL SCOUTS

300 ATTEND SCOUT PROGRAM AT CHURCH

Members of Troop 157 Put On Demonstration of First Aid Work.

Acting upon the theory that not only the parents of a Boy Scout troop, but everyone connected with the organization, should be familiar with the work done by the boys, Troop 157, of the Advent Evangelical Lutheran Church, gave a scouting program before 300 members of the church last Tuesday. The program, a well-rounded exposition of the knowledge gained in scouting, also included the presentation of a troop flag to the boys by the Brotherhood Association of the church. The attendance was one of the largest ever assembled in St. Louis for an individual troop event.

A stage was built in the back yard of the church by Troop Committeeman Gotsch, former Scoutmaster C. S. Pollack, whose tenure of office was concluded that night, and the new scoutmaster, Edwin E. Skinner, formerly the assistant scoutmaster of the troop. The background was made of strips of curtains, each strip having on it the insignia of a merit badge. A large tent formed the dressing room.

First Aid Demonstration.

The program opened with a model overnight camp, the scouts being seated around a fire discussing the day's happenings. While some of the boys were tying different knots, two others carried in a scout supposed to be hit by an automobile. The troop then showed what would be done in a real case, including signaling to another camp for a doctor. Taps ended the first scene.

Scout Marvin Schmidt spoke on "What My First-Class Badge Means to Me," and the pastor, F. M. Harman talked on "Boy Scouts and the Church." A "melierdrammer" pantomime of an old Spanish romance was followed by a boxing bout, in which Pat Wilson and Marvin Schmidt, stripped to the waist, used gloves covered with lamp-black.

Members Increased.

An Indian pow-wow by Troop 155, of the McCausland Presbyterian Church, completed the program. Troop 155 plans to repeat the exhibition Oct. 27, the pow-wow to be given by Troop 157.

Troop 157 was taken over by Scoutmaster Pollack of Troop 155 last October, when it had a membership of only three. With the aid of 155, the membership has now grown to 16, several of whom are first-class scouts. The new scoutmaster, Edwin Skinner, has been assistant about eight months. These troops—155 and 157—are the two which in August established a St. Louis troop hike record by walking to Camp Irondale.

BOY SCOUTS DISTRIBUTE VEILED PROPHET POSTERS

Cover Business and Residence Sections of City in Less Than 10 Days.

The entire distribution of the posters announcing the coming visit of the Veiled Prophet next Tuesday night was accomplished by 35 Boy Scouts from 10 of the city's troops. These boys, all volunteers, placed 3500 posters throughout the important business and residential sections of the city in less than 10 days, the whole work being done after school and all day a week ago yesterday.

Scouts for the work were found by calling up several scoutmasters and asking if any boy in their troops wished to volunteer. The boys worked in pairs, each pair being assigned a definite area to cover. Every business house was visited, and the permission asked to place a poster. The centers covered were the downtown business section from Market street to Washington boulevard and from Fourth to Eighteenth street; all transfer points along Grand boulevard from Delmar to Kossuth; Delmar boulevard from Euclid to Kingshighway and from Clara to Hamilton; and the Wellston business area.

Troops who participated in the civic good turn were Nos. 18, 24, 33, 34, 50, 67, 85, 104, 146 and 178.

Troop News

North District.

After a six weeks' vacation Troop 19 has resumed regular meetings at the Blair School kindergarten, holding their first meeting last Friday night. The troop is to start on a new project system whereby each project is to be taught by one of the troop officers. A drive is also being started to obtain new members.

Ansel Miller of the Flying Eagle Patrol was appointed troop reporter for Troop 72, and Clyde Turnbeau, patrol leader of the Engles, was made troop instructor for new scouts at an officers' meeting last week. A poster contest was also started, in which each scout will make two posters for the troop and one, in his patrol colors, for his patrol. The winners will receive prizes. The handicraft class conducted by this troop has changed its meeting night from Thursday to Friday, and will assemble in the new clubroom given to the troop by the Neighborhood Association, in whose building the scouts meet.

A hike was taken last Sunday to Spring Park, near Florissant. While there the troop met Troop 220, and a series of games and contests was held between the two. An apple "feed," the gift of Chairman Redford of Troop 220's committee, concluded the program.

West District.

The Diamond W Troop, composed of all scout officers in the West District, will resume meetings tomorrow night at 7:30, at the Pilgrim Congregational Church. Plans and organization for the coming season will be the chief business, and a "surprise" out-of-town visitor will speak. A card, giving the name, scout rank, address, business address and home and business telephone numbers will be required from everyone as an admission card. All West District scout officers and committeemen have been urged to attend.

Suburban District.

A fire-by-friction contest was held by the patrols of Troop 3, Webster, at their last meeting, but no winner was picked. An inter-patrol contest will be held the next two weeks, each patrol mounting and labeling as many species of leaves as they can find.

North District.

A rally in which all North District troops are invited to participate will be held Oct. 23 at Kenwood Springs, near Wellston. Contests in various scouting activities, such as fire-building, water-boiling, signaling and fire-by-friction, will be held. This rally will officially inaugurate the scouting season for the district.

GIRL SCOUTS OPEN CARDINAL COTTAGE

Kirkwood Troop's Home Was Furnished and Decorated by Members.

Few local Girl Scout troops can boast of having a private meeting place entirely decorated and furnished by themselves, so the Cardinal troop of Kirkwood felt justified in holding a celebration recently to open formally Cardinal Cottage, their new headquarters. A house warming was held to which the mothers and a few other guests were invited, in all 61 persons attending.

Cardinal Cottage, which is not named after the baseball team, was formerly a one-room kindergarten connected with the Kirkwood parochial school. Last May it was was turned over to the girls for an indefinite period. Since then the entire spare time of the troop has been spent in cleaning, painting, decorating and furnishing the building.

Furniture Repainted.

Old furniture, discarded at home, was repaired, and painted in the cottage color scheme of jade green and cardinal red. Each of the four patrols was given a corner, to be decorated as the girls wished, as long as it conformed to the color scheme. The patrol, trophies and possessions, and articles made by patrol members were given places of prominence, and pictures and handicraft articles hung on the walls. The old kindergarten was turned into a comfortable clubroom.

At the house warming the guests were welcomed by two scouts appointed to act as hostesses, and were then shown the patrol corners. "Get-acquainted" games for everyone, and a sun bonnet relay for mothers only were played, and refreshments served.

Open Week-Ends.

After the desirability of a mothers' council for the troop was stressed in a talk by Miss Margaret Taylor of the executive council, the mothers voted unanimously to organize one, and appointed Mrs. James A. Lewis temporary chairman. One mother from each patrol will assist her.

The cottage will be open every Friday evening after school to enable scouts to study for or pass tests, or to work on projects. The troop is starting an extensive program in handicraft, including the making of rugs and toys, and sewing.

A hike was taken yesterday to Scout Hill, southwest of Kirkwood.

Bernice Webb and Josephine Woracek were presented with their scout pins last Thursday evening at the first meeting of the season of Arrowhead Troop 7. The meeting was held at the home of the captain, Miss Eckleman.

The scouts of Troop 15 entertained their parents with games and a play at a meeting Tuesday evening. Tenderfoot and Second Class badges were also awarded in an investiture ceremony. After refreshments had been served, the meeting closed with the singing of scout songs and taps.

Troop 39 has resumed meetings for the year, the first one being held last Monday. Friends of the captain, Mrs. Giles, are helping the girls with their tests, Miss Claycamp assisting in the Tenderfoot work and Miss Bussman and Mrs. Giles passing the girls in their second and first class subjects. Evelyn Morten and Virginia Pappe of this troop completed their second class work at the Girl Scout camp at Jefferson Barracks this summer.

Coenia Troop 56 took a 16-mile hike to Falling Spring, Ill., last Sunday, starting from the Davis street ferry, on which they crossed the Mississippi. The hike was made along the railroad tracks. On the way each girl took the name of an historical character and all were woven into a humorous story, each girl telling a part. Miss Eckleman, the captain, was Queen Isabella, Virginia Kramer was Columbus, Dorothy Sexaner, Buffalo Bill, Marie Poehling, Isaac, Dorothy Wessels, Daniel Boone, Francis Kramer, Sir Walter Raleigh, Lorraine Roche, Agar and Catherine Kuncker was Moses.

Dinner was cooked and eaten at Falling Springs, and the Scouts explored the caves and bluffs in the neighborhood before starting home. The last six miles of the return trip was made in the rain.

Several new tenderfoot Scouts are to be admitted to the troop tomorrow night.

Troop 23 of the St. Marcus Evangelical Church, accompanied by two of the classes of the church, visited the German Protestant Orphans' home on St. Charles Rock road last Sunday. Each girl took a box of cookies, in all 37 pounds being given the children. A tour of the building was made, and facts about the orphans, home and grounds learned. Some of the girls are planning another visit.

New Name for Tuberculosis.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Communists have given tuberculosis another name. They call it "proletarian disease" in their party press. In obituary notices this term is used exclusively. The name was chosen because of the fact that tuberculosis is widespread among the proletariat, allegedly because of unhealthful working and housing conditions and improper nourishment.

Big Six Custom Brougham
The lowest price ever placed on a Big Six four-door enclosed car

AT its new low price of $1785, the Studebaker Big Six Custom Brougham is the crowning triumph of One-Profit manufacture. Only seven American cars are given a higher power rating, and they cost from two to five times more.

The long, low-swung custom contour of this smart car is agleam with lustrous duotone lacquers. Four wide doors open into a luxurious interior, richly upholstered in fine Chase mohair, and replete with such refinements as Butler finish hardware, broadlace trim, silken shades and toggle grips.

More than $100 worth of extra equipment is included without extra cost. A patented no-draft ventilating windshield (exclusively Studebaker) assures perfect ventilation. Fresh air may be admitted, without moisture, even in severe rainstorms.

The Big Six Custom Brougham is powered by the famous Studebaker Big Six L-head motor—first to beat the schedules of the fastest transcontinental trains from New York to San Francisco. Its remarkable freedom from vibration is insured by Studebaker's big crankshaft, fully machined and dynamically balanced. Its long life is attested by reports from more than 800 Studebaker owners who have driven their cars 100,000 miles or more.

The Big Six has long outsold every other car in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower. Now comes this amazing new Big Six value.

20 KILLINGS IN SEPTEMBER; ONLY 10 ARE SOLVED

Number Remaining Unexplained Is Largest for Single Month Under Present Police Board.

GANGSTER'S FEUD CAUSE OF MANY

Italian Gunmen Also Credtied With Several Deaths, for Which No One Has Been Arrested.

Twenty murders, 10 of them unsolved, were recorded on police blotters during September. This is the highest number of unsolved murders for any month under the present Police Board. In September, 1925, there were 11 murders, three of them unsolved.

Most of the unsolved murders last month are attributed by police to the bootleg feud between Cuckoo gangsters and Italian gunmen. There is little hope of convicting anyone of these murders, as the feudists refuse to talk to police.

On the night of Sept. 2, Caesar Cipriano, 22 years old, and Joseph Manzella, 24, were fatally wounded as they left the Baptist Hospital, Garrison and Franklin avenues, where they had visited Cipriano's brother-in-law, Frank Agrusa, wounded in another affray. The shots which killed Cipriano and Manzella came from a passing automobile occupied by several men.

Cipriano, according to police, was a leader of the notorious East Side Mob, closely identified with the moonshining industry in Madison and St. Clair counties.

Auto Driver Shot.

On Sept. 3 Pete Webbe, 26, of the Cuckoo crowd, was mortally wounded by shots from a passing automobile as he was driving at Virginia avenue and Davis street. A companion, Thomas Brennan, was wounded, but recovered.

Then there was a lull in the feud until Sept. 7, when Onofrio Albanese, 36, died of bullet wounds in a poolroom at 1425 North Fourteenth street. Police aren't quite sure whether he was killed in a gambling dispute or because of the bootleg feud.

There was some doubt also as to why Joseph Consiglio, 37, was shot to death as he drove his coupe north in the 1400 block of Blair avenue, Sept. 22. Consiglio, police say, had dealt in liquor and stolen automobiles while he conducted a confectionery in the Cuckoo neighborhood; he also gambled in the poolroom where Onofrio Albanese played his last hand. He had made enemies at both places.

Robbers Kill Store Manager.

John Thomas Haley, 37, was found shot dead in an alley near Kentucky and Manchester avenues, Sept. 22. Police think some man or woman was jealous of him.

The Cuckoo-Italian feud reached its heights Sept. 23, when revolvers roared at the Submarine Bar, Fourteenth and Locust streets. Six persons in the cafe were wounded, and Frank Christian, 44; Anthony Datallo, 32, and Joseph Rubino, 31, died of their wounds. Investigators believe Christian and Rubino were bystanders, and that the fusillade was aimed at Datallo, the proprietor, and certain others. The gang of gunmen, who fired from the doorways, escaped.

The last unsolved murder of the month occurred Sept. 25, when George Dozier, 47, manager of a Kroger store at 3755 Cote Brilliante avenue, was shot down by two young robbers.

Special police crews have been detailed to keep watch on the haunts of the bootleg feudists. They are being arrested on sight, thrown in the holdover for 20 hours and then released, if no warrants are obtained.

SHAKSPEARE-GOETHE WREATHS

British and German Estate Trustees Resume Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—The custom of having Shakspeare greet Goethe once a year, and Goethe reciprocating in kind, has been resumed for the first time since the war. Since 1864 Germans have sent a wreath of leaves picked from trees in the garden of the Goethe house in Frankfort to Straford-on-Avon on the occasion of Shakspeare's birthday anniversary, April 21. British have returned the compliment on Aug. 28, with a wreath of leaves picked in the gardens of the Shakspeare house. The practice was resumed by the trustees and guardians of Shakspeare's house on Goethe's birthday and will be continued next April by the trustees of the Goethe house.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will often act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure their trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

A Delightful Row

"My wife had suffered from stomach and liver trouble for many years and had taken medicine enough to sink a ship; so when I brought home a bottle of MAYR'S, on the advice of my employer, she refused to take it. Her liver trouble hadn't helped her disposition any. I had a big row, but she took it the next week. Her ailments have all disappeared." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. ETHICAL SOCIETY'S 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Notable Speakers to Attend Celebration Which Will Begin Next Thursday.

The fortieth anniversary of the St. Louis Ethical Society will be celebrated here by a four-day program at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard, beginning next Thursday morning.

At the celebration to which the public is invited, there will be addresses by leaders of Ethical Societies in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, as well as by members of the local body. Included in the list of speakers are: Dr. Felix Adler, Dr. Alfred Martin, Dr. John L. Elliott and Henry J. Golding of the New York Society for Ethical Culture; Horace J. Bridges of the Chicago Ethical Society, Mrs. George E. O'Dell, Philadelphia Ethical Society, and Percival Chubb, Charles Nabel and Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis.

Open to the Public.

The public is invited to inspect exhibits during the celebration and to attend a public meeting at Sheldon Memorial at 8:30 p. m. Thursday. The exhibits will be supplied by the Women's Auxiliary of the St. Louis Ethical Society; the Children's Sunday Assembly, the Ethical Society Toy Shop, Troop 21, Boy Scouts and the St. Louis Chapter Child Study Association.

Features of the program will be visits to Jefferson Memorial and Shaw's Garden, visits to public school buildings, a luncheon at Pine Tree, and a reception and tea at Bixby Hall, Washington University. The anniversary will close next Sunday with service at Sheldon Memorial at 11 a. m. and an informal anniversary supper at 6:30 p. m.

Organized by W. L. Sheldon.

The St. Louis Ethical Society was organized 40 years ago by Walter L. Sheldon of New York, who was invited to come to St. Louis and deliver a series of lectures on "A New Basis of Religious Organization." Among the first works of the new society was the establishment of a free reading room for workers, an under-age kindergarten, a school of domestic science, and a self-culture hall. Education as the instrument of civic progress is stressed by the society and present activities include contemporary literary groups, child study groups, a men's club, young people's association, drama group, a parent-teacher association, a Boy Scout troop, and other educational bodies.

The purposes of the Ethical Society, as outlined by Percival Chubb, leader of the St. Louis organization, are: Sunday meetings and the maintenance of a public platform for the enforcement of recognized standards of right; the systematic moral and religious instruction of the youth; the promotion of self-education among adults; and the encouragement of all practical efforts to improve social conditioos.

In addition to Sheldon Memorial, the Ethical Society operates the Neighborhood House at Nineteenth and Wash streets.

BOY BORN IN ARCTIC GETS FIRST VIEW OF CIVILIZATION

"Mickey" Gordon, 21, Accompanies Father, Point Barrow Fur Trader, on Visit.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Civilization and "easy living" is being put to the test by Thomas "Mickey" Gordon. The "trial" will determine whether Mickey, who was born at Point Barrow, Alaska, 21 years ago, and lived there until this fall, will go back to the Northland.

Mickey was brought here by his father, Tom Gordon, fur trader at Point Barrow for 40 years. Tom Gordon fitted out the 1915 expedition of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, and is a personal friend of Roald Amundsen.

The Gordons, father and son, came south on the fur trading schooner Charles Brower. "Ever since he was a small boy I promised I'd take him 'outside' to see the bright world of make-believe," said the elder Gordon. "Make-believe, because it doesn't seem substantial to me any more. Let the boy look around. I go north next spring, when the ice breaks."

Mickey can choose for himself—between "make-believe" and the frozen land of his birth.

Wants to Focus Public Attention on Tanlac

Victim of Indigestion, Worn Nerves and Clogged System Finds Long-Sought Relief. Strength Restored

Oscar Chroninger, a well-known photographer with studios at 317 E. 12th St., Kansas City, Mo., says: "Many others should give Tanlac an opportunity.

"Due to overwork and the lack of exercise my system became clogged. Food that I ate caused painful indigestion and bloated my stomach. I seldom had a restful night's sleep. And I became so rundown that I lost all desire to work. Things went from bad to worse, until I began taking Tanlac.

"This tonic soon put me in prime condition. It settled my nerves which had long been over-wrought and gave me a ravenous appetite. Now I eat and digest food like a husky Kansas harvester. And I sleep so soundly that only the shrill bell of my alarm clock can awaken me. I can work all day and farinto the night without showing any signs of fatigue. My marvelous experience proves the merits of Tanlac."

Tanlac does banish pain that ravages health. It conquers ailments and usually builds up strength in famished bodies. It relieves the system of poison caused by constipation and sluggish liver. It is Nature's remedy, made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula.

Enjoy the priceless benefits of energy, strength and good health. Take Tanlac. First bottle shows amazing results. Get it from your druggist. Over 40 million bottles sold.

DID WITHOUT EATING UNTIL TOO WEAK TO GO

In describing how he suffered from stomach trouble, Mr. S. T. Strain, of Swink, Okla., says:

"I have been a user of Black-Draught for four or five years. I have been taking it for stomach trouble. I suffered after eating with bloating and a 'tight feeling.'

"I had spells when I could not eat much of anything. I had severe headaches. I would be nauseated and hurt a lot. I was in a pretty bad fix.

"I began taking Black-Draught. It seemed to help me wonderfully. I hadn't found anything that benefited me as Black-Draught did. I certainly can recommend it.

"There were times when I just did without anything to eat until I was too weak to go, because it hurt me so when I did eat, and my breath seemed so short. I was just miserable, and when I ate my system seemed clogged.

"I had very severe headaches. So I didn't know just what to do. I knew I couldn't work if I didn't eat. Seemed like what I spit up was bitter as could be. I took Black-Draught pretty regularly and got where I could eat, and I don't have to take it so regularly now. But I sure do praise it for what it did for me."

Thousands of others praise Black Draught for the help it has been to them in relieving biliousness, indigestion and constipation.

If troubled as described above, get a package of Black-Draught today, and give it a good trial.

A Laxative to Rely On

Take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for Constipation. Mild and Gentle. Never Loses its Good Effect

YOU know how much more difficult it is each year as you get older to avoid the ill effects of chronic constipation. The stomach and bowel muscles relax as age advances, and as you are naturally less active, in time they work only by stimulation. You try dieting and exercise,—then take medicine.

All medicines, however, are not suited to elderly people any more than to children, so you will be glad to know of a particular medicine that acts as near to nature as has yet been found. It is a prescription written thirty odd years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell and used most successfully in his practice. It is known today as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you can buy it under that name at any drug store. A sixty-cent bottle will last an average family many months, and all can use it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts mildly, gently and without griping. It so trains the stomach and bowel muscles that in time medicine of all kinds can be dispensed with. When people learn of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and see how wonderfully it acts they realize how unnecessary it is to use drastic salt waters, pills and powders, for these do but temporary good and are weakening to most constitutions. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, on the contrary, is so natural and safe (it contains no narcotic or strong drugs) that generations of mothers have given it to their babies.

Take a spoonful the next time you are constipated, or have any ailment due to constipation such as biliousness, headache, bad breath or indigestion. If Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should ever fail to do as claimed, you can have your money refunded. More people use it than any other laxative in the world.

Write "Syrup Pepsin," 521 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for a free sample bottle.

TIME EXTENDED FOR DEACONESS HOSPITAL DRIVE

Action Made Necessary by Rain Last Week—Tomorrow Night's Dinner Canceled.

More time will be given volunteer workers soliciting for the $700,000 building fund for the new Deaconess Hospital to reach their quotas, former Mayor Kiel, general chairman of the campaign, announced yesterday, following a conference of the campaign leaders. The drive originally was scheduled to close tomorrow night. Rain the last week, interfered seriously with the campaign.

How much longer the campaign will continue will be decided tomorrow.

The dinner scheduled for tomorrow night has been canceled, and, instead, a report meeting of all the workers will be held at noon at the City Club.

The spirit in which the campaign has been received generally is reflected in human interest stories told by workers making their reports or as unsolicited contributors stop in at campaign headquarters, 209 North Seventh street, to offer help.

Chairman Kiel characterizes as one of the most important contributions to the fund a half-dollar gift from a widow in the Caroline Mission district, in the South Side. She is a factory employe and supports four small children, her mother and herself.

Well Cared for at Hospital.

"My husband," she told the worker to whom she gave her contribution, "was fatally hurt in an automobile accident. For weeks he lay on his back at the Deaconess Hospital before death ended his sufferings. In all that time he was given the best of care. We could not afford to pay, but that made no difference to the deaconess. He was provided with the best of medical and nursing attention. Not only that, but the deaconess came to our home and saw to it that we were comfortable. I would not be true to the memory of my husband if I did not have some share in this campaign."

The worker at first declined the gift, but the woman insisted it be accepted.

Another worker had a similar experience when she was called by telephone by a woman who asked her to visit her for a subscription. She went to the address given and found what appeared to be a dilapidated-looking barn. Thinking that she had made a mistake she started to walk away, when a woman opened the door and called her in. She found a family living in dire poverty, but the woman insisted on giving her $5, declaring that "the deaconesses have been good to us and we want to help them build a new hospital."

Willing to Donate Yule Gift.

"I want to give $10," said one donor, according to a report made by a worker to Mrs. F. A. Keck, chairman of the women's division. "I haven't got the money now; but I know that my children are going to give me $10 for a Christmas present, and I want to give that for the new hospital."

Miss Emma Kaechelen, chairman of the woman's divisions, received a $5 bill from a former patient of the hospital, who is an invalid and dependent upon the care of a nephew in Illinois. The woman had been refused admittance to other hospitals because of the character of her ailment and her inability to pay. She was cared for at the Deaconess Hospital for four months and showed a great improvement in health when she left. Later she had a relapse and her nephew undertook to care for her.

Although destitute, inmates of the Altenheim gave $43.50. A 10-cent piece from a child at the Evangelical Orphans' Home is another valued gift.

The deaconesses who are the nurses at the hospital, receive less than $1 a day compensation; yet 48 of them joined in pledging themselves for $1000 for the fund.

"It shows that no matter what the circumstances, the heart of St Louis is in the right place," declared Chairman Kiel.

TROUBLED WITH HARD PIMPLES

Scattered Over Face. Was Ashamed to Go Out. Cuticura Healed.

"For months I was troubled with pimples which seemed to be getting worse all the time. The pimples were hard, large and red and festered. They were scattered all over my face, and looked so badly that I was ashamed to go out in public.

"I tried everything I could think of without benefit. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Fannie Lippy, 347 N. Front St., Middleport, Ohio.

Prevent pimples by daily use of Cuticura Soap, assisted by touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soothe and heal.

"My Life and Fighting Career"

By GENE TUNNEY

The World's New Heavyweight Boxing Champion

To be printed, EXCLUSIVELY in this territory, in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The First Chapter Will Appear FRIDAY October 8th

Tunney is unique in prize ring history. For the first time the crown is worn by a man of more than average education, a student of the classics. "A chap," some critics said, "who would rather pound a typewriter than an opponent!"

Tunney has written this life history himself. It ranges from boyhood in Greenwich Village, up through the World War, to his minor battles in the squared circle. And then, his own account of the ten rounds in which he defeated Jack Dempsey for the world title.

Whether you are particularly interested in boxing, or not, you will find it of absorbing interest. It will be printed, in this territory,

ARTIST GUILD'S ANNUAL EXHIBIT OPENS NOV. 13

Seven Prizes Amounting to $8000 to Be warded in Competition.

The St. Louis Artists' Guild will hold its fourteenth annual exhibition at the guild hall, 812 North Union boulevard, beginning Nov. 13, and continuing until some time in January. A reception and private view will be held Saturday evening, Nov. 13.

As in the past, the exhibition will be open to all artists residing in St. Louis or within a radius of 50 miles of the city, whether members of the Guild or not. All work must not have been previously exhibited in St. Louis, and must reach the Guild by Nov. 10.

Seven cash prizes, totaling $800, will be awarded in the various classes. They are the Artists' Guild prize, $300, for the best work of art; the Halsey C. Ives prize, $100, for landscape; the Carl Wimar prize, $100, for figure painting; the George Warren Brown prize, $50, for figuring painting; the Letticia Parker Williams prize, $100, for decorations, mural or otherwise; the Edward Mallinckrodt prize, $100, for portraits, and the Frederick Oaks Sylvester prize, $50, for sculpture.

The judges of paintings will be O. E. Berninghaus, C. F. Galt, G. F. Goetsch, C. G. Waldeck, C. K. Gleeson, Mary McColl and Mildred B. Carpenter; of sculpture, Sheila Burlingame, Caroline Risque and Victor Holm.

Tibetan Banner Paintings Will Be Shown at City Museum.

An exhibition of Tibetan banner paintings, gathered by the Roerich Art Expedition to Asia and owned by the Corona Mundi, International Art Center, of New York, will be shown at the City Art Museum in Forest Park for one month beginning Oct. 15.

The banner paintings are considered among the holiest possessions of Tibet, and are difficult to obtain, because the monasteries will rarely part with their sacred treasures. The paintings were obtained by Nicholas Roerich, an artist of repute, who won the confidence of the lamas and was permitted to witness temple ceremonies not seen before by Westerners.

The collection includes ancient works by Tibetan artists, and some modern paintings which are duplicates of ones in the Monastery Tashi-lunpo in Shigatse.

ART IN PARIS CAFE MENUS

Usually Signed by Chef in Effort to Please Customers.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Restaurant menus are to be recognized as works of art in the great restaurants of Paris. They are to be signed, like great pictures, with the name of the artist—the chef who prepares them.

Demands from the customers for the names of the men who have prepared superb dishes that have pleased, as well as a realization on the part of the proprietors that it is good business to make the names known have led to the step. Some proprietors fear, however, that the removal of a lionized chef from one restaurant to another will have the effect of taking away patronage. The move, at any rate, is considered likely to increase the salaries of cooks who already have achieved enviable reputations with a discriminating clientele.

Saturday Classes in erman.

Saturday classes in German, conducted by members of the German School Society Inc., opened in four public school buildings yesterday. Classes were held from 9 a. m. to noon in the garfield, Fanning, Long and Irving Schools. The courses are open to anyone.

don't dynamite your bowels

Wash Them With a Water Physic—Pluto Water

Harsh methods may do for things you want to destroy. It may be all right to use dynamite on old tree stumps but certainly not in the intestines.

Wash your bowel tract with water when you need a physic.

Use standard reliable Pluto Water—bottled at French Lick Springs.

Pluto Water is safe because it is a water. It is effective because it is a water.

Pluto Water cleans your insides as gently and harmlessly and as thoroughly as you yourself clean your skin outside. You don't use explosive chemicals on your face. Don't try them on your stomach. Wash it with water—Pluto Water, that's the safe way.

Pluto Water is sold by druggists and prescribed by physicians. Today—try a bottle. Remember—it's a water.

Celebrating Our 35th Anniversary Party With You!

It seems only yesterday that we started in business. But the 35 milestones of our business life have passed speedily, and each and every one still linger in our memory. For 35 years we have been in one location on Olive street. We have seen other firms come and go. We are still here selling home furnishings. We have implicit faith in the thought that it is because we have given our customers a square deal and in return they have rewarded us with their patronage even unto this third generation. The idea of a Birthday Party—we are 35 now—well, we are going to have some birthday party in the form of an Anniversary celebration of a lifetime. WE WANT YOU TO BENEFIT BY OUR CELEBRATION. For months we have had our efficient buyers scour the furniture markets and we have brought together for this sale the greatest array of values ever presented. You will find bargains in every department all tagged in big letters calling your attention to the remarkable savings. We have made special low terms—and you will be surprised at what $1 CASH will do. ATTEND EARLY FOR CHOICE SELECTIONS.

DEAFNESS

Head Noises from Nasal Catarrh

25,000 Trial Treatments Free This Month

Dr. W. O. Coffee, practicing physician of Davenport, Iowa, one of the most widely known specialists in the middle west, has originated a treatment, which completely restored his hearing and ended his head noises from nasal catarrh.

He is so proud of this treatment and believes it should help others, as it has him, that he offers to send it absolutely free, for trial, to the readers of this paper, who are suffering with deafness, dullness of hearing and head noises from nasal catarrh.

He restored his own hearing and ended his head noises by this original treatment after he had suffered for years. Two operations, and other remedies were tried without avail before he finally originated this treatment that ended his suffering.

During the past three years he has prescribed for more than 200,000 people afflicted with deafness, dullness of hearing and head noises from nasal catarrh and with catarrh; he has, in his office, the records of literally hundreds who regained their hearing by his home treatment.

More than 90 per cent of deafness is due to nasal catarrh, either in the wet form or the dry, the doctor says, and he urges everyone who suffers in this way to take advantage of this limited free offer. Catarrh may cause indigestion, rheumatism, stomach ills and many other diseases.

Dr. Coffee wants every sufferer from deafness or head noises from nasal catarrh to write him this month; he wants everyone to test this treatment that has restored hearing to so many people.

And remember—these trial treatments are sent absolutely free. So write today—send at once, this notice may not appear again.

DR. W. O. COFFEE
NOTED DEAFNESS AND CATARRH SPECIALIST

Dr. Coffee's Wonderful Experience

Few specialists in the entire United States have had as wonderful experience as has Dr. Coffee, a nationally known figure in the treatment of deafness, head noises and nasal catarrh.

He has devoted over 45 years of his life to treating eye, ear, nose and throat diseases. By the use of his perfected home treatment, patients are now able to treat their deafness, head noises and nasal catarrh right in their own home. This has been the means of restoring hearing to thousands.

A great number of people state that they have been deaf or partially so for five, ten and even twenty years, yet their hearing has been restored by Dr. Coffee's famous home treatment. It has banished their deafness and head noises, they say.

And in addition to this enviable record, he has freed thousands of people from catarrh, with which they have been burdened.

He especially urges those sufferers who are troubled with a mild form of deafness or head noises from catarrh and who are hard of hearing in one ear and growing worse with every cold, to try this original treatment. They are as a rule, the doctor says, gradually losing their hearing and he believes his method will restore it.

He asks no money from you for this free trial treatment. He pays the postage—it arrives at your home prepaid, with directions as to how it should be used. Many people have written him that his free treatment alone has restored their hearing. It won't cost you a cent to try this treatment in your own case.

25,000 FREE TRIAL TREATMENTS This Month!

If You Are Afflicted With Deafness, Dullness of Hearing or Head Noises from Nasal Catarrh, Read What These People Say. Try This Free Trial Treatment and Convince Yourself That It Will Benefit Your Hearing and Relieve Those Distressing Head Noises or Nasal Catarrh.

GEORGE BISHOP

Restored Hearing in One Month

Mr. George Bishop of Sask. Canada, says, "I had been growing deaf for 12 years and had been to some of the best hospitals in all Canada and even submitted to operations without success. I spent hundreds of dollars but gradually grew worse. I became so bad that people had to talk directly into my ear, if I was to hear. By using Dr. Coffee's treatment, my hearing was restored in one month's time. I wish that every sufferer everywhere who is afflicted as I was would give this wonderful treatment a test. It is wonderful."

Hearing Restored at 86

"I had suffered with nasal catarrh for seven or eight years; I had terrible head noises, my hearing was bad. It was necessary for people to talk loud, otherwise I could not hear them. I used Dr. Coffee's home treatment for four months, and it restored my hearing to such an extent that I can now take a part in an ordinary conversation. The head noises are a thing of the past. I am 86 years old."

J. C. Patterson, Indiana.

Wonderfully Improved

"I received your treatment for catarrhal deafness and in just three days after I had used it, my hearing began to improve. And now I am wonderfully improved."

D. H. Carpenter, Alabama.

Cured Nasal Catarrh

"I was a victim of catarrh for ten years. I had doctored everywhere, but found no relief until I started Dr. Coffee's treatment. Prior to this, I had a constant discharge from my nose and head; I was rapidly becoming deaf. Now I can hear exceedingly well, my head has quit aching, and I feel like a new woman."

Mrs. C. Bloomfield, Alabama.

A Wonderful Treatment

"I want to tell you that yours was the most wonderful treatment I have ever used. I had a violent roaring in my head, and felt dizzy constantly. Now I feel much better, and my hearing is practically restored."

Mrs. Ethel Godboult, Florida.

Restored Hearing

"Your treatment has brought back my hearing. I can hear now as well as I ever did, and I want to thank you."

E. Micheaux, Texas.

Nothing Else Relieved Me

"Nearly four years ago, nasal catarrh caused me to lose my hearing; distressing head noises and intense pain followed. No treatment seemed to give me relief until I used Dr. Coffee's home treatments. In less than six months, the catarrh had disappeared, headaches left me, and my hearing was restored."

A. Glenn, Illinois.

Well in One Month

"I am feeling very much better—no more head noises, ringing or pounding in my ears. My hearing is as good as ever. Dr. Coffee's treatment relieved me in one month. Before this I had been treated by specialists for nearly six months with no benefit."

George Petersen, Washington.

Head Noises Gone

"I have been greatly helped by your treatments. I had been troubled for years with violent head noises and finally a friend advised me to try your method; he sent for the treatment himself. I noticed improvement at once, and now I am well as ever. I feel greatly indebted to you."

Mr. C. McGinnes, Pennsylvania.

Hears as Well as Ever

"I am now able to hear as well as I ever did. My head, throat, nose and ears are in good condition. One month's treatment did its work well. I am grateful to you, and you may use my name for reference."

Peter Moraz, Pennsylvania.

Hearing Restored as in Youth

"My hearing has been restored through the use of your treatments. I can hear as well as when I was a young girl."

Mrs. T. C. Gamberg, South Dakota.

MRS. MONA McBRIDE

Chronic and Acute Deafness Ends

Mrs. Mona McBride of Illinois says, "This is to certify that since having scarlet fever, when a little girl, I have been hard of hearing, and for the past four or five years I have been almost entirely deaf in one ear. A few months ago my left ear began to discharge. I found it to be abscessed and discharging a foul fluid. Nothing seemed to stop it and finally I tried Dr. Coffee's treatments. To my surprise and delight the hearing in the ear which was partially deaf for nearly 20 years has returned and the abscess has healed. Now I can hear a conversation six feet away. I didn't believe it possible and I certainly advise anyone suffering with deafness to try this treatment. I obtained relief in a short time."

Freed After 48 Years

"I had been gradually growing deaf for 48 years. I had not been able to hear over a telephone for 17 years. I had been to specialists in Berlin, Paris and London, and found no relief. Dr. Coffee's treatment restored my hearing so I could hear over a telephone in either ear, quite plainly. I no longer suffer with intense, head noises."

Mrs. M. Sherier, Missouri.

Political Education of Woodrow Wilson Began in Fight for Democracy at Princeton

Story of His Beginnings as National Figure Told by James Kerney, Life-long Friend.

CROSSED HORNS WITH GROVER CLEVELAND

Defeat in Graduate School Contest Smoothed Way for Him to Enter Race for Governorship.

JAMES KERNEY, editor of the Trenton (N. J.) Times, writes of Woodrow Wilson with whom he had a close-up view during beginnings of the President in New Jersey politics—a phase of career which has been neglected in most of the Wilson biographies. He served Wilson in a confidential way during the war, and was almost on intimate terms with him to the end.

His book, "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson," is in the fascinating narrative style of the trained reporter. It teems with incidents revealing new and significant facts on the President's character and career. Competent critics have declared that when history passes its final judgment on Wilson its appraisal will be more nearly that of James Kerney than of any other biographer who has yet appeared. Certain installments of Mr. Kerney's book, of which the following is the first, will be published in the Post-Dispatch on seven successive Sundays.

By James Kerney.

Editor and Publisher the Trenton Times.

(Copyright, 1926.)

CONVENTIONAL prelude to Woodrow Wilson's romantic political leap requires some mention of the conditions of the time responsible for the amazing event.

Born in Virginia in 1856, Wilson lived virtually all of his boyhood in Georgia and the Carolinas until he entered Princeton as a student in 1875. He had never attended public school, but had gone to private schools, including a few months at Davidson College in North Carolina. His greatest teacher was his father, the Rev. Joseph Ruggles Wilson, one of life's kindly philosophers, remarkable for affection, and more remarkable, perhaps, for the fact that, although his salary as a Presbyterian minister was never in excess of $3,000 a year, he managed to keep his son Woodrow Wilson at various educational institutions until he was 23 years of age.

Following his graduation at Princeton in 1879 and his graduation in '82 at the University of Virginia in 1882 Woodrow—named Thomas when he became a lawyer—had tried practicing in Atlanta. But a few months later he was at Johns Hopkins resuming his studies. While there he married the charming Ellen Axson of Georgia who played such a great part in his life. For brief periods he taught at Johns Hopkins, Bryn Mawr and Wesleyan, and in 1890 returned to Princeton as professor of jurisprudence. There he served for 20 years as professor and president of the university.

Wilson's Happiest Days Were as a Student.

His student days at Princeton were among the happiest of Wilson's life judging from the joyous spirit with which he frequently looked back to them. Nomadic wanderings, as a son of the Manse, had not brought much in the way of earlier home-town leanings. He was rather a Southerner at large.

While he was always thoroughly Southern in sentiment, and naturally adhered to the Calvinistic theology he had learned in the old-old way, it was the undergraduate association formed at Princeton that furnished his lifelong and enduring associations. Most of Princeton's most famous men were in that group. After he had grown bitter in his hatreds of his later-day university administration his face would light up with joy recalling the old times. The singing or singing of "Old Nassau" never stirred him deeply. Nothing else gives he quite that thrill," he declared one evening in the White House.

While yet an undergraduate he wrote remarkable essays on government and had them published in the Nassau Literary Magazine."

Began as an Editor, Won His First Patron.

In his senior year he succeeded in selling his first article—"Cabinet Government in the United States" to the "International Magazine," which Henry Cabot Lodge was then editor.

The fact was frequently recalled, in the rancorous closing days of Wilson's life, that Lodge had been the first editor to accept Wilson's material.

Wilson did not have much success in writing for pay in the early days, but he kept hammering away at it and contributed his work to the various college publications. The proceeds of an article in the "Overland Monthly" helped to furnish his room at Johns Hopkins, although it was not until after he was 30 that his writings began to appear with much regularity in the paying magazines.

Throughout his life he frequently voiced his affectionate regard for Dr. John Witherspoon, the "great Scotchman" who had first presided over Princeton and had been a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In the course of time he acquired a plot in the lovely Princeton cemetery, called by enthusiastic admirers the Westminster of America, so that he might share the final resting place of Witherspoon and other noted men who had presided over the college, and some of whom had been conspicuous in American history. The vacant lot, immediately adjoining the plot of Dr. Henry Van Dyke, stands today in the name of Woodrow Wilson.

Princeton Prosperous Under His Regime.

Never was there such prosperity at Princeton as while Wilson was its president—the first layman to occupy that place. Not only did Wilson bring great fame by his influence and character as an educator, but along with the prestige of his name and the wisdom of his counsel and direction there had come great material success.

Carnegie Lake was given by the Pittsburg iron master. Moses Taylor Pyne, multi-millionaire New York financier, of the class of 1877, who in 1902 effaced himself from the picture and had been helpful in making Wilson president of the university, grew more generous in his benefactions. Altogether everything was moving up. Millions of dollars were gathered and the number of instructors doubled.

Wilson, Pyne and Grover Cleveland, who had came to Princeton after his retirement from the White House in 1897, were all attracting nation-wide notice for the institution. The trio appeared invincible. Wilson was most enthusiastic about the situation.

"It has been one of the best circumstances of my life that I have been associated with you in matters both large and small," Wilson said to Cleveland in a 1906 birthday letter. "It has given me strength and knowledge of affairs."

All those who had been privileged to be near Cleveland at Princeton entertained, according to Wilson, the strongest admiration and affection for the former President.

But the pleasant and peaceful days came to an end. Wilson felt the urge of the crusader and, having bulked so large in the development of a great university, he set out to reform it. He was not made for long honeymoons.

WOODROW WILSON, from a photograph taken about the time he became president of Princeton University. Inset above, Grover Cleveland, from a photograph taken in 1904, three years before his break with Wilson over the Graduate School.

Coincident with the shower of riches there had come an enormous increase in the fashionable eating clubs of the University. There was a whole street of them, some in palatial houses. Membership was confined to the two upper classes. At that there was accommodation for only about 350, less than half of the upper-classmen.

His Campaign Against Exclusive Student Clubs.

Bicker week, when the annual campaigns were on for election to these exclusive clubs, developed tactics and methods that would make any hard-boiled political manipulator envious. Through their freshman and sophomore years men anxiously schemed to "make" a club, and when the junior year arrived more than half the students found themselves shut out. Many left college. Wilson, in the spring of 1907 decided to put his extinguisher upon the system.

"The side-show is swallowing the main circus," was the manner in which he described the part played by the clubs in student life.

He determined to wipe out the clubs and set up the quadrangle or preceptorial system of Oxford. Sure of his power he began a fight which was unrelenting as his subsequent battle with the Senate over the League of Nations. On it he broke with both Pyne and Cleveland. Out of it came much of the fighting fame that stood him in such good stead in the years to come.

It was one of the two biggest fights of his life and it produced wounds that never healed. Wilson did not relish the final knock-out. And he never forgave the former friends whom he had to relegate to the enemy class.

Many who opposed the drastic Wilson methods felt that he was going about the right thing in a wrong way. They, too, wanted the club evils remedied. But they were not ready for the sudden and savage uprooting planned by Wilson.

Presidential Boom Began in 1906.

Some were unkind enough to charge that the movement was merely a part of the Wilson political drama. George Harvey had opened up his big guns on behalf of the Wilson presidential boom in March, 1906. From that time on he had kept up a constant barrage of propaganda until the Wilson nomination for Governor in 1910.

Wilson was human like the rest of mankind. Whatever his promptings may have been, he turned the university contest into a great battle for democracy. It was the first time that he displayed these marvelous fighting abilities so conspicuous in his political career.

It was no pink-tea performance. Wilson never admitted to himself for a moment that he might be wrong. He had the true fighter's cold and merciless fury. His arrogant methods alienated many who might have otherwise helped with the reform. But it was both his weakness and his strength to take a worthy cause and divert it into a personal quarrel.

Cleveland was one of those with whom Wilson fought and afterward kept eternally at grips. Yet Cleveland's own son, Richard Cleveland, refused to accept membership in one of the clubs and led a movement that resulted in keeping other desirable students out. Henry Van Dyke, whom Wilson later made Minister to the Netherlands, told an alumni gathering in Philadelphia that the quadrangle plan had been found impracticable by Cleveland before his death.

Why Cleveland Opposed Wilson's View.

It was not the abolition of the clubs that Grover Cleveland had opposed, but the diverting of great sums of money from the projected graduate college for the inauguration of the preceptorial or quadrangle system to replace the clubs.

Cleveland felt that Wilson had solemnly pledged financial support to Dean Andrew F. West of the graduate college, who had been largely instrumental in influencing Cleveland to make Princeton his home. As the intimate associate and neighbor of West, Cleveland became chairman of the special committee named by the Board of Trustees of the university for the graduate college.

West had in 1906 refused the presidency of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in order to remain at Princeton and push the Graduate College. Wilson had encouraged West to remain and had contributed a preface to the West prospectus for the graduate college, unqualifiedly indorsing the project.

When subsequently pressed for an explanation of his change of front Wilson stated that the preface had been written before he had read the book itself. It was later publicly asserted, and not denied, that West had a copy of the proofs of the book itself annotated in Wilson's handwriting.

The call to Massachusetts was at double the salary that Princeton was paying West, but the Princeton trustees begged him to reject it and promised West in writing that they would immediately begin helping him to institute the graduate college.

Within eight months Wilson had brought forward his preceptorial plan, which would cost $100,000 a year to maintain and must indefinitely sidetrack the Graduate College. That was the shift that provoked the disagreement with West and ruptured so many ties.

Permanent Break With Dr. J. G. Hibben.

For more than a dozen years Wilson had been on terms of closest personal friendship and intimacy with Dr. John Grier Hibben. But when Hibben failed to line up on the Wilson side of the University was when the two parted company.

Wilson not only never forgave Hibben but refused to attend his inauguration as president of the university as his own successor, and expressed his enormous contempt of him frequently and forcibly.

Cleveland at the meeting of the board of trustees in June, 1907, attacked Wilson with great vigor and later wrote letters to friends, including one to Dr. Van Dyke, that caused much subsequent uneasiness among Wilson's political friends.

"That all sounds very pretty but just what does it mean?" was the curt manner in which Cleveland disposed of one of Wilson's elaborate visions of a greater democracy at Princeton.

Grover Cleveland came to regard Wilson as a man with an ungovernable temper and not always too nice about facts.

Cleveland felt and said that Wilson would probably go very far in politics, once he determined to enter that field, but when he had finished there would be little left of the Democratic party.

Pyne likewise definitely broke his lifelong friendship, with Wilson over the Graduate School controversy.

William Cooper Procter had offered a gift of $500,000 for the Graduate College and supplemental gifts of approximately $400,000 more had been conditionally tendered by some alumni.

The big fight was over the location of the Graduate College, Wilson insisted that it should be a part of the university itself, while the West contingent favored the present location. The upshot of the row was that Princeton divided into rival camps.

Wilson professed to see in the new college the possibility of a seat of special privilege, from which poor students would be barred. Proctor threatened to withdraw his offer. Pyne, as chairman of the Trustee Committee on the Graduate School, issued a public statement that Proctor had made every concession to Wilson save "that the building should be placed where they would have room to expand and where the studious life of the college should not be subjected to undergraduate distraction."

While the battle was still raging Isaac C. Wyman, a wealthy alumnus, died, leaving a great fortune as supplemental to the Proctor gift for the building of the Graduate College located in accordance with the West plan.

Wilson realized that he could not hold out against that.

His fight, which had developed into a personal war between himself and West, was lost. The Graduate College could no longer be blocked.

The Wyman gift came at the commencement of 1910. It was a thunderbolt to Wilson.

But it was music to the ears of George Harvey who had first seriously proposed to Senator James Smith Jr. at a conference in Delmonico's in the preceding January that Wilson should be nominated for Governor in New Jersey in the fall.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

DARSTDALE AREA NOW 270 ACRES

Visitors to St. Louis this week who look outside the ball-park and parade-route circuit for concrete evidences of the city's growth and outreach, will find a ride out Olive street road most profitable. There, a short distance beyond the city's present limits, but within the zone of its future enlargement, they will see the residence, commercial and industrial suburb of Darstdale.

This subdivision, or group of subdivisions, was promoted by the Joseph Darst Realty Co., and now has a total area of 270 acres. The tract is along both sides of Olive street road, and on the Walton and Woodson roads.

Beyond the Terminal belt line and separated by that line from the residential portion, is the industrial subdivision of the Darst Co.

In the residential district, carpenters and bricklayers are busy, with more than 40 houses completed or in course of active construction. The prices of these homes will range from $6500 to $12,000. Lots are being sold daily, the 600-mark having been passed some time ago. In the three residential sections, known as Darstdale Nos. 1, 2 and 3, there are 1500 lots.

The frontage on the north and south sides of Olive street road is adapted for business buildings and apartments, and construction there has been of that character, several store buildings having been erected. Graders, in the last few weeks, have worked on a contract for the removal of 140,000 square yards of dirt, preparatory to construction of streets and sidewalks, and the laying of water pipes, gas pipes, electric conduits and sewer mains.

BUS SERVICE TO CONNECT AFFTON WITH CHEROKEE CARS

Thirty minute bus service on the Gravois road between Affton and the end of the Cherokee street car line will be instituted today by the Hewitt Bus Co. The demand for this service has been created by the rapid growth of this section of South St. Louis, where two developments are under way.

David P. Leahy and Wayne J. Stedelin are developing Gravois-Weber Homesites, consisting of two tracts of land on both sides of Gravois road at the intersection of Weber road, and the A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. is developing a tract immediately west of the Leahy development and known as Gravois Terrace.

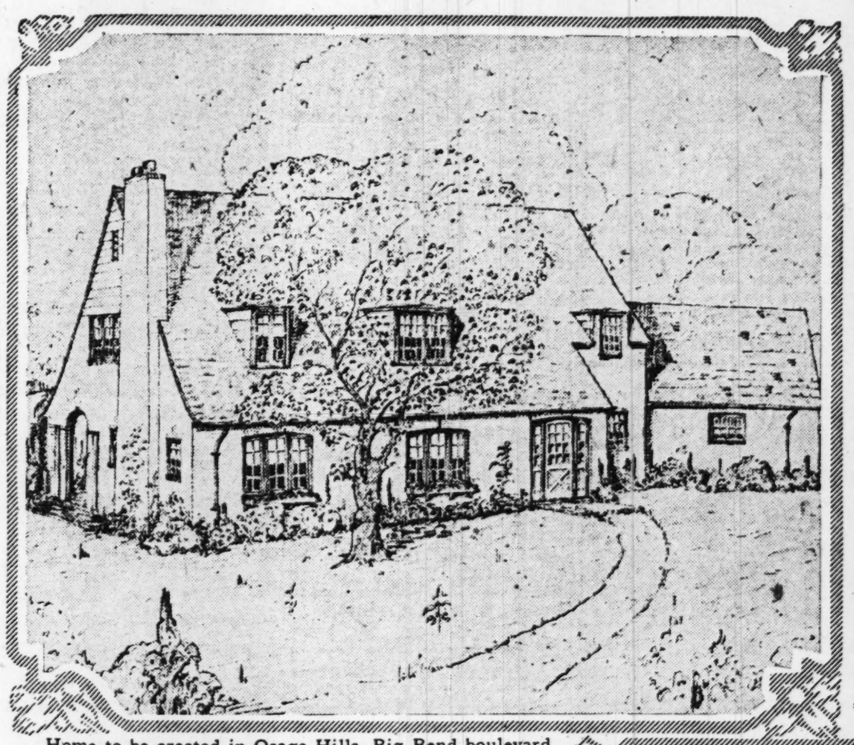
The business center of Gravois road gradually is being pushed out until it almost has reached the village of Affton.

MARTIN AND BREITT CLOSE SEVERAL STORE LEASES

Martin & Breitt report having negotiated a long term lease to Miller Brothers Hat Co., Inc., for the store at 1122 Washington avenue. This store is 25 by 150 feet and will be used entirely for the sale of men's and boys' hats and caps. The property is owned by Harry F. Knight. Martin & Breitt represented both parties.

The same concern reports having leased the store at 617 Locust street to the Eureka Vacuum Cleaning Co. It is the intention of the vacuum concern to make extensive alterations to the store. The property is owned by the Kingston Investment Co. The firm also closed the lease on store at 1120-26 Washington avenue to Maurice and Herman Goldman, who will use the entire store for the sale of cloaks, suits and dresses. The property is owned by Harry F. Knight.

Character of Construction in City and Suburbs



Home to be erected in Osage Hills, Big Bend boulevard and Meramec River, for Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Palmer.—Beverley T. Nelson, architect.

Senate and Congress apartments, now receiving their final touches and which were constructed by Sam Koplar at a cost of $3,500,000.

Duplex home in Davis place, containing 16 rooms, four baths and garage for four machines; purchased by Marie Ames.

El Tovar apartments at the northeast corner of Tower Grove and Cleveland avenues, purchased by a client of the Rhodes Realty Co., through the Park Savings & Trust Co.

WORK IS UNDER WAY ON $1,000,000 ELECTRIC PLANT

New Structure of Moloney Co. Will Have More Floor Space Than Three Factories Now Used.

Construction is in advanced stage on the new $1,000,000 building of the Moloney Electric Co., on Kingshighway, in the northwest industrial district.

The site comprises 12 acres with a frontage of 400 feet on Kingshighway and a depth of 1200 feet, extending to the right of way of the West Belt Terminal line.

Grading operations have been completed and three spur tracks have been installed.

The Widmer Engineering Co. has been selected as industrial engineers and architects to supervise the construction.

The new building will be U-shaped, having a head house, which has a frontage of 340 feet along Kingshighway Northwest. The office section will be three stories high, with the balance two stories with basement. The east wing will be 600 feet by 100 feet. This will permit the manufacture of transformers of the largest capacity and highest voltage. The plant will be equipped with several heavy cranes.

The west wing will be 750 feet by 100. Between the wings will be the substation and power plant.

Plans have been prepared for an auxiliary building 300 by 100 feet, and it is expected that the contractor will be authorized to proceed with this building before the main building is completed.

The head house section of the building will be of reinforced concrete construction for the first floor, with structural steel above. The rest of the factory portion of the building will be of structural steel framing, with composition roofing and large areas of steel sash to windows. The contract calls for the completion not later than Nov. 19.

The Moloney Electric Co. now manufactures transformers in three plants in this city. These plants will be abandoned after the new plant on Kingshighway is completed. The new plant will have 50 per cent more floor space than the three factories now use. The floor space will be approximately 250,000 square feet. The land which they have on Kingshighway Northwest is sufficient for buildings with a floor space exceeding 1,000,000 square feet.

HARRIS-POLK HAT CO. LEASES BUILDING

Will Occupy 3 Floors of 8-Story Structure at 1221-25 Washington.

The Harris-Polk Hat Co., of which J. W. Harris is president, has leased the eight-story building at 1221-23-25 Washington avenue, which the company will occupy as soon as alterations have been completed. It will retain the fourth, fifth and seventh floors at 1227-29-31-33 Washington avenue, each of these three floors comprising approximately one-half block.

The Harris-Polk Hat Co. has acquired an interest in the National Hatters, Inc., manufacturers of hat bodies, at Danbury, Conn. Harris and Julius W. Polk, vice president of Harris-Polk Hat Co., are directors in the new concern, and Polk is vice president.

The Harris-Polk Hat Co. was organized in 1903.

JULIUS S. FEYDT CO. TO OPEN NEW OFFICE

Announcement is made that Julius S. Feydt Jr., a former vice president of the Real Estate Exchange, will open a new office at the corner of Grand boulevard and Miami street. The company will be incorporated under the name of Julius S. Feydt Jr. Realty Co. and conduct a general real estate, loan and insurance business.

The company has been appointed rental agent for the Grand View Arcade Building, a fire-proof structure with 10 stores fronting Grand boulevard, with an arcade into the Melba Theater. It has 14 shops on the second floor and 35 offices on the third floor.

The corner store will be occupied by the realty company, and fixtures will be of solid walnut, the walls and ceiling will be decorated in parchment and brown trimming with glazed finish and the cashiers' cages are brushed brass. The entire fitting equipment will be of walnut. The personnel of the new company includes Julius S. Feydt Jr., Percy Neslage, Theodore Horman, Cornelius Bundschuh, Harry Kuehn and Louis Kohlbry.

ISRAEL BUYS SITE OF FIRST HOTEL PROJECT

New Hostelry Planned at 15th With Widening of Market Street.

A building comprising a 100-room hotel and 15 stores at the southwest corner of Fifteenth and Market streets has been purchased by David D. Israel. Negotiations were handled by the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co.

The site has a frontage on Market street of 200 feet, with a depth on Fifteenth street of 125 feet. Israel started in the hotel business 18 years ago on this corner. The building, which has been reconstructed, is under lease. Rentals aggregate more than $20,000.

Construction of a new and modern hotel building is planned with the widening of Market street, which will take 40 feet off this property. The site is opposite that selected on Market street for the new city auditorium.

Karl a Korngold, attorney, represented the Rozenkranz Realty Co., owner of the leasehold which is for 99 years, and Bernard Greensfelder represented the owner of the fee.

NEW RICHMOND HEIGHTS HOUSES OF NOVEL DESIGN

The Vance Construction Co. is erecting 14 bungalows at the northeast corner of Bellevue and Dale avenues in Parkland place, Richmond Heights, which are arousing more than ordinary interest.

These bungalows are unique, with the first comprising massive living room, dining room, breakfast room, kitchen and two large bed rooms, with tile bath. The buildings are what is described as airplane type, a new California conception which is an innovation here. The floor plan has been attractively designed and the specifications are replete with novel features. While the first floor is a complete home within itself, there is a second floor with two large bed rooms and shower bath, well arranged.

Construction will be with matt brick exterior, with Johns-Manville asbestos roof, hardwood floors, brick mantels, built-in bookcases, kitchen cabinet, ironing board and electric refrigerators. Each bungalow will be of different design.

MULLIN-WALTERS CO. HANDLES SEVERAL DOWNTOWN LEASES

The Mullin-Walters Realty Co. reports an active week in down town commercial leases.

The Barbers' Supply Co. leased a seven-story building and the Ill-Mo Supply Co. has leased the seven-story-and-basement building at 705-7 Lucas avenue for a long term of years. It will use the building as an office, sampleroom, stockroom and storeroom. The company formerly was located in the two-story-and-basement building at 708 North Seventh street. Officers of the firm are Oscar B. Leve, president, and Jesse C. Crabel, secretary. The lease was made for Frank Lind, owner of the property.

Samuel Bricker has leased the two-story-and-basement building formerly occupied by the Ill-Mo Supply Co. for the unexpired term of their leases. The first floor will be occupied by a first-class shoe repairing shop as soon as improvements have been made. The lease was made for the Ill-Mo Supply Co.

Leo Epstein Co. has leased the third floor in the building at 1517 Washington avenue as an office, stockroom, salesroom and sample room. The lease was made for the Acme Realty Co.

Lang-Kohn Manufacturing Co. has leased the eastern half of the seventh floor of the eight-story building at 808 Washington avenue for office, factory and sample room. The lease was made for the Lindell Realty Co.

J. D. Carson Co. has leased the three-story-and-basement building at 822 North Eighth street for a furniture and salesroom. The lease was made for Julius Gates.

STANLEY EPSTEIN MOVES TO WESTERN UNION BUILDING

Stanley Epstein has moved to his new quarters on the ground floor of the new Western Union Building at the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets. The new quarters comprise a series of suites which have been equipped and are finished on a scale rivaling those of the most pretentious in realty and financial circles. In addition to doing a general real estate and financial business, Epstein conducts the operations of several big subsidiary corporations.

He takes possession of his new quarters enthusiastic as to the outlook in the local real estate field, which he declares is reassuring for a movement on a broad and comprehensive scale.

MANAGER ENGAGED FOR SENATE-CONGRESS

He Is E. J. Caldwell, Formerly of Edgewater Beach of Chicago.

E. J. Caldwell, widely known hotel man, has been engaged for the management of the new Senate and Congress apartments, at Union boulevard and Pershing avenue.

Caldwell formerly was with the Edgewater Beach and Shoreland hotels in Chicago. Prior to his hotel connections, covering a long period of years, he was secretary to the late J. T. Harahan, president of the Illinois Central Railroad. This post frequently brought him to St. Louis, where he made many acquaintances.

Caldwell and his family will have a suite at the apartments, in order that he may be in touch with every detail of the operation of the new structures.

The apartments, which were erected by Sam Koplar, at a cost of $3,000,000, rival the most pretentious in the country.

$90 a Year!

A client of ours desires locations for a street booth for advertising demonstrations and sales purposes. The article to be featured is a clean, package product of universal demand. The booth is attractively designed and is 3½ feet wide by 6 feet deep.
Locations are wanted in all parts of St. Louis, and also in the suburban districts. The size of the booth makes any of the following locations possible:

AREA-WAY BETWEEN BUILDINGS.
VACANT LOTS.
UNUSED DRIVEWAYS.
STORE ARCADES OR DOORWAYS.
WINDOWS, DOORWAYS, OR PARTS OF VACANT STORES.
SHEDS OR BARNS.
OR ANY SIMILAR LOCATIONS.

Locations will be leased for a yearly rent of not to exceed $90. Here is an opportunity to capitalize on any idle space of yours!
REALTORS!! Here's a chance to liven up the location of a vacant store, and at the same time collect rent on the space a booth occupies! Our proposition is unusual. In case property is rented before the expiration of the booth's lease, it may be terminated by one week's notice. However, this may not be done within the first month.
Apply IN WRITING direct to us.

The Best Apartment Property in St. Louis

BLUE RIDGE TERRACE

The Last Ground Left in West St. Louis for High-Class Apartments

OPENING SALE NOW ON

BLUE RIDGE TERRACE is ideally situated on high ground commanding a beautiful landscape view, consisting of the west half of Moorlands Addition, located between Wydown Boulevard and Clayton Road, a short distance west of Skinker Road or Pennsylvania Av. (now Big Bend Bl.). ONLY TWENTY MINUTES FROM THE TWELFTH STREET PLAZA, on the new boulevard system.

The demand for apartments will enable you to build and make extra large returns on your investment, as this class of property is selling in the city for two to five times the price per front foot than the opening price we are selling for. You see, at once, your opportunity.

SOFT COAL CANNOT BE USED, WHICH ASSURES LESS SMOKELESS DIRT.

SCHOOLS and CHURCHES of all denominations are in this locality.

AGENTS at our tract offices on Wydown Boulevard and Clayton Road will give you full particulars. Clayton street car line on Wydown Boulevard passes this property. DRIVE direct to BLUE RIDGE TERRACE through Forest Park, Wydown Boulevard or Clayton Road.

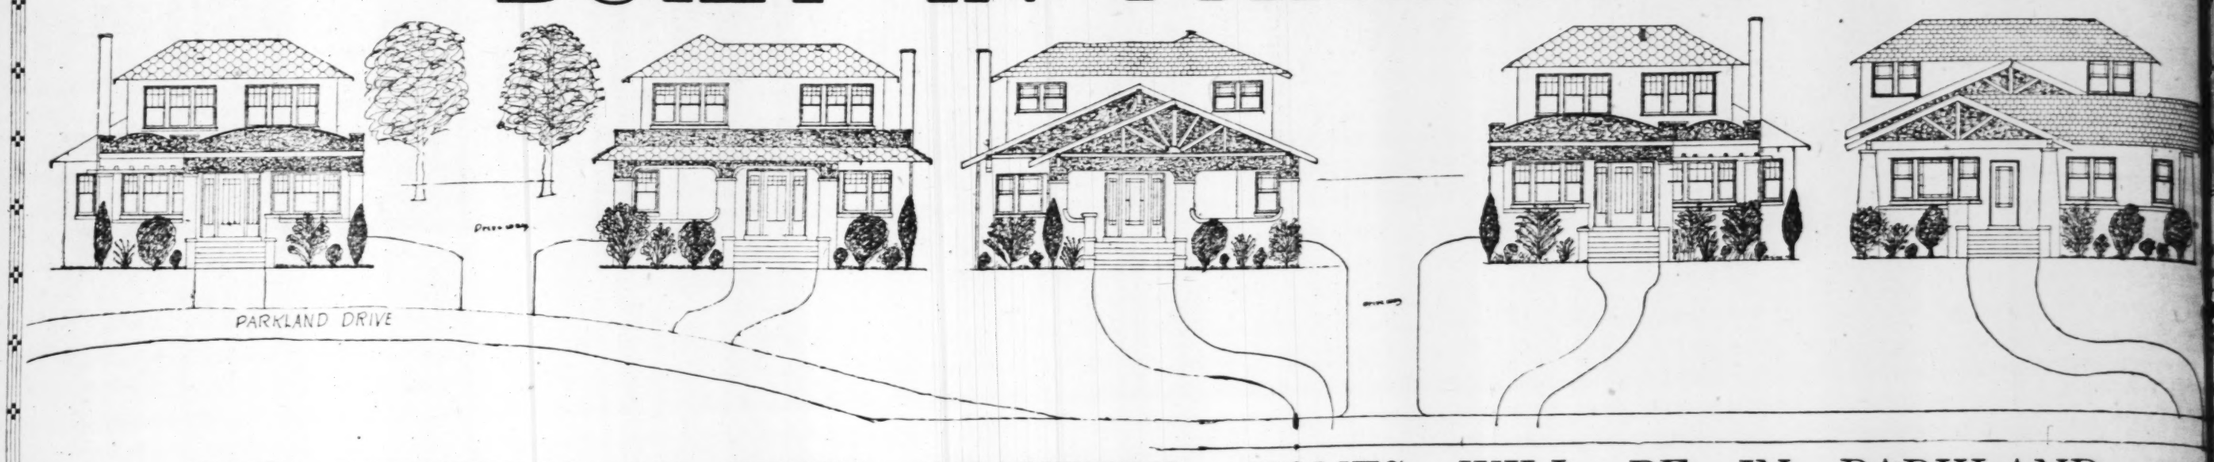
SOME OF THE HOMES TO BE BUILT IN PARKLAND



JUST FOURTEEN OF THESE BEAUTIFUL HOMES WILL BE IN PARKLAND

Never before have you had a chance to own a home in a more exclusive arrangement than Parkland offers, and any family with moderate means can afford one of these, a reasonable payment down and twelve to fifteen years to pay the balance.

Be it remembered that this is the last and best of the Bellevue square lands, and that it may well be considered a privilege to acquire a home in such environments. Individual, Exclusive Homes such as these would seem to make living conditions as nearly perfect as is humanly possible.

In these homes will be the most modern conveniences the same that you will find in homes that sell for double the price of these. On the Boulevard, but just far enough from it to insure absolute privacy at all times.

Make your selection now and we will have it ready for your family to have a grand Christmas. These homes run in size from six to eight rooms, and all have two baths.

We also have some of these homes finished and ready to move into, and open for inspection in another location just one block from Parkland, you might be interested in one of them. Salesman on ground all day Sunday, Bellevue and Dale Avs.

URGES $453,000 BUDGET TO EXTEND UTILITIES' AUDITS

State Public Service Commission Plans Physical Appraisals of 11 Major Industrial Companies.

WILL BE USED IN RATE HEARINGS

Survey of St. Louis Exchange of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Likely to Be First.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 2.—Increased appropriations will be sought by the State Public Service Commission from the next legislature, which convenes in January, to enable the commission to make audits of the accounts or physical appraisals of the property of some of the larger public utilities operating in Missouri, to determine the reasonableness of their existing rates.

The budget estimate prepared by the commission for 1927 and 1928 calls for $453,300, as compared to $301,200 allowed the commission for its work in 1925 and 1926.

This report indicates that a full appraisal of the property of the St. Louis Exchange of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. may be ordered by the commission next year. The report lists the Exchange as one of the 11 major public utilities for which full valuations probably will be required in determining rate matters during the next biennial period.

Cost $150,000 to $200,000.

The commission last year denied the demand of the City of St. Louis for a full valuation of the Exchange when the company was before the commission with an application for an increase in business telephone rates in St. Louis. The appraisal was refused on the ground the commission's appropriations were inadequate. At that time the cost of a full appraisal of the St. Louis Exchange was estimated at $150,000 to $200,000.

In that case the commission granted an increase in business telephone rates in St. Louis for a test period of 13 months. A report of an audit by the commission's accountants of the results of the increase was completed yesterday and now is in the hands of the commission, but has not been made public. It is understood this report will bear out the company's contention that the increased rate on business telephones should remain in effect.

Other Probable Appraisals.

The list of probable public utility appraisals within the next biennial period also includes the St. Francois County properties of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of St. Louis. The Union Electric acquired these properties about two years ago, in what is known as the lead belt district.

Among other companies in the list of proposed full valuations are the Kansas City Railways, Kansas City Telephone Co., Missouri Power & Light Co., which operates utilities in numerous Missouri towns. The Springfield Traction Co., Springfield Gas & Electric Co., Missouri Public Utilities Co., and others. The report lists nine other companies for book audits, instead of full appraisals.

Rate investigations by the commission were limited in 1925 and 1926 because of reduced appropriations. Whenever possible, as in the Bell rate case, the commission depended upon book audits instead of full valuations in determining rate matters. Valuations of the Lacleded Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, pending since 1919 in various phases, was completed three months ago but the commission has not handed down its decision.

Limitations of Commission.

The 1925 legislature allowed the commission $71,200 for salaries for 1925 and 1926, $150,000 for valuation, auditing and other rate investigations work, to be paid out of earnings and $100,000, from general revenue, for general support. Governor Baker held up $20,000 of the latter appropriation.

Under the State law the expense of a property appraisal or audit by the commission must be repaid to the State treasury by the utility company whose property is appraised. The legislature gives the commission a fixed appropriation to pay its engineers and accountants in valuation work, to be drawn from these valuation earnings. This appropriation, in reality, limits the amounts of work that can be done.

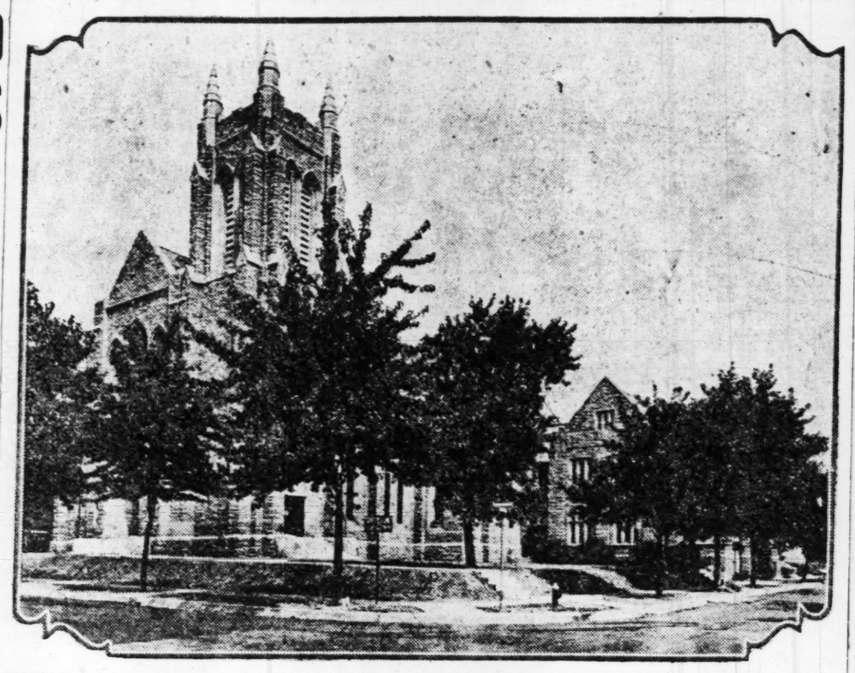
While the commission apparently has an unlimited earning power, in actual practice it cannot earn, nor spend, more than the amount of the appropriation. When the appropriation is exhausted the commission can do no more valuation work, because it would have no money to pay salaries of its engineer to do the work.

U. R. Audit Delayed Months.

This prevents expansion of the commission's force to handle large cases. When the United Railways Co. last June filed its application for an increase in fare from seven to eight cents the commission ordered an audit of the company's expenses and revenues, but the work was not started until this week, because the commission's force of four accountants was tied up on the Bell Telephone rate audit.

The United Railways urged that an extra force of accountants be placed on its audit last June as the company eventually would pay for the work. The commission could not do this, as the appropriation was running low, and no more salaries could be paid, and all work would have to stop, when the appropriation was exhausted, regardless of the willingness of the company to pay for the work.

New Auditorium of University Methodist Church



THE formal opening of the new auditorium of University Methodist Church, Washington and Trinity, University City, will be held today.

The new building is Gothic in architecture and built of Bedford stone. The seating capacity is 750. The pipe organ was built originally for the St. Louis production of the "Miracle," and is one of the finest church organs in St. Louis.

The auditorium cost approximately $150,000. This building, with the other buildings of the church, gives University Methodist Church a total property value of approximately $250,000.

Bishop W. F. McMurry will preach at 11 a. m., and Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor of St. John's Methodist Church, will preach at 8 p. m.

University Methodist Church was organized in 1909 in the home of the late Frederick Vierling. The chapel building was completed in November, 1915.

REFORM OF BUILDING INDUSTRY PLANNED

Contractors Meet in Kansas City Tomorrow to Study Means of Reducing Costs.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 2.—Convinced that public and private construction costs are unnecessarily high, building experts from all parts of the country will meet here Oct. 4-7, in an effort to remedy existing conditions.

The conference will be under the auspices of the Associated General Contractors of America.

The following factors are to be considered by the conference: incomplete or muddled contracts; misuse of lien laws; promiscuous issuance of surety bonds; construction of public works under the "day labor" system; seasonal operations, and wasteful financing.

The conference follows one held several months ago at Washington, when plans for reforming the construction industry were laid.

"Mainly the effort will be to rid the construction industry of irresponsible and incapable bidders, whose activities result in direct losses through defaults and also produce indirect losses through the upsetting of the industry," the official announcement of the meeting states. "Means by which the building public can be assured of the greatest possible return for each dollar expended for construction will be given definite outlines.

"There can be no doubt that construction prices are feeling the result of absence of organized supervision of the construction industry. Through use of standard contracts, close accounting and precise rating of contractors according to skill, integrity and responsibility, many handicaps to economical construction will be removed."

8 ON BUS HIT BY TRAIN DEAD

Four Others Injured as Result of Crash in California.

DIXON, Cal., Oct. 2.—The toll of deaths as a result of the collision of an automobile stage and the Southern Pacific's Overland Limited here yesterday, was increased to eight today when two more persons died.

The dead are: B. R. Harr, Berkeley, Cal., bus driver; F. Larch, Chicago; Lee J. Snavely, Woodland, Cal.; P. Martin, Placerville, Cal.; M. J. Broderick, Clear Lake, Cal.; Joseph Long, Rutherford, Cal.; Ralph Phillips, Meadow Valley, Cal.; George F. Atkins, Castle Gate, Utah. The injured are: Richard St. Claire, Woodland, Cal.; Mrs. William T. Wagele, Taft, Cal.; James A. Speer, Watsonville, Cal.; David Kennedy, San Francisco. The bus was en route from San Francisco to Portland, Ore., and crashed through a crossing gate owing to a wet pavement.

G. O. P. LEADER DISCUSSES LOTTO RAIDS WITH GOVERNOR

Oliver T. Remmers Denies He Sought Changes in City Police Board.

Oliver T. Remmers, chairman of the Republican City Committee, said yesterday that he had discussed informally the raiding of lotto games by St. Louis police with Gov. Baker at Hotel Chase, Thursday night, from the standpoint of how the public looks on this activity. He said he thought the people had no objection to the stopping of commercialized games.

A report that he and other political leaders were trying to get the Governor to make changes in the St. Louis Police Board, for fear the raids might affect the Republican party's chances at the election, was denied by Remmers. He said his meeting with the Governor was for the purpose of talking about co-ordinating activities of the executive and of the State and City Republican committees in the campaign.

LLOYD GEORGE IN FEAR OF AFTERMATH OF COAL STRIKE

Predicts Ragged and Unsatisfactory End of "Most Devastating Industrial Clash in Experience."

By the Associated Press.

LEWES, England, Oct. 2.—Former Premier Lloyd George, addressing an open-air meeting on the coal strike situation today, said the country was just coming to the end of the most devastating industrial struggle in its experience.

"I am afraid," he added, "the symptoms are that the end will be a ragged and unsatisfactory one—so unsatisfactory that, so far from being an end, it will be the beginning of perhaps worse things."

ROAD HOUSE OWNER AND 4 CUSTOMERS HELD IN DRY RAID

C. C. Connors Arrested in County; One Officer Catches Bottle of Whisky on the Fly.

Charles C. Connors, proprietor of the Maples, a Manchester road resort, a half mile west of North and South road, and four customers of the place were arrested at 10:15 o'clock last night in a raid by five county deputy sheriffs.

Five quarts of whisky were seized. One of the guests threw a bottle of whisky from his automobile, but a deputy sheriff caught it on the fly and he was arrested. The prisoners were released on bond, pending applications for State dry law warrants.

INDIANA SENATORS FAVOR GRAFT INQUIRY

Control of State G. O. P. by Klansman Alleged by Editors' Committee.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 2.—First steps toward a legislative investigation of the political control alleged to have been exercised over the Republican party in Indiana by D. C. Stephenson, former "grand dragon" of the Ku Klux Klan, were taken here late today when evidence, gathered by an investigating committee of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, was submitted to a group of State Senators.

Six Senators, three Republicans and three Democrats, heard Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes, Ind., publisher and chairman of the committee, recount the evidence.

The Senators drafted the following statement:

"The meeting of Senators invited to hear the evidence submitted by the investigating committee of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association was astounded at the revelations of Chairman Adams. The action of D. C. Stephenson and his intimate associates, including alleged fraud, corruption and bribery were laid before the committee in affidavits and documentary evidence. It involves many officials.

"Inasmuch as it affects so many officials, directly and indirectly it was the opinion of the Senators who were invited only informally that the evidence should receive legislative investigation."

No formal action was taken today toward pressing the legislative investigation but the Senators indicated their willingness to meet again at the call of Adams.

Evidence presented to the Senators included alleged contracts for appointment of State officials and the exchange of money for political advantage.

Senator Joseph Cravens of Madison, minority leader in the upper house at the last session of the Legislature, expressed astonishment at the evidence.

Stephenson now is in the State penitentiary at Michigan City, Ind., serving a life sentence for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis.

Stephenson Proposed Expose.

Among the papers submitted was a letter by Stephenson to Court Asher, a former "grand kleagle" in the klan, and Stephenson's chief aid during his reign as "grand dragon." Stephenson's letter says:

"My dear friend and partner: I have thought over your plans and I really believe you know what you are about. You are one I am confident will not double-cross me. Remember one thing, I am putting my life and liberty in your hands. I am watched most carefully all the time. Not allowed to see anyone or sign papers. I will give you the contracts you ask for and much more in addition. * * * Send me a lawyer that I can depend on. Arrange for me to be interviewed by the newspapers. I will give a complete story of my control of Indiana.

"This may mean my return to Indiana in a box, as I have been warned that would happen.

"I will give you a complete statement of the framed indictment against the highway commission.

Details Alleged Corruption.

"I will tell all of the corrupt methods used in the legislature and who received the money.

"I could tell who furnised $120,000 in the campaign of 1924 and what interest was to be protected in holding up the public by high rates for certain public utilities.

"I could explain why the Indiana State Republican Committee never received a fat purse, which was sent from Chicago to the state committee, but landed in the pockets of an individual * * * how favorable political decisions were induced from certain courts; where and how $200,000 was used in the campaign of 1924 to buy votes and to stuff ballot boxes with spurious votes."

REALTY ORGANIZATION TO INCREASE CAPITAL

Real Estate, Building and Loan Association Members Vote $500,000 Addition.

At the recent annual meeting of the stockholders of the Real Estate Building and Loan Association, members voted unanimously to increase the authorized capital stock from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. This increase was declared necessary because of the rapid growth of the association and the large amount of stock being subscribed for, according to Hugh H. Stewart, secretary.

The association is one of the oldest in the city, having been in business more than 37 years.

Besides increasing the authorized capital stock, the members re-elected the following officers and directors: George F. Ernst, president; Joseph T. Ayres, vice president; Hugh H. Stewart, secretary; Thomas J. Wallace, treasurer; directors, William S. Mitchell, F. N. Chapman, L. J. Chenot, Wentworth Terry, William J. Wotawa, Charles J. Gallagher, James G. Espy, Louis R. Masek and David F. Barrett.

The association has obtained ground-floor quarters at 311 North Eleventh street, in the new Loudermann Building.

EARLY CLOSE OF HOME SALE AT GANNONDALE IS INDICATED

Arthur W. Ellis, manager of the St. Louis branch of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Inc., after several years spent in acquainting himself with realty values in St. Louis, has selected Gannondale as the spot for his home and a Majestic home for his dwelling.

Recent sales in Gannondale indicate the early completion of the selling of this community of 50 homes created by the Majestic Homes Corporation.

Doubt often has been expressed that the transition of a farm homestead owned by the Gannon family to a community having all public improvements completed could be accomplished in three years' time. But now doubt has vanished, according to the Majestic Homes Corporation.

MINORITY STOCKHOLDERS OF COTTON BELT IN PROTEST

Attempt to Show Adverse Influence on Road if Katy Is Permitted to Gain Control.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex. Oct. 2.—Attempts were made today by minority stockholders of the Cotton Belt railroad to show adverse influence on the Cotton Belt in the event the Katy should be allowed to acquire its control, in the State Commerce Commission hearing on the proposed Loree merger of Southwestern lines.

T. A. Hamilton, formerly president of the International Great Northern railroad and now special counsel for the Cotton Belt minority stockholders, cross examined C. Haile, chief traffic officer of the Katy, for more than two hours. He sought to show that competition between North Texas and St. Louis—between the Katy and Cotton Belt—would be lessened by the proposed merger and that the Cotton Belt logically fits better into the Southern Pacific system than into the Katy.

Haile, who is a vice president of the Katy, said that one system rates would be available to patrons of both lines and that new competitive routes over both lines would be opened to a great number of Southwestern communities. As for the Cotton Belt, he said the alignment would effect a Kansas City entrance for Cotton Belt traffic over Katy rails.

Haile said passenger competition between north Texas and St. Louis would not be affected, since the Cotton Belt does not go after this passenger business.

HAWES' RECORD PRAISED BY REED IN SPEECH AT SEDALIA

Centralization of Power at Washington Also Condemned by Senator at Democratic Rally

By the Associated Press.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 2.—At a Democratic rally here tonight in a theater so crowded many had to stand, Senator Reed praised the Democratic party and its platform.

"The Democratic party of Missouri," he said, "presents to the voters of Missouri a sound platform and a magnificent ticket." Then the speaker referred to the legislative term of Congressman Harry B. Hawes, seeking a seat in the United States Senate, as a man of distinct public achievement, who had six years of legislative experience back of him, and a fine professional career.

Senator Reed told of the work of Congressman Hawes in formulating and pushing through the general assembly of Missouri the first effective good roads law of the state. He added that Hawes believes in restoring to the people of the states the rights which justly belong to the state, and stands opposed to the surrender of the sovereignty of the United States.

Reed condemned centralization of power in Washington and voiced strong opposition to centralization of power in a tribunal at Geneva.

"What we need in the United States," he said, "is an American Congress, and an American President who reflects the patriotism and love of country which burns in the hearts of the great people of the land."

Col. Roosevelt Ill in Hospital.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 2.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt failed to arrive here today to take part in the opening Republican rally in the campaign in Vanderburgh county. He was scheduled to make the principal address. Roosevelt was taken ill and is in a hospital at Cincinnati, Philip Gold, chairman of the meeting, told the audience. Many persons left the hall when the announcement was made.

MRS. M'PHERSON WILL HOLD SERVICES AS USUAL TODAY

Evangelist's Mother Denounces State's Witness Who Told of Hotel Visit.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist of Angelus Temple, charged with perpetrating a hoax in her alleged kidnaping last May, today went about preparing for Sunday services in her usual manner.

Meantime, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist and a co-defendant in the alleged plot, emphatically denounced Thomas Scott Melville, a member of Angelus Temple, who yesterday testified he saw Mrs. McPherson enter the hotel where he is doorman on the morning of the day she disappeared. Melville is a "tool in a gigantic plot to wreck Angelus Temple," Mrs. Kennedy said.

Hearings will be resumed in Municipal Court Monday.

MIAMI MAYOR DENIES BLOCKING RELIEF AID

Says No Attempt Was Made to Minimize Loss or Exaggerate Casualties.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 2.—Reiterating portions of his statement of Sept. 24, in which he said Florida's "need was acute and genuine," Mayor E. C. Romfh of Miami has denied accusations of John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, that Florida officials and real estate dealers have hindered Red Cross relief work by minimizing reports of damage and suffering.

Frank B. Shutts, publisher of the Miami Herald, and chairman of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Relief Committee, co-ordinated with Mayor Romfh in the denial.

Controversy over the situation at this time when "we need money, promptly and amply," was deplored by Shutts.

"There is no hope of our receiving one-fourth as much money as can be properly used here for the relief of a worthy and sorely-stricken people," Shutts said. "There is no place or time here for accusations, bickerings, fault finding.

"There are thousands who have lost all, and who are destitute and who must have financial aid in order to get back upon a self-supporting basis. These are smaller home owners, smaller tradesmen, workers and people of very moderate means. It is to aid these people that the citizens of the Relief Committee and the Red Cross issue their appeal for assistance.

"But there are other thousands who have the finances or can make satisfactory arrangements to restore their own homes and replace effects destroyed. These well-to-do can take care of themselves."

Mayor Romfh declared there was no attempt to minimize the effects of the storm, but that he was careful not to exaggerate the loss of life and damage to property.

LLOYD GEORGE 'DISCOVERER,' WELL KNOWN REFORMER, DEAD

Induced Former British Premier to Make First Public Speech 40 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

PWILLHELI, Wales, Oct. 2.—The man who "discovered" former Premier David Lloyd George is dead.

He was H. J. Williams, a well known temperance reformer and superintendent of the United Kingdom Alliance, Britain's foremost temperance organization. Williams was the first Welsh Grand Chief Templar 40 years ago, and it was then that he induced Lloyd George to make his first public speech at Machynlleth, Wales.

MAN IS SOUGHT FOR AN ALLEGED $18,000 SWINDLE

"Leo Albert" of St. Louis Accused at Danville, Ill., of Robbing Two Prospects in "Grape" Deal.

"NARCOTIC RING," IS POLICE THEORY

One of Complainants Arrested in Belief That He and Fugitive Hatched Plot Against the Other.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 2.—Joe Lepri, fruit dealer of Clinton, Ind., lost $12,000 here Friday. Police are holding Peter Pacini of Indianapolis, while they search for "Leo Albert" of St. Louis, who, it is charged, took possession of Lepri's grip at Hotel Lincoln here Friday afternoon and then disappeared.

Pacini insists that he is Lepri's friend and that $6000 was stolen from his room by the elusive Albert. But police are suspicious and are holding him on the theory he was Albert's confederate and that narcotics, not grapes, were being sold.

Pacini declared he met Albert in St. Louis. Albert, he said, had grapes to sell at $750 a carload, and Lepri was in the market. He took Albert to this city and began negotiations between Albert and Lepri. While the three were dining, Pacini related, Albert excused himself and disappeared. Lepri's room had been ransacked, his grip was gone, with $12,000, and Pacini declared $6000 was stolen from his room, too.

Pacini has served time in Atlanta penitentiary. The grip, which Albert left in the place of Lepri's, contained a compound which proved, on analysis, to contain narcotics.

Lepri steadfastly asserts that he came to Danville at Pacini's suggestion to purchase grapes.

LORD WILLINGDON SWORN IN AS GOVERNOR OF CANADA

Ceremony at Quebec Attended by Political Leaders, High Court Judges and Churchmen.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Que., Oct. 2.—Lord Willingdon was sworn in as Governor-General of Canada today in the legislative council chamber of the Provincial Parliament Buildings, succeeding Baron Byng of Vimy.

Premier King and his Cabinet were present as were also Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, members of the Provincial Government and Judiciary and representatives of the church.

After Viscount Willingdon had taken his place on the speaker's dais, A. F. Sladen, secretary of the Governor-General in Ottawa, read the royal proclamation. Justice Mignault of the Supreme Court of Canada read the oath of allegiance as Governor-General and Commander in Chief of the Canadian forces and also the oath as keeper of the Great Seal. The Bible was handed to Lord Willingdon, who thereupon took the oath and signed the book in which the Governor-Generals since confederation have registered their allegiance.

The Great Seal of Canada was then presented to the new Governor-General by Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State. The final act was the reading of the proclamation of appointment to which was then affixed the Governor-General's seal. The ceremony was concluded with "God Save the King."

FORMER ST. LOUIS WOMAN LEAPS 22 FLOORS TO DEATH

Mrs. May H. Moore, 35, Jumps From Window of Chicago Hotel.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Mrs. May H. Moore, 35 years old, of Keokuk, Ia., ended her life here early today by leaping from the Twenty-second floor of the Hotel Sherman. The body landed on the roof of the court, three stories above ground level.

In her room was found a letter to the management of the hotel where she registered Friday, enclosing $10 for room rent and another letter addressed to her husband. Reached by telephone at Keokuk, Moore, a hotel man, said his wife had come here on a shopping trip and he could think of no motive for the act. He arranged to come to Chicago at once.

Mrs. Moore had lived most of her life in St. Louis, it was said at Keokuk. She had suffered from nervous ailments.

A note directed that her husband, L. V. E. Moore of Keokuk, be notified.

SUBSISTENCE COSTS FORCE ARMY TO STOP RECRUITING

Estimates Were Based on 33 Cents Per Man Per Day While Actual Figure Is 36.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The high cost of living was the principal factor in compelling the War Department to order recruiting stopped for the remainder of the present fiscal year to effect reduction of 8000 men in the average strength of the Army. Estimates of the cost of subsistence for this year were based on a ration figure of 33 cets per man per day, while the actual cost has reached 36 cents.

At the time subsistence estimates were prepared last year War Department and budget officials anticipated a decline in prices which would make the average cost per man over the entire fiscal year 33 cents a day.

The only escape from the deficit was to reduce the average strength of the Army of 118,750 to 110,900 for the remainder of the year.

TRUCK FIRM WANTS RECEIVER REMOVED

Power Truck and Tractor Co. Wishes to Renew Operations, Petition States.

A petition was filed yesterday in Circuit Judge Falkenhainer's court by the Power Truck & Tractor Co., 8500 Goodfellow avenue, asking the Judge to set aside an order he made on Jan. 26 last, appointing a receiver for the company. The petition also asks that the Court rescind an order made Aug. 30, directing the receiver, Fred Schmoll, to sell the assets of the corporation and distribute any surplus above debts among more than 3000 stockholders, who are said to have invested a total of $600,000 in the enterprise.

The receivership was granted on the petition of several stockholders, who objected to the conduct of the business under the management of P. G. Craven, president, and other officers. The petition just filed asserts that the Court was without jurisdiction to take that action, because immediately before the receiver was appointed an amended petition was filed, in which all charges against the defendants were withdrawn except the allegation that the officers had unsuccessfully managed the company's affairs and that the company had been operated at a loss for a year.

Permanent Receivership Not Sought.

By stipulation, the defendants consented to the appointment of a receiver if the amended petition was accepted, but it now is contended that, by the stipulation, all jurisdictional allegations which would give the Court power to appoint a receiver, were eliminated. It is further asserted that defendants did not contemplate the appointment of a permanent receivership to wind up the business, although that was the order made.

The company, in its present action, further sets forth that the Court was misled by an audit which showed the company's net worth to be $31,800 when, in truth, its assets were worth many times that amount. According to the petition, the audit "belittled" the assets and failed to show approximately $149,000 representing an unpaid balance on stock subscriptions, which, it is claimed, can be collected.

In addition, the audit, the company points out, shows $18,227 in accounts as "bad," whereas a "goodly part" of this could be collected if a determined effort was made.

Another claim is made that the corporation has notes receivable aggregating $75,000 secured by mortgages on trucks sold to various persons, although the audit showed only $58,197.

The company also differs with the $54,000 appraisal made by the audit as to value of land owned by the corporation. The actual worth is in excess of $100,000, the petition states.

Attorneys for the company claim they have assurance that a $50,000 loan can be arranged to renew operations. Efforts have been made in the past to terminate the receivership, and Judge Falkenhainer promised to set aside his order if a certain amount was raised to pay creditors. However, the time limit for the raising of such fund expired without the amount being subscribed and as a result, the Court ordered the receiver to liquidate the business.

TRIAL OF WIDOW IS SET FOR NOV. 3

Two Brothers to Face Jury With Her—Their Cousin Will Be Called Up Separately Later.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The New York Times will say tomorrow that it has learned authoritatively that Henry L. Bickman, former New Jersey State trooper, has made an affidavit stating that he was paid $2500 by Henry de la Bruyere Carpender to drop his investigation of the Hall-Mills murder case early in 1923. Dickman is said to have made a lone investigation of the murder mystery during the fall of 1922 and the spring of 1923. He has told present investigators that he thought that he had solved the mystery.

The affidavit, the Times will say, was obtained by the State from Dickman at Governor's Island last Wednesday after he had been brought from California, where he was an army prisoner.

Felix Martini, private detective, charged with being an accessory after the fact in the Hall-Mills murder, was arrested in Brooklyn tonight. He was chief of the detectives employed by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall four years ago when the bodies of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer, were found slain.

By the Associated Press.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 2.—At a hearing marked by the defeat of defense lawyers on five important points, Supreme Court Justice Parker today set Nov. 3 for the trial of three persons charged with the murders of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills at New Brunswick, N. J., four years ago. The three are Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens. The widow's cousin, Henry de la Bruyere Carpender, will be tried separately later.

Justice Parker also refused to allow defense counsel to examine the grand jury minutes taken in 1922 after the first investigation of the murders. He also denied an application for permission to view Dr. Hall's calling card which, according to the State, was marked by the finger prints of Willie Stevens and another person, not yet named. The card was found at the feet of the slain rector.

Soon after the proceedings opened today a warrant was issued for the arrest of Felix di Martini of New York, a private detective employed by Mrs. Hall early in the investigation. Di Martini is accused as accessory after the fact.

MILLS ATTACKS TAMMANY IN ACCEPTING G. O. P. NOMINATION

Says Campaign's Big Issue Is: Will Group Make Unshakable Mystery of New York?

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Ogden L. Mills, Republican candidate for Governor, in his acceptance address tonight, declared the outstanding issue in the coming campaign is "Whether Tammany Hall, under the cloak of Gov. Smith's personal popularity, is to make an unshakable mystery of the State of New York."

This issue, he said, has reduced to secondary importance "the question of whether Smith is to be Governor or Mills."

Touching upon prohibition, Mills said, "as the chief executive officer of the State, I shall do all in my power to see that the laws of the land are enforced," but asserted "on the question of policy I propose to be guided by the instructions of the people given in the referendum vote," on the question to be submitted at the fall election.

"To do otherwise," he said, "would be to challenge the right of the people to govern themselves and the negation of popular government."

WHITE HOUSE SOCIAL SEASON

Will Start Dec. 2 With Dinner to Members of Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The White House winter social season will open Dec. 2 with a dinner for members of the Cabinet. Under the program announced today the reception for foreign diplomats will be held Dec. 9 with a dinner in their honor Dec. 16.

The New Year's reception at the White House will be open to the public as usual, while the reception to the judiciary will be held Jan. 13. The dinner for members of the Supreme Court Jan. 20 will be followed by the congressional reception Feb. 3; a dinner in honor of the Speaker of the House Feb. 10, and the Army and Navy reception Feb. 1.

LIFE IS SHORT AT THE BEST

Popular St. Louis Vocalist Says She Believes in Making the Most of It.

"Life is short at the best we can do, and I for one believe in getting the most we can out of it. If one is miserable all the time from some common ailment, they can't possibly hope to get any pleasure and enjoyment out of life. For five or six years I was among those who did not enjoy life, but now, thanks to your Herb Juice, I can take my place with the rest of the folks who are getting the most out of it," said Mrs. May O'Brien, well-known vocalist, 4208 Warne av., St. Louis, Mo., in a recent conversation with the special representative at Walgreen's Drug Store.

MRS. MAY O'BRIEN

"For five or six years," continued Mrs. O'Brien, "I have doctored a very stubborn case of constipation with very little or no results you might say. In addition to constipation I was suffering, I think, from almost every ailment arising from a constipated condition. It seemed that my food absolutely refused to digest properly. I, too, like many other people was in search of something that would give me relief. In looking over the paper one day I noticed the statement of a personal friend. He advised others to try Herb Juice, and I took that advice for which I am very thankful today. I am also grateful to that friend. I am rid of constipation and needless to say that the other ailments have also disappeared. I have a wonderful appetite and eat anything without any bad after effect. I have gained 20 pounds in weight and have plenty of energy and do not tire out after a day's work as I did before. Herb Juice has certainly made a great improvement in my health and I am glad to recommend it to others who are suffering as I did."

MRS. MAY O'BRIEN,

This great laxative medicine is an Herb Extract preparation known as Herb Juice and is out-selling any medicine where it has been introduced. Many are calling daily to see the special demonstration at Walgreen Drug Company, 514 Washington avenue, giving statements for publication, praising this great remedy that their friends may be induced to try it.

RULES REVISED TO ENABLE U. S. TO JOIN WORLD COURT

Changes in 31 of 75 Articles Said to Pave Way for Possible American Entry.

SECRET SESSIONS ON ADVISORY OPINIONS

Judges Allowed to Attach Dissenting Views to Majority Decision in Such Cases.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—The Permanent Court of International Justice has laid the groundwork for the possible entrance of the United States making changes in its rules necessary if the American reservations are to be accepted. The World Peace Foundation, American agent of the court's publications, has received a copy of its rules showing that 31 of the 75 articles which went into effect March 24, 1922, have been revised. The most of the changes are in procedure but several of them relate to advisory opinions and have a bearing on the fifth American reservation which states that the United States shall not be bound by advisory opinions rendered without its consent.

Under the new rules, the court will sit in private to deliberate on advisory opinions. The article provides that the minutes relating to any advisory opinion "shall record only the subject of the debt, the votes taken, with the names of those voting for and against a motion, and statements expressly made for insertion in the minutes."

The World Peace Foundation says an obvious purpose of this provision is to prevent a misuse of temporary points of view held by the Judges.

At one time there was some doubt as to whether proceedings before the court were to be printed but this has been cleared up by a paragraph added to article 55 providing for the publishing of the minutes of public sittings.

The new rules also provide a method of procedure to be followed by any state desiring to intervene in the rendering of an advisory opinion.

Under the new rules dissenting Judges may attach to an advisory opinion of the court either an exposition of their individual opinion or a statement of their dissent.

Other changes are on minor points of procedure and were induced by experience in the 20 matters which have come before the court since its first rules were drawn.

A. F. OF L. PLANS TAX TO FINANCE NEW LABOR FIGHT

Wants Union Resources Behind Struggle to Crush Working Groups Fostered by Employers.

CONVENTION TO GET PROPOSAL TOMORROW

Campaign Calls for First Move in Textile Strike—Dissension Forecast Over Foreign Issues.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 2.—Ranking officers and members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor determined today upon a move to end the New Jersey textile strike at once on the basis of recognition of organizations affiliated with the Federation as sole spokesmen for the workers, or to align the full strength of the federated unions behind the strikers.

The approved plan of campaign for settlement of the 10-month-old dispute will be submitted to the forty-sixth annual convention of the Federation, which opens here Monday, with a recommendation that the executive council be empowered to levy a special assessment on all affiliated unions for a general fund to support a national offensive against labor organizations formed under employer supervision or control. The plan contemplates centering the campaign at the outset in the New Jersey textile industry.

Could Raise $200,000 Yearly.

Under the assessment plan a maximum of $200,000 might be raised in any fiscal year without amendment of the constitution and by-laws of the Federation.

Widely divergent views find expression in a number of resolutions touching the question of relations between the American Federation and the national workers' organization of Mexico. Pointing out that organized labor in Mexico has been firm in its support of the Government in the dispute over religious regulations, one group suggests or demands severance of relations between the Mexican and American Federations. Other resolutions urge the viewpoint that the question of national religious policy of a neighboring state is beyond the province of convention.

Ready to Join International Body.

Preliminary conventions of the four major departments of the Federation were concluded today. The executive board of the Metal Trades Department had before it tonight the departmental convention vote approving with reservations, affiliation of the entire body of American metal workers with the International Metal Workers' Federation. A European organization embracing a membership in all the important industrial nations of the continent and British Isles.

After two years' negotiation officers of the department convention received a special delegation of the international organization this week, after which the assembly voted unanimously to affiliate, on condition that the executive board negotiates a satisfactory agreement on per capita tax to be paid by American organizations, and further, that the Metal Trades Unions of Russia shall never be permitted to enjoy membership in the organization until they shall have formally and unequivocally renounced the communist principles of the Third Internationale.

FRESH PLEA FOR REPEAL OF MEXICAN RELIGIOUS LAWS

Clergy's Rejected Petition Now Signed by 1,000,000 Laymen to Be Offered Again.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 2.—The Catholic Episcopate announced today that Mexican Catholics would persevere, although without much hope of success, in efforts to obtain repeal or modification by Congress of the religious clauses of the Constitution.

Another petition bearing the signatures of more than 1,000,000 Catholic laymen in all parts of the Republic will be presented to Congress Monday. The Episcopate describes this petition as the reply of Catholics to the Chamber's recent rejection of the Episcopate's petition on the ground that its signers, archbishops and bishops, by reason of their clerical office had lost their rights of citizenship and therefore the right of petition.

The Episcopate denies that clerics have lost their citizenship but says it offers this petition signed by laymen as evidence of its desire for a peaceful settlement. It asks that a plebiscite be held in which all Mexicans would be permitted to vote freely on the religious question.

The new petition is precisely the same as the former one.

Catholic leaders say there would have been thousands of additional signers but for the fact that a large part of the populace cannot read or write.

SHIPPING COMMISSIONERS TO HOLD HEARING HERE OCT. 25

Seek Data for Congressional Report on Needs of Merchant Marine.

Commissioners Teller and Myers of the United States Shipping Board will conduct a hearing in St. Louis Oct. 25 to obtain material for a report to Congress on the needs of the American Merchant Marine. Similar hearings will be conducted in other large cities throughout the country this month.

"The shipping board wants to know what methods can be advocated for the purpose of enabling American flagships to compete with foreign flagships in commerce to and from the United States," it was announced in Washington yesterday. "Suggestions or data pertinent to the resolution by Congress, authorizing this inquiry, will be considered."

CASTORIA

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation	Wind Colic	To Sweeten Stomach
Flatulence	Diarrhea	Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

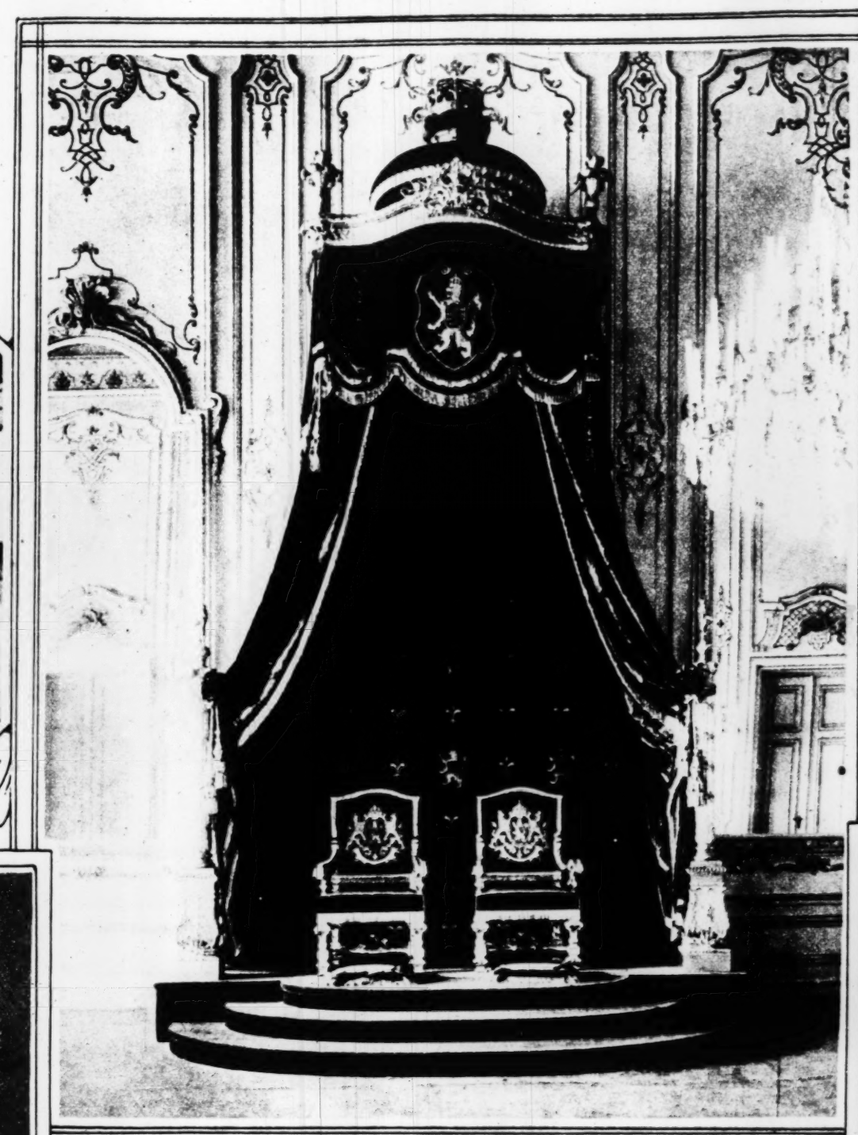
King Boris of Bulgaria Wants a Bride

Five Beautiful Princesses Have Spurned Him and His Throne and Now His Sixth Romance, Which Gave Promise of Fruition, Is Blasted By the Opposition of the Vatican.

The King Is a Lovely Fellow, but He Is Likely to Be Assassinated at Any Time—He Would Chuck it All for Love in a Cottage, but He Promised His Father That He Would Stick It Out.

King Boris receiving congratulations on one of his escapes from assassination.



Throne of Bulgaria, in the Parliament House, Sofia.

The King and General Volkoff, Minister of War, at a military review in Sofia.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS, France.

IF ONLY King Boris of Bulgaria hadn't promised his father that he would keep the throne! But he promised. And a King must keep his promise. So Boris is disconsolate. He is 32 years old and he wants to marry and settle down, but he has offered himself to six Princesses and they all have refused him. Really, he cannot blame them. What girl wants to marry a King who may be assassinated at any moment! So what is the young man to do?

King Boris knows what he would do if it wasn't for that promise to his father. He would abdicate. Then he would easily find a girl who would say yes and they would be happy in a cottage with a flower garden. As it is, he can see no prospect of happiness even for a little while, the little while that he may be permitted to live before an assassin gets him.

It has come to light that another romance, the sixth, has been blighted for the King, wherefore his lament over the promise to his father. Just when it seemed that happiness was to be his, with Princess Giovanna, lovely 18-year-old daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, as his bride, an insurmountable obstacle in the form of the Pope's opposition was interposed. The distracted monarch hardly knows where to turn next.

It cannot be said that he has not applied himself with zeal to the business of getting a wife. He was only 19 when he began, 13 years ago, his series of frustrated courtships. He first picked out Princess Elizabeth, daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania. She was 18, and the alliance seemed altogether suitable.

Old King Carol, her grand-uncle, favored the match, because he believed that it might heal the breach between the two countries. Boris courted her ardently for several years, but the Princess was in love with a young Rumanian cavalry Captain named Davilla, and she refused to consider a marriage with anyone else. In 1921 she was married with much pomp to King George of Greece, who was driven from the country by the militant republicans several years later. The King and Queen of Greece now live in England.

DURING the World War Boris wooed the rich and handsome Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, a sister-in-law of the Kaiser's fourth son. The betrothal was publicly announced and the two families commenced to make wedding preparations, when Princess Victoria suddenly changed her mind.

After the war Boris tried to court Princess Marie, the second daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, but King Alexander of Jugoslavia married her in 1922 and made her Queen of the most powerful kingdom that has ever existed in the Balkans.

In 1923 the lonely, young King, who was deeply depressed by the events in his country, tried to court Princess Yolanda, the oldest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel, but Count Calvi di Bergolo won her heart.

Stamboulisky, the Bulgarian dictator, also announced before he was overthrown and killed in June, 1923, that he was seeking a young, wealthy and beautiful American bride for the King, but nothing came of that.

Queen of Jugoslavia, formerly Princess Marie of Rumania.

In 1925 Boris tried to court Princess Ileana, the 16-year-old daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, but she was skeptical of the future of the Bulgarian monarchy and asked to be excused.

NOW comes the sixth fiasco, and it has left the young King greatly depressed, the more so because the situation was so full of promise, with the great Mussolini playing the role of matchmaker and everything. It was not that the scowling dictator was touched by the King's desolation and gave himself to the furtherance of romance for romance's sake. Such softness is not for the man of iron. But the marriage of a daughter of Emmanuel to the King of Bulgaria would help to strengthen Italian influence in the Balkans.

The country would not only become pro-Italian, but he, Mussolini, would always have an excuse to mix in Bulgaria-Jugoslav quarrels and to take the Bulgarian side against Jugoslavia. He would be in close touch with the Macedonian organization, which has its base in Bulgaria, and is a nasty thorn in Jugoslavia's side. Nothing could be finer than to put an Italian Queen on the Bulgarian throne. For such gain he could afford to dissemble and play the arts of the matchmaker.

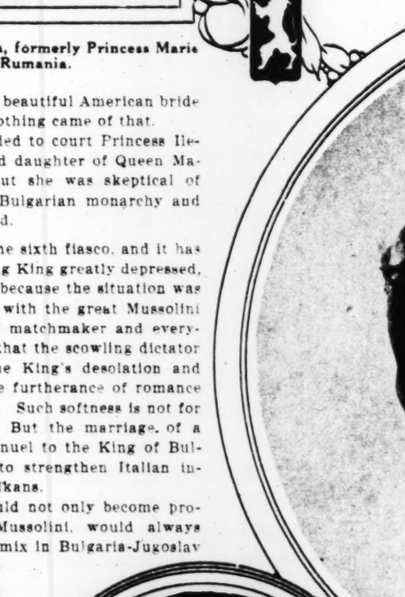
So, through diplomatic intermediaries, he whispered into the ear of King Boris: "I know where there is a fairyland and a beautiful young Princess." And to the charming Princess Giovanna: "I know a brave and handsome knight who is coming to the West to seek a Queen."

The Bulgarian Government looked with favor upon the project. From the Government's point of view it is highly desirable that Boris get himself a wife. An heir to the throne is needed. If he were to be killed, which is among the probabilities, there would be nobody to take his place. He has a brother, Cyril, but Cyril is not eligible because he is a Roman Catholic.

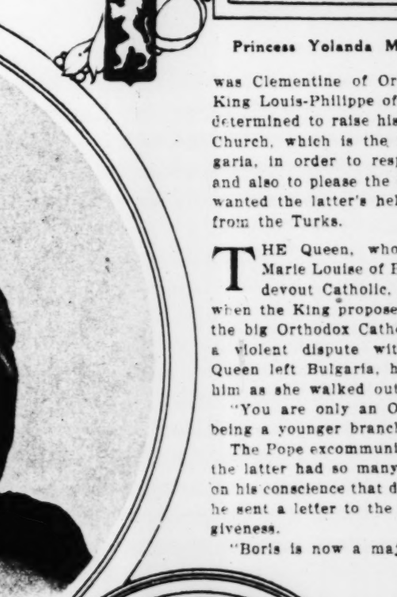
So it was readily arranged for the Princess to go on a visit to her uncle, the Duke of Aosta, and while she was there the young Bulgarian ruler motored down from Switzerland. He found the Princess quite as charming as the sly Mussolini had said she was, and the story is that he promptly fell head over heels in love with her and found her not unresponsive to his wooing. He only stayed a few days, but before he left there was such an understanding that the house of Savoy, moving with the discretion which obtains in such matters, took steps to ascertain whether such an alliance would be agreeable to the Vatican.

Pope Pius XI, remembering the unhappy religious dispute that raged over the young King several decades ago, expressed strong disapproval of it and declared that he could not tolerate any of Princess Giovanna's children being brought up in the Orthodox Church. Mussolini himself intervened at the Vatican, without any success, and the Italian royal family then decided that it could not sanction the marriage as long as the Vatican opposed it.

Princess Giovanna.



Princess Elizabeth of Rumania.



Princess Ileana of Rumania.

The thing that shipwrecked the King's romance with Princess Giovanna was a little clause in the Bulgarian Constitution which was imposed by the Russians when they freed Bulgaria from Turkish rule in 1877, and declares that the ruler of the country must baptise and rear his first son in the Eastern Orthodox Church.

When Boris was born, 32 years ago, there was a terrible scene in the royal castle at Sofia.

King Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg-and-Gotha was a Roman Catholic—his mother was Clementine of Orleans, a daughter of King Louis-Philippe of France—but he was determined to raise his son in the Orthodox Church, which is the state church of Bulgaria, in order to respect the Constitution and also to please the Czar of Russia, as he wanted the latter's help to take Macedonia from the Turks.

Princess Yolanda Margaret of Savoy.

THE Queen, who had been Princess Marie Louise of Bourbon Parme, was a devout Catholic, and she was shocked when the King proposed to baptise Boris in the big Orthodox Cathedral in Sofia. After a violent dispute with her husband the Queen left Bulgaria, hurling this insult at him as she walked out of the castle:

"You are only an Orleans," the Orleans being a younger branch of her own family.

The Pope excommunicated Ferdinand, but the latter had so many evil deeds weighing on his conscience that during the World War he sent a letter to the Vatican begging forgiveness.

"Boris is now a major," he said in substance. "I have asked him to return to the Roman Catholic Church and he has refused. It is not my fault that he remains schismatic, and in justice, Holy Father, you must lift the excommunication imposed on me. I baptised my second son in the Catholic Church, and that must certainly count in my favor."

Pope Benedict XV forgave Ferdinand, but the same old specter of a religious dispute is rising again to plague Boris in his turn.

At any other time the Pope of Rome might have relented, and his objection is the only obstacle to the marriage, but Pius XI believes that the collapse of the Orthodox organization in Russia is a heaven-sent opportunity to lead the countless millions of Slavs—the state churches of Russia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Jugoslavia and Greece, as well as millions of communicants in the Near East—back into the Church of Rome again, and with this program in mind, it might be a sign of weakness instead of strength to make a concession to the Orthodox Church of Bulgaria.

The whole question hinges on the religious upbringing of the first son of King Boris, as other children can be brought up in any faith the parents choose. The Vatican simply declares now that if Princess Giovanna marries King Boris and brings up a single child in the Orthodox faith she will be excommunicated.

IN SOME way Mussolini is still trying to arrange a compromise that will be acceptable to both sides, but the diplomatic colonies in Rome and Sofia are skeptical of his success. The Vatican so far has refused to make any concession, and the Bulgarian Government refuses to change the Constitution. And while the diplomats discuss, the two lovers languish.

The royal families of Europe consider Boris a charming young man, but they find his situation difficult and dangerous.

Firstly, the Bulgarian monarchy and Government is at the mercy of the Macedonian revolutionary organization.

Secondly, the country is at the mercy of Jugoslavia, Rumania and Greece.

Thirdly, the King has a dangerous enemy in the 200,000 communists there.

The communists tried to assassinate him on April 14, 1925, and two days later exploded a bomb in the Cathedral in an effort to kill him, and European royalty does not wish to marry its daughters to a young man flirting with death, even if he is charming.

In addition to these drawbacks, Boris has practically no political authority, although he is highly popular in the army and among the people.

He was only 24 years old when his father fled in October, 1918, after the Bulgarian military collapse, and the politicians treated him like a little boy. In fact, Stamboulisky, who was a kind of bolshevik dictator for more than three years, intended to make a coup d'etat in June, 1923, overthrow the monarchy and set himself up as President of a republic, and it was for this reason that the Macedonian organization overthrew and killed him.

IN SUGGESTING this marriage, Mussolini had copied a page in the life of the late King Edward VII, who made a great political master stroke by marrying his niece to King Ferdinand of Rumania. After old King Carol of Rumania died of a broken heart in September, 1918, because Rumania refused to side with Germany, the young English Queen became the most influential personage in the country and played an invaluable role in finally persuading the Rumanians to join the allies.

King Boris, who is a very lonely and forlorn figure, was crushed when the decision as to his marriage was conveyed to him through confidential diplomatic channels.

"I am desperately unhappy," he said with bitterness to intimate friends when he received the message from Rome.

"I dream of having a sweet little wife, a pretty cottage and a flower garden, but every girl I have ever courted has turned me down.

"And what girl wants to marry a King who may be assassinated at any moment?

"I would prefer to abdicate, but I promised my father to keep the throne, and I cannot break my word."

Turner, Who Had Been Abandoned to a Mexican Firing Squad When He Gave Hallen His Every Cent to Get Him Free, Caught Up With Him After Three Years, Having Learned His Record as a Swindler for Thirty. The Woman Who Freed Turner Once Defends Him Again for Murder.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

PORTLAND, Maine.

THE boy was in jail and he'd stay there. Only a miracle—or bribery—could get him out. And $1200 was a pitiful sum with which to try to buy Mexican justice. No, the boy would face a firing squad. But the $1200—

It was bait no swindler could refuse and the gray-haired man with the benign, round face, smooth shaven as a priest, and whose gray eyes beamed sympathy and kindness from behind his rimless glasses, whose manifest knowledge of the law and its quirks and turns but certified the character he gave himself, was, if the boy had known it, a swindler known throughout America and abroad. A lawyer disbarred for thievery, a wretch whose path was marked by betrayed and ruined women.

James Hallen, he called himself. If his conscience spoke that day he blarneyed it to silence. "The boy is as good as dead anyway. I might as well have this money as those greasers." So he pocketed the fee Ben Turner handed him and promised freedom to the boy as he took his last, red cent. "The gods are good," he probably said, and being by way of a poet with a classical education he likely named the gods. But James Hallen made a mistake that day in Mexico City back in 1921. Fate, not the gods, was giving him attention. Fate had begun to spin the web that, knotted about his life, would bring it to an end, and with it all his swindlings.

For Ben Turner did not face the firing squad. The miracle did happen. Two years passed. Turner was freed from Belem prison. He went to work to pay his debt to those who furnished money for his fight for freedom. More years passed. James Hallen, suave, equable, polished, a man of the world, was settled quietly at Portland, Maine, writing poetry as befits a scholar who has leisure, a gentleman-player now and then when the Little Theater gave an amateur performance, and dabbling here and there in real estate to augment an income which his neighbors felt assuredly must be ample. And, now and then unseen, he was making predatory excursions into the outer world to cash in on a forgery or a stolen automobile.

THE debts to his friends in Mexico were paid. Ben Turner's time was his own. The boy had not forgotten the days in Belem prison. Freed of debt, one thought, one purpose, filled his mind. He would collect now what was owed him.

Slowly he was spinning a web to enmesh James Hallen. For months a part of his savings had been paid to a detective agency. He wanted to know the facts about the man who had swindled him. For 30 years of Hallen's life he had a record. Faugh! The very reports must have caused his honest soul to retch. He started out to trace his man. To San Francisco. To New York. To Maine.

The net was tight. And Hallen wary. The swindler had no stomach to meet the victim he had robbed and left to die. In the end he could dodge no longer. Turner had invaded his very home.

"You made an appointment two days ago, damn you—"

The young man almost screamed in his excitement.

"Shall we step down the road?" Hallen interrupted, blandly. He glanced significantly at his wife. "This seems scarcely the place to discuss a personal affair."

He led the way from the door of his cozy cottage, but the walk was never taken. A dozen steps, and Turner's voice rose high again.

"When do I get my money, damn you?"

Only Ben Turner knows what Hallen answered. A moment later the younger man had pulled a pistol from his pocket and emptied it into the body of the man who robbed him. Hallen crumpled, doubled, fell, his face hidden in an outflung arm. It was as though, with a last gesture, he had tried to hide, in shame, from fate.

"To think I trusted him," Ben Turner cried, "as though he were my father."

And so Benjamin H. Turner, is shortly to face, for a second time in the 25 years of his turbulent life, a charge of murder. And, curiously, the woman who won for him his freedom when, three years ago, the miracle happened in Mexico City and Turner walked out of court adjudged an innocent man, though broken and penniless, today is fighting again to win for him his liberty.

She is Mrs. Constance Kilborn of Portland, Maine, unable now to walk, but her quick mind able to fight as she fought before, and now she has a double purpose in the fighting, for the youth whose life she saved three years ago killed the man who had swindled her, she says, out of $78,000.

AND Benjamin H. Turner will face the court in Maine as he faced the courts in Mexico three years ago, refusing to tell his history, his antecedents, who his relatives are, or who his friends.

"I won't tell who they are," he says. "They've grief enough."

A strange youth. Garbed from head to foot in black. More like a minister in his appearance than a two-time killer. The two years he spent in Belem prison have added 10 years in appearance to his age. He looks like a man of 35. The narrow, brooding, deep-set eyes do not fail to indicate the mind and its sullen purpose. His features are irregular, his nose tip-tilted. The loose, full lips denote the power of his emotion. His chin comes to a determined point. An honest face and set of purpose. One can imagine it five years ago—merry, frank and carefree.

Five years ago Benjamin H. Turner had gone down from San Francisco to the City of Mexico and was employed as an accountant by the American Smelting and Refining Company. Doubtless he was a good accountant. Probably there was purpose then to be read in a carefree face—the purpose to get ahead. He had saved some money. It doesn't appear that the romance of mining thrilled him. Yet the boy wanted action. He wanted to make that money make some more. He looked around for an opportunity for investment. By now he had well toward $5000 saved.

He was won by the lure of quick, sure profits. He answered an advertisement. Suave gentlemen visited him at his hotel. They were curiously different from his idea of Spanish-Americans. Quick, brisk, alert. No "manana," no "tomorrow," in their talk. The here and the now. Fortunes were to be made, and quickly. The war was over. Industry was reviving. Had the senor known about aniline? The war had shut off all aniline dyes from the world because Germany had the only formulae. The time was come when America would make its own aniline. Meantime, there were fortunes in it. Prices were fabulous. They knew of some to be bought—very cheap. They knew a purchaser. But they needed funds. If the senor could advance them, now, just 6000 pesos. A mere bagatelle for one so wealthy as the senor.

Perhaps he prided himself on business judgment. He was not one to be tricked. He wanted to know of the buyer. That is how he met Ramon Argüelles.

Senor Argüelles was wealthy. Interested in dyes. Profoundly interested. As a purchaser. If he could get plenty of aniline now. The conversation was most satisfactory. Senor Turner knew where he could purchase aniline to be sold Senor Argüelles at a price most satisfactory to both. He bought from the man who had advertised. His 6000 pesos were gone. And Senor Argüelles first said "Manana," and again "Manana" and finally laughed in the face of the American.

Whereupon Turner swore out warrants for Argüelles and his associates, charging them with fraud. The laugh was on the other side of the Mexicans' faces now.

James D. Hallen, from a Pinkerton circular.

They would be most happy, their agent told Turner, to make restitution if he would but withdraw his charges. After all, it was a misunderstanding. The suave and persuasive story almost convinced him. Oh, anyway, he might as well. Perhaps he hadn't understood these folk. And the pesos in his hand were better than the satisfaction of seeing Argüelles in prison. He dismissed the cases.

And again it was "manana"—tomorrow. Argüelles smiled, shrugged his shoulders, deprecated the delay—and did not make the promised restitution.

And Turner knew himself for the fool he was. Duped! Tricked! His chance for help from Mexico's courts was gone. Here he had come into this foreign country to make a fortune, and had made himself a fool instead. They had taken advantage of his youth.

THAT hurt, quite as much as the money. Quite as much as the failure. And youth determined to be revenged. Turner purchased two revolvers and a knife. He turned detective. He learned to know something of Argüelles' habits. And one night he lay in wait for the swindler on Mexico's streets. Halted him. Forced him to come to the American's hotel.

"Manana," said the Mexican.

"Right here and now we settle," declared the American boy.

They talked and argued. The American lost his temper. The Latin, suave and unctuous, interposed delay after delay.

"Right here and now," was the ultimatum.

The Latin temper flared and Argüelles, from the bitter cynicism of a criminal and a man of the world, spoke as his teeth glittered in a smile. And what he spoke was deadly insult.

Turner shot then. And the Mexican swindler—a man notorious to the police of his country—crumpled up dead. The shot aroused the hotel and police came. Turner, frenzied, maddened by his rage at the dead man into deadly hatred of all Mexicans, stood off the police as long as his ammunition lasted and, although no one was hurt, it was not until the boy's last bullet sped that he was taken off to jail.

Benjamin H. Turner, who got his man.

There was much excitement. An interesting case. And into the cell of the youth in Belem prison walked sympathetic James Hallen.

SIXTY years old was James Hallen then. Snow white of hair. With seeming frank and mild and sympathetic eyes. His narrow lips might have been a warning to a student of physiognomy, but his thoughtful consideration, his quiet voice, his benign smile — these things disarmed the boy. Moreover, here was a countryman. "A white man," Turner probably thought, revolting from his contact with the 400 prisoners in the Belem corridor. And Hallen introduced himself as a lawyer. He questioned the youth with a professional air. Doubtless his talk was larded with legal phrases. Once, while a fugitive from justice in New York, he had been a lecturer on international law in a university in Haiti. Now, his credentials showed, he was in Mexico City representing Mrs. Constance Kilborn as her attorney in prosecuting a claim for $78,000 against one George W. Bryant in a suit growing out of deals in mining property.

"I trusted him like a father," says Turner. It seemed like aid almost from Heaven, this providential visit, as the boy saw it. He confided that he had $1200. He would be glad to spend that if necessary to get his freedom.

As compared to the $78,000 of which Mrs. Kilborn says Hallen swindled her, the $1200 of the boy was chicken-feed. But Hallen, old in crime, a professional swindler—and swindlers are the most heartless and cowardly of criminals—regarded all as grist that came to his mill. He took the money. And he tried to forget about the boy.

Turner languished in prison. Such a prison. Guide books of Mexico had described it as "a microbic spot to be avoided by sight-seers." It was built in 1683 and was once a church. But for 50 years it had been a cesspool of humanity, where criminals were herded together in filth. Shortly before Turner entered it the prison had been renovated somewhat. It still was an inferno.

Hallen's cottage where he was killed.

From his prison Turner wrote, loath to believe he had been robbed and abandoned by the man he trusted so. His letters were the pitiful pleading of a soul-sick boy. All he got in answer was excuses and delay.

And one of his letters to Hallen fell into the hands of Mrs. Kilborn quite by chance. She had no thought that Hallen had beguiled the boy. The swindler was her attorney and she held him in perfect trust. But the pathos of the letter she could not resist. She had some money then. And she went down to Mexico City to save Ben Turner.

Then the miracle happened. Mrs. Kilborn found the youth brooding in the prison —"The Silent One" the guards called him. She talked with him. She went about the city arousing the interest of other Americans. She gathered up a defense fund. She employed a brilliant lawyer. But even so the firing squad still seemed a certainty.

LIKE a bomb-shell at the trial of the boy was his plea of self-defense. The keen-witted lawyer was reading a new interpretation into Mexican law. Argüelles, he argued, was a criminal, and a swindler, the boy was in mortal terror of the man and he shot in defense of his worldly goods, the money being his means of life. The jury heard. It rendered a verdict of not guilty.

And Turner, freed from the threat of a firing squad, set about paying back the money that had been spent to save him. He still worked as an accountant. He still brooded, as he had brooded in his cell. "The silent one" would have fitted him as well in offices as it had in prison. And always out of his monthly pay-check he set aside something—to pay the Pinkertons for finding out for him what kind of a man James Hallen was.

At last they wrote to him: "We can do no more unless we send a man to Portland, Maine, to make an investigation." Turner quit the thing he was working at. He started out on what he had come to believe was his special job.

There was record aplenty. From the Pinkerton Agency's reports found carefully arranged in Turner's trunk, this story was pieced together:

Born in Ireland 64 years ago, Hallen came to America as a child, was educated in Elmira Academy and Union College of Schenectady, N. Y., and completed a two years' course at Albany law school, being admitted to the bar. He took a post-graduate course at Heidelberg University in 1888 and 1889. He was familiar with and claimed to speak eleven languages.

He had married a widow with three children. He started practicing law in Troy and fled from there under indictment for larceny, losing himself in New York and associating himself with a law firm which later charged him with larceny, but did not prosecute. It was then he went to Haiti. In 1892 he was again charged with forgery but the complaint was dismissed. In 1893 he was charged with swindling Mrs. Florence H. Caldwell out of $24,300. He was convicted and finally entered prison to serve eight years, being released in 1904.

Released from Sing Sing, Hallen went to California, where he worked on a newspaper under the name of Julian D. Hayne. Thence he went to Honolulu. Not long after he was in Florida, where he married a widow, Mrs. James Brush, whose husband had been an Iowa banker. He obtained her fortune and deserted her. Again he turned up in Honolulu. With another woman.

In New York in 1909 he was arrested on a forgery charge which he managed to beat. Always he was playing for bigger game. His fluent Spanish seemed to open up to him a greater opportunity. He met one Roman Echezaretta with whom he contracted for 1,100,000 cartridges. Echezaretta was representing some Nicaraguan revolutionists. He had money. Hallen got $11,000 of it and Echezaretta got some of the cartridges. They were filled, instead of powder, with brass filings. His knowledge of international law enabled Hallen to beat that case in court when it came to trial in 1912.

He became a lecturer accompanying about the country the film presentation of Dante's "Inferno." His polish, his culture, his languages fitted him admirably for the task. His penchant for swindling did not. He quit it to operate a moving picture show at Brunswick, Maine. And suddenly he left Brunswick. A bank there wanted him on a bad check charge.

He was arrested in 1917 in Cleveland, Ohio, on that Brunswick charge. He appeared in the Maine court as his own lawyer, announcing that the New York attorney he had supposedly employed had failed to make train connections. In the trial he tangled up the handwriting experts and other witnesses with remarkable skill and the Court freed him upon his own motion for a directed verdict.

Then he settled down in Maine, and married. And there were occasional rumbling threats from the law and sometimes curious rumors. But for the most part, he entertained at his cozy cottage on the shore of Casco Bay, mingled with his neighbors, appeared in amateur theatricals and wrote poetry.

Such was the life of Hallen when Turner came to Portland. He registered at a hotel. He hired a private detective. He started on his special job.

Certainly his plan was to force Hallen to make restitution. He knew by now the type of heartless swindler he was to face. He knew that Hallen clung to the fringes of respectability. He wanted facts to force the man to pay him back.

And when he had them, he let Hallen know that he was there. "I want you to meet me. And meet me at once," he said.

Hallen pleaded delay and fixed a meeting for the following day at the Congress Square Hotel.

HE WASN'T having so good a time now — this clever swindler. Here was the almost-dead come back as if by a miracle from Mexico to plague him. And meanwhile a certain stockholder in the Basin Quarries, Inc., which Hallen had recently sold, was alleging fraud. He called up Leo Shesong, his attorney, and made appointment for an interview. He stayed away from his meeting with Turner. That boy, he thought, would wait.

Ben Turner wouldn't wait. He visited Hallen's home. The swindler stepped out for a walk down the road and did not come back. And in his office Leo Shesong waited for his client to appear.

Turner made no trouble about arrest. Perhaps he expected in this "white man's country" a white man's justice. The boy told nothing. Said nothing. He was, so far as police might know, without a friend.

Portland was shocked by the murder tale. Everybody talked of it. And Mrs. Kilborn, shut-in, crippled, heard. She impressed a friend's automobile. She visited the boy in prison. And she set about, in the borrowed car, from house to house of friends, trying to raise money in his defense. She is sure that she can gain his liberty. "I may be bankrupt and broken down," she says, "but I know that Turner will get a chance. I'd beg for aid for him upon the streets if I were able. I am heartsick for that boy. Think of him, herded for two years in a filthy room with 400 Mexican criminals, while the man he'd paid to help him gain his freedom left him to rot in that dark place where only vermin thrive. No wonder something snapped when Hallen put him off again. I know that help will come to that poor boy. The Power above will not look down upon injustice."

The Caterpillar Club

More Exclusive Than the United States Senate but It Has No Applicants for Membership—Men Who Have Saved Their Lives by Necessary Parachute Leaps From Airplanes Belong to It.

Two Caterpillars have saved their lives more than once by parachute jumps. Lieut. C. A. Lindbergh of St. Louis, the young, blond giant who flies the mail between here and Chicago, is the only three-timer.

The two-time Caterpillar is Lieut. F. O. Hunter.

THIS concerns the most exclusive club in America — and the most paradoxical. It is a club that has no waiting list. None covets membership. Yet, once initiated, members wear its badge upon proud chests and would exchange it for none other. Its numbers are small—perhaps 28 or 30 accredited at this time and not more than eight or ten others undergoing the prerequisite scrutiny. To be eligible, men must figuratively and almost literally lose their lives, then regain them. It is a club to which no man chooses to elect himself, but to which all are self-elected. It bears the name of the lowliest of creatures, yet its members hold aloft the golden banner of the pioneer.

It is the Caterpillar Club, founded in the United States Army Air Service. Its members are air flyers who have saved their lives by forced, emergency jumps from airplanes in flight by means of a parachute.

No "dare-devils" are admitted to this strangest and latest of clubs. Jumps for pleasure or thrill do not count. To qualify, one must have used the parachute as a last resort.

The home of the club is McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio. There the names and pictures of the members are displayed upon a roll, together with unimpassioned descriptions of the feat by which they became enrolled.

THE name of St. Louis flashes forth brilliantly upon the roll—St. Louis, which in 1923 held the most successful air meet in the history of aviation and which since has slipped back into the flying doldrums. Its depression is such that even the air mail has a struggle to survive the meager revenue which the city affords.

St. Louis is the home of the only flyer who has jumped three times to save his life. One of the two lowest and most hazardous jumps on record was made at St. Louis. And though it has no official place in the records of the Caterpillars, the first jump by parachute from an airplane in flight was made in St. Louis—by Capt. John Berry, balloonist, in 1912.

The three-time Caterpillar is Lieutenant C. A. Lindbergh, an officer of the local Thirty-fifth Division Air Corps, and pilot of the air mail for the Robertson Aircraft Corporation between St. Louis and Chicago. He is a supple, young, blond giant, just past 24 years.

Lindbergh became a three-timer September 16, when, after vainly seeking a landing in fog with the air mail in and around Chicago, his gasoline supply became exhausted and he abandoned ship, leaping at 4000 feet in the fog and darkness, but landing safely. The tradition of the air mail prevailed. Caching his parachute in a bush, he set out on foot to find his wrecked plane. Within an hour he had salvaged his mail and sent it forward toward Chicago. "The mail must go."

Lieutenant Lindbergh became a two-timer within the space of four months last year. His baptism was on March 6. He was flying as part of a formation in combat maneuvers at 5000 feet over Kelly Field, Texas. With Lieutenant C. D. McAllister in a second plane, he was attacking a larger plane. His plane and that of Lieutenant McAllister collided in the air. Both pilots jumped.

No report in the records of the Caterpillars is more complete, more lucid, than Lieutenant Lindbergh's account of the crash, the leap, the landing. It denotes the cool, rapid-thinking head which brother flyers unanimously attribute to him.

"Our ships were locked together," the report runs, "with the fuselages approximately parallel. My right wing was damaged and had folded back slightly, covering the forward right-hand corner of the cockpit. Then the ships started to mill around and the wires began whistling. The right wing commenced vibrating and striking my head at the bottom of each oscillation. I removed the rubber band safetying the belt, unbuckled it, climbed out past the trailing edge of the damaged wing and, with my feet on the cowling on the right side of the cockpit, which then was nearly vertical, I jumped backwards from the ship as far as possible.

"I had no difficulty in locating the pull-ring and experienced no sensation of falling. The wreckage was falling straight down and for some time I fell in line with its path. Fearing the wreckage might fall on me, I did not pull the rip-cord until I had fallen several hundred feet and into the clouds. I was falling flat and face downward. The parachute functioned perfectly, almost as soon as I pulled the rip-cord. The risers jerked on my shoulders, the leg straps tightened, my head went down and the chute was fully opened. The wrecked ships passed 100 yards away.

It is a misnomer to call that kind of a parachute jump luck. Here it was skill, discipline, courage, self-possession.

LIEUTENANT LINDBERGH'S second leap was June 2, 1926, at Bridgeton Field, in St. Louis County. Again his report is painstaking, complete in every detail, but largely technical—a description of the structural weaknesses of a new model plane, being flown in test stunting for the first time. As customary, he put the plane in a spin and it refused to come out. The controls jammed. He followed it down to 500 feet, in an effort to bring it out, but, failing still, jumped, this time suffering a dislocated shoulder. Landings are not always without injury. Often in a wind, a rider is dragged along the ground for great distances. Curiously, among the more than 300 planes at the international air races in St. Louis and the miles upon miles flown at high speed and in intricate stunts, the most serious accident was a broken leg suffered by a parachute jumper.

There is one two-time member of the Caterpillar Club—Lieutenant F. O. Hunter. One of the distinguished members of the club is Lieutenant J. A. Macready, one of the famous coast-to-coast flight pair. Lieutenant Macready was flying into Dayton when his engine stalled directly over the city. He maneuvered it to the outskirts to save damage or loss of life below. He landed in his chute in a grape arbor and dangled eight feet in the air for some time until cut down.

Pilots leave their planes with reluctance. Except where disaster is complete and obvious, they ride them down to the last minute of safety. The records of the Caterpillar Club repeatedly contain phrases of this sort: "Accident at 2500 feet. Pilot jumped at 500 feet."

The record for the lowest jump, and hence the most perilous, is in doubt. It lies between Lieutenant Fred C. Nelson, with his jump at Bridgeton, St. Louis County, on October 10, last year, and Walter E. Lees, a civilian flying at Johnson Field, Ohio.

The theory of the parachute officers of the Air Service is that a chute will open in a fraction of a second, making a safe jump possible at 100 feet. Lieutenant Nelson jumped at about 150 feet.

He seemed to strike the ground and his parachute to open at almost the same time. Certainly, observers said, the parachute opened with its first pendulum swing, but when he was no more than 15 feet off the ground. He was saved serious injury, but got a hard bumping. The plane had gone into a slip at 1000 feet. Lieut. Nelson had waited for his passenger, Reserve Lieutenant Clarence Boehm of St. Louis, to jump and clear his chute. Boehm's chute became entangled and he was killed.

So far as deliberately waiting to a dangerously low level, Lieut. Nelson holds the palm. Lees, however, is credited in the club with having shaved his record. His accident occurred at 150 feet. He was forced to jump instantly to save his life—and did.

THE Caterpillar Club was founded on October 20, 1922, by Lieutenant H. R. Harris. He was flying at 2500 feet when one of his wings began to flutter. Then it dropped off. Though pilots, in that day, were wont to scoff at parachutes and look upon them as the badge of a timid rather than of a sensibly cautious man, Lieutenant Harris was provided with one. He stood up in his cockpit and the terrific air suction lifted him bodily out of and clear of the plane. He pulled his ring at 500 feet and descended in safety—the first forced jump in the Air Service, where a chute saved a life. Thereafter the general order, still effective, went out: "All pilots must wear parachutes on all flights."

The records of the club, however, share partially the honor of being first member with a civilian—A. C. O'Connor. His experience also was at McCook Field, nearly two years before Lieutenant Harris' leap. O'Connor was to leap from a plane in a chute of his own design. Inasmuch as his experiment was to take place over an army field, he was compelled also to carry an army chute. His chute failed to open. The army chute did. He fell 1500 feet before the army chute saved him.

Somewhat similar was the record of one Bottenfield, a civilian, at Kelly Field, Texas. He was to demonstrate his theory that the solution of a parachute failing to open was to carry several, one folded within the other, and if one failed, some one of the others would not. He took five chutes aloft. He was to open them in succession, and thus come to earth. Once again, the army caution and the locale of his experiment compelled that an army chute be taken along. His five chutes became entangled one in another and none opened. The army chute did, and he gave thanks to the army.

ONE of the most freakish spectacles of the air occurred last June 17, near Fairfield, O. Lieutenant James T. Hutchinson was flying in bombing practice, with Paul Stanley as bomber. A break in the gas line set the ship afire at 8000 feet. The Air Service News, under a title, "The Phantom Ship," records what followed:

"Lieutenant Hutchinson had barely opened his parachute when he saw that he was directly in the path in which the ship was quietly circling. The knowledge that it carried 320 gallons of gasoline, 2000 rounds of live, small ammunition and six large bombs aboard, made him more uncomfortable. For several thousand feet man and plane descended together. The small ammunition was sputtering like popcorn. Lieutenant Hutchinson did not know whether he was to be struck or blown to bits. Finally so much of the ship's superstructure burned away that it altered its course and began describing a new circle and the parachute was out of danger.

"NOW follows the strange part of the story, as reported by Lieutenant Bertrandes, who chanced to be flying in and saw this strange ship, like some new smoke-writing device high in the air. Eventually, at just the instant that a pilot would have nosed down for a landing, this pilotless ship nosed down. It came to earth on two of its three points simultaneously. Its third point, the gears, were a fraction of a second off and were damaged. Otherwise, the landing was perfect."

The news of last month carried the death of the only flyer who then had had the opportunity of becoming the first three-timer in the Caterpillar Club. He was Lieutenant E. H. Barksdale, head of the test-flight section of McCook Field, an ace in the war, admired throughout the Air Service as a beau ideal. On two occasions, previously, Lieutenant Barksdale came safely to earth in a parachute when his plane crashed.

He was testing, on last August 11, a Douglas transport, known to be treacherous in a spin. Yet he deliberately put it into a spin, with Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison looking on.

What followed, officers at the field say, was one of the most peculiar spins ever witnessed. The ship did not nose down. Instead, it began to rotate in a flat spin on even keel. This made Lieutenant Barksdale the pivot of the spin, the center of the eddy. He tried in vain to get free of the plane. Eventually he jumped and pulled his rip-cord, but the parachute tangled hopelessly in the plane and he died.

Another man who had the opportunity to become a three-time Caterpillar. He was killed in his third jump—Lieut. E. H. Barksdale, who crashed last August at McCook Field, Dayton, when his parachute became entangled in the plane.

Lieut. Barksdale's crash, when one of the best known of the Caterpillars lost his life.

Safely on the way to earth. The little spot at the top of the parachute is the pilot chute which brings the 24-foot chute out of its pack.

READ the cold, official record of the initiation of Lieutenant J. Thad Johnson to the Caterpillars: "April 10, 1925. Lieutenant J. T. Johnson of Selfridge Field, Michigan, was flying a Curtiss PW-8 to Mitchell Field, Long Island, and was over the Allegheny Mountains, near Eaglesmere, Pennsylvania. Accident caused by an oil leak. Pilot saw this and climbed his plane to 11,000 feet and jumped. He landed safely in an apple tree."

And compare it with Lieutenant Johnson's review of the memorable day, as he gave it to this writer: "It was blowing 49 miles and raining 40 oceans. Besides, there was lightning. A nice enough mess in itself, without one's cockpit being flooded with oil. That is what I perceived when I chanced to look down—oil oozing back so rapidly that it denoted just one thing: that the engine would last only a few more minutes and then would stall. So I pointed her up and kept her pointing up until she did stall.

"Now, what flyer has not rehearsed in his mind what he would do in such circumstances? I had. I would climb leisurely out and cut loose. My faith in the parachute was strong. I had often said to myself: 'No hurry, now. Just reach over and pull that ring and you will come down upon a bed of feathers.'

"So I just reached over for the ring. I had always promised myself that I would bring it down with me as a souvenir. It wasn't there! I reached again. No ring. And again. No ring.

"Ever have someone step up behind and say, suddenly: 'Boo!' Well, I was that scared. I had fallen several hundred feet. Of course, I had many thousand to go, but I was plumb scared.

"Then I began to think. Of course, idiot! I had been reaching on the wrong side. So I looked down on the other side. There, safely against my coat, was a great ring of gold. Did I say gold? Platinum. I gave it a yank, and less than a second later I felt the consoling tug of the parachute.

"The lightning was flashing continuously, so near as to seem like the blaze of a lighthouse at 10 paces. Then there was the wind, a hurricane that kept my parachute out at a near right angle. My descent was so rapid that my safe landing was not assured. But the rope of the chute tangled in the old apple tree and broke my fall. I came to earth without a scratch."

The annals of the Caterpillar Club are not without their grim humor. It was only a few weeks ago that the latest Caterpillar was initiated — Lieutenant John I. Martin, a flying instructor at McCook Field, who was riding as a passenger in the rear seat of an army plane bound from McCook Field to Brooks Field in Texas.

The air is drowsy, once its stimulating novelty is gone, and Lieutenant Martin, a seasoned flyer, was taking an air catnap. Either his safety belt became unfastened or he had neglected to make it secure, but, in any event, he was rudely aroused from slumber by bumpy air. He found himself sliding along the fuselage. When he reached the tail, he fell off. He pulled his ring and came down. The pilot landed at Brooks Field. As he taxied to a standstill he was handed a telegram: "Next time, you wait for me." It was signed "Martin." The pilot looked about, to find his cockpit empty. He had not missed Martin till then.

October 1, last year, saw another humorous incident. Lieutenant F. O. Rogers of the Marine Corps was flying over Washington, D. C. The records conflict. Officially, it reads that he was fixing his belt. Some of his friends say that he confided to them that he had fallen asleep. In any event, a lurch of the plane sent him in a Prince of Wales header, completely clear of the ship, sprawling in the air. He came down gently on silk.

THERE is a woman member of the Caterpillars, Mrs. J. A. MacFarlane, who jumped from an army plane at Grisard Field, Cincinnati. She was to demonstrate a new type Thompson chute, but it failed to open. An emergency army chute brought her down.

In fact, if there are any records of any army chute failing, the army does not disclose it. Performance is virtually 100 per cent. The army is careful of its parachutes. One of the Air Service regulations is that every flyer must have his parachute repacked once a month.

The common type for pilots is the seat chute, a compact cushion upon which the flyer sits. It is strapped to him by wide, stout bands over the shoulders, like suspenders, and around the thighs.

The lives of pioneers of the air hang upon a thread—the thread of a caterpillar.

It is tragedy that the man who first suggested the Caterpillar Club, and named it, was denied membership. He was a newspaper reporter for the Dayton News—E. Timmerman. He was killed last autumn in a crash of a private plane while flying back from the national air races at Mitchell Field, New York. He was parachuteless.

The parachute, as worn by the flyer—67 yards of the finest silk spun by the caterpillar.

Fixes the Ford to Kill His Brother

How Herman Pfeiffer Sought to Blast a Road to Happiness by Making an Infernal Machine of the Automobile He and William Owned So That the Elder Boy Would Blow Himself Up When the Machine Climbed the Long Hill on the Road Home—And How He Waited for the News.

Margaret Wilson, whom Herman's brother didn't like.

By HARRY R. BURKE
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

PEORIA, Illinois.

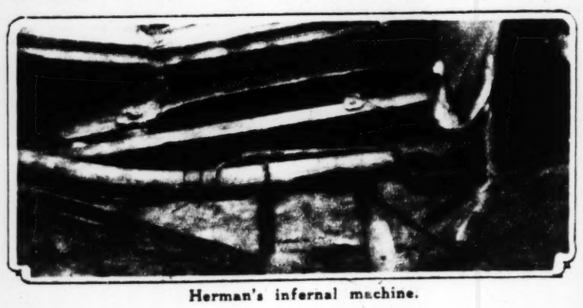
PICTURE at the outset those two brothers—this the Abel, slow of thought and quiet, ill-favored, a plodder and dependable. And the Cain—just six years younger, blonde and sunny in the aspect of his youth, as handsome as a Grecian demi-god, alert of mind, purposeful, daring, virile, secretive, proud and dissipated. They are the Pfeiffer brothers, farmer boys and partners of East Peoria. William, 28, the elder, hobbles on his crooked legs about the farm the two boys rented from their mother, doing the chores and supervising "hired men" at their fall work. Herman now, at 22, his sheikish hair clipped close, is in Joliet prison.

William would be dead and perhaps a knotted noose would be about his convict brother's neck, except that the gasoline tank on the Ford truck the brothers owned burst, and did not explode, when two sticks of dynamite were set off at its side. Herman had placed them there. With deeply calculated ingenuity he had devised a death machine. With it the unsuspecting William was to blow himself to pieces.

Why? For two years William had been an example and a reproach to the younger brother. Bill did not drink. He did not gamble. He was thrifty, conservative, hard-working, determined to get ahead—and the watch-dog of the partnership treasury.

Bill did not like all of Herman's girl companions. "Don't you bring her on the place again," he says he told his brother after Margaret Wilson had visited the Pfeiffer farm one night. They had been riding around in the automobile, she and Herman, until after 1 o'clock and Margaret was afraid the doors of the Peoria home in which she worked as a domestic would be locked against her.

Bill was plodding on in the thrifty German way. That was the heritage of his ancestry. Hermie was "seeing life." It cost money. A fellow can't take a girl out without spending something. He's got to have clothes, hasn't he? He's got to show her a good time. Hermie didn't dance, but Margaret did, and they visited the dance halls. And there was booze to buy. That, too, takes cash. Bill didn't like to give his brother money to throw away in youthful follies. That is how Herman happened to borrow, at different times, $400 on notes. Bill didn't know of these loans. Neither did Herman's mother, whose name the boy forged to the notes as an endorser. And that debt had to be paid. The bank was clamoring for settlement.



Herman's infernal machine.

"I WANT you, Herm. I would follow you to the end of the world. My whole heart and soul are yours always," Margaret wrote him. The two had met about two years before. "At a booze party," says Herman. No doubt that she was "crazy" about the boy. And he about her, as his letters show. But Bill was barring the way with his cold disapproval. Just as Bill was barring the way to the partnership cash box. Yes, Bill was in the way.

And the two boys, being partners, had taken out a joint insurance policy for $2000 on each other's lives. In case of death, you see, that would provide ready cash to straighten up partnership affairs during the long months of waiting for fall harvest and the sale of crops. It was a good business idea.

Herman thought of that $2000. Bill out of the way, that money would be his. And so would Margaret. The farm as well. He could meet that note. And there would be no more of nagging. He pondered and he brooded.

There are deep lines drooping downward from the corners of his mouth which show how long the youth has brooded over fancied wrongs. You need almost see the boy to understand him. Tall and straight he is, built like a young Apollo, and you will note the ripple of steel muscle beneath the figured Joseph's coat of V-necked jersey that he wears with his soft, blue shirt. There are the wide pants, light almost to whiteness, of a young collegian, and he crowns his head with a cowboy hat, except on state occasions. Hat off, his pompadour of red-glinted gold stands up in rippled waves and his whisker has been brought down in clipped Spanish dominoes before his ears. Broad and white is his high forehead, his eyes are flaxen blue. Cheekbones are high, and narrow is his thin, patrician nose. His mouth is as a Cupid's bow, chiseled in pink marble, and the long, firm chin ends in a square, determined line.

BILL he must have scorned as well as hated. Scorn, perhaps, gave the murderous hatred birth. A bigger, quicker man he than the elder brother. Probably he could, as he says, do far more work. Doubtless, the boy felt himself much the superior of the two. A handier man. Better looking by far. Quicker to think. And Bill was so old-fashioned! You can imagine how he fumed at this elder brother set above him—the senior in the partnership, the watchdog of his funds, and who wished to be the keeper of his morals.

Once brooding had led to a determination, Herman moved quickly, and with cat-like cunning, cruelty and stealth, to work his lethal purpose.

He himself says that in scarcely more than 24 hours he had devised his scheme contrived his engine of murder, and it had worked.

So well had it worked that his elder brother lay in front of the Peter Fisher farmhouse on the Springfield road in Tazewell County, broken and bleeding, thrown 30 feet by the explosion of that dynamite, and at the point of death.

And those who came to the aid of the injured man, and the officers and curious ones who looked the wrecked truck over, sagely agreed that a defective tail light wire had short-circuited, caused a spark and exploded the tank of gasoline. Two days passed before anyone noticed the piece of lightning rod wired to the exhaust pipe of the wrecked truck, or the tire tape by which miners' fuse had been brought through the hollow lightning rod after being wired at the end of the engine's manifold, carried across the first cross-bar of the truck frame and then brought back to a place beside the gasoline tank and beneath the driver's seat. And not until then did anybody note that the gasoline tank had been crushed in by a blast from the outside instead of being blown out by an explosion from within.

Someone had tried to blow William Pfeiffer up. Fond du Lac township and Tazewell County wanted to know who. Sheriff Neuhaus impounded the car in the Pfeiffer garage. People talked. And got no further in unravelling the mystery.

FOR six weeks William Pfeiffer lay in St. Francis Hospital at Peoria, whither he was taken on the night of the explosion—May 29, last—with his left leg broken in four places and a chunk of flesh torn from his hip, which left a hole big enough to put a hat crown into. Saturday night, immediately after the explosion, he was taken there. Herman didn't go over to see him until Tuesday—and only then after his mother's pleading. For several days William lay with death expected at any minute.

The neighborhood remarked that Herman Pfeiffer hadn't gone to see his brother until the Tuesday following the explosion. They remarked that the younger boy wasn't paying many visits to the hospital. And someone, who was present at the time, also noted that once, when Herman came into his brother's room after a long absence, William turned his back on him.

"Can he know anything about Herman?" the neighbors asked themselves. "Herman is a strange one," they added, "wild, and deep, too."

Maybe it was Alfred Vogelsang who told about the lightning rod. Vogelsang is a 17-year-old neighbor boy. He was William's companion in the Ford truck the night of the explosion, and was blown out of the side of the car, escaping uninjured. "That lightning rod," he may have said, "is just like a piece Herman took off the Pfeiffer barn some days before Bill got blown up. Only the piece was longer."

Herman Pfeiffer, who wanted to see life.

William Pfeiffer, plodding and in the way.

And then someone else found the other half of the piece of rod taken from the barn, thrown over among the weeds in the Pfeiffer orchard.

Tazewell County was building a new grade on the Merton road not far from the Pfeiffer home last May, and there was a lot of dynamiting in a cut. Everybody knew about that. But only three people knew, until Phil and Henry Brecker told it, that two nights before the explosion that maimed Bill Pfeiffer they had met Herman Pfeiffer under curious circumstances at that cut. They saw a Ford car parked in the cut with no one near it. They decided to see what the matter was and climbed up to the top of the grade. There was Herman Pfeiffer.

"Oh, it's you guys," he said. "I didn't know who you was. Say, what road is this? I'm lost. I got out to see where I was."

"Funny," they said to themselves as they left him. "Why, Hermie Pfeiffer knows every cow-path in this whole county. Funny he'd say he was lost. Wonder what he was up to?"

LATER they thought of it again. Graders had left fuse looped along the fences on the right of way of that road-grade. And there was dynamite lying beside the roadside there. Loose! More talk.

Bill Pfeiffer, now back from the hospital, began to wonder about some things. That lightning rod. The hay wire by which it was fixed to the manifold. The tape. The dynamite caps. He had seen all these things in the garage at home a few days before the explosion. Just a day or two before. Gossip about his brother came to his ears. Could it be possible?

And there was more gossip. About Hermie and his girl.

Herman Pfeiffer was introduced to Margaret Wilson by Frieda Lasher, the daughter of a neighbor, who had gone to Peoria to work as a domestic. Margaret worked for a neighbor of the family Frieda worked for. Both Herman and the girl were infatuated. There is no denying that. But Margaret wasn't one to keep a job too long. She was somewhat of a rover. After a time she left Peoria. She worked at Macomb and at Beardstown and at Springfield. The two corresponded frequently. The day after Bill was blown up in the explosion Herman wrote these cryptic words to his sweetheart:

"I don't know how things are going to turn out. I have sure seen enough to set one half nuts. I could tell you a lot but what's the use. I'm supposed to be at the hospital, but honest I haven't got the guts to go. I am so darn shaky from last night I can't write."

There were intervening letters, but about the time William was expected home from the hospital, Margaret wrote:

"After I came home, Herm, I realized I could never be the kind of a wife you deserve. I love you, Herm, and always will. But, Herm, I am married. Was married yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. It wasn't that I didn't love you and was only kidding you. My God, no. Why, man, I would die willingly for you right today and always will. I am going to Hammond, Ind., to live, but am going back to Springfield to turn my time in at the factory. If you want, you can come over then.

"Oh, Herm, if you only knew how you are hurting me. I am crying as I write this. But I want you to know why I done this. Because it is for your own good, and I love you so much I would rather suffer than you. I don't love this man, Herm. I almost hate him. Oh, Herm, if you only knew. I want you, Herm, more than anyone, and it sure is hurting me awfully to give you up. My whole heart and soul are yours always. I would give the world and all in it just to see you for one minute, if only for one minute. You can answer, if you want to, real soon. Let me say this, Herm, go back and help your mother, dear old soul, and forget Just Marg."

A week later she was writing him again:

"I THOUGHT you was never going to write me. Dear, I can't tell you how lonesome I am for you tonight. Instead of longing for my husband as I should, it is you, Herm.

"I love you so much I would gladly go to the end of the world with you. Anywhere you say, Herm. I can't wait till fall. Go now. I have three weeks, dear, before I go to Hammond to live. If we don't go now it will be too late after I go there. There is no reason in the world why he and I should live together. I don't love him. Take me now while you got the chance, because this may be your last one. Other people have been married and then become single again. I guess I can do the same thing, Herm. I will live anywhere or go any place with you. Think this over. I can see you Sunday. If you take me away I will never go to Hammond. I will close.

"P. S.—Think over what I have wrote, please."

That was July 15. They didn't elope, but Margaret did not go to join her husband in the home he was making at Hammond, Indiana. Instead, she came to Peoria and got employment. They saw each other again. Were they planning to leave together when the fall crop was harvested and crop payments had been made into the farm partnership's treasury? Herman says they were not. But Herman also says that Bill's opposition to Margaret had nothing to do with his hatred for his brother; that the $2000 insurance money was not a motive in his decision to kill him; that the $400 forged note was not a reason for the attempted murder. He only blew up Bill, he says, for a joke. And in another breath he says that he only tried to "teach Bill a lesson." You cannot always depend on what Herman says.

The boy is a play-actor. He saw himself in the role of an injured younger son before he blew up Bill. He sees himself now as a sort of scientific avenger. Not for money would he kill. Not for love. Only because of the injustice of Bill's nagging. It sounds better that way.

BILL did have his suspicions. The traces his brother had left were unmistakable. If only the gasoline tank had exploded and blown the car completely to pieces instead of breaking and letting its fluid burn the wood, Herman might have been unsuspected. But Bill could not forget that most of the things from which the infernal machine had been devised were things from the home place. He had noticed, as others had noticed, that Herman didn't like to talk about the crime. Only once had the younger brother volunteered an opinion. "The guy that did that must have been a long-fingered guy." Those who heard him wondered why there was no evidence of such a fact that they could see. And then they looked at Herman's fingers. They were short and stubby!

Bill had noticed, too, that Herman was avoiding him wherever possible. The younger boy had little or nothing to say to his brother. Even the mother noticed the change. And they noticed, too, one day, that Herman for some reason had taken the family shotgun out and stood it up in the corner of the garage. Why?

They began to fear the boy. They discovered he often left home at night, stealing through his bedroom window. There was no check on him. He could have gone as freely through the open door. Why did he prefer this other way?

Bill made up his mind to get to the bottom of things. He went to State's Attorney L. P. Dunkelberg. "I want you to find out who's guilty," he said. "You hire detectives. I'll pay the bill. I can't stand this suspense. I can't stand to have everybody talking about my brother if he is innocent. If he's not, I want to know."

Harry P. McKee, a detective, was sent down from Chicago. He went to work on Tuesday. On Saturday he had the confession.

"I knew all about a Ford," Herman said, "and I blowed up stumps clearing land for MacCallen, my neighbor. He'll eat me up when he hears about this. So I got to thinking about it. I had felt the manifold get hot under the footboard when I was driving the car. I made up my mind it was hot enough to set fire to a fuse. I was afraid if the fuse got to burning in the open William would smell it and find the thing. That's why I used the lightning rod, cutting off a piece to carry the fuse back behind the footboard.

"Well, I made up my mind to do it. I had everything there and I drove over Friday night to the schoolhouse, about a mile away. There were trees there. It was moonlight. I drove the car into the shadow of the schoolhouse and fixed up everything but the dynamite. I used two fuses—different lengths. I wanted to see for sure if it would work and find about the timing of the fuse.

"After I got it fixed I drove off and raced a Buick for a while and got my engine hot. Both caps exploded and I knew the scheme would work. I noticed then the lights was getting dim, so I drove to Art Huser's garage to get the brushes on the generator fixed. They couldn't do it then. I drove on to Strickfadden's garage in East Peoria and visited there a while. Then I went home. Everything was all right. Bill used to take the milk to Peoria on Sunday mornings in the truck. So I was fixing it up for him Saturday.

"I TOLD him about the generator and said I was going to Huser's to have it fixed. Instead I went up to the schoolhouse and put the dynamite in. Then I drove slowly and carefully to the garage at Groveland. There wasn't any danger if I didn't heat the engine. They fixed the generator for me. They never saw nothing wrong. I knew they wouldn't. It was only the generator they were looking at.

"That afternoon Bill decided he'd go fishing. Al Vogelsang thought maybe he'd go, too. I didn't want him blown up. That afternoon some kids came along and wanted him to go over to Peoria to a show. He said he wouldn't, but later he sort of changed his mind. So I thought he'd get out at home to change his clothes. Instead he went on with Bill.

"We had supper early. After they left I went out to the barn and then through the cornfield and over through the woods to a friend. I hadn't seen him for a long time. He had a barrel of good wine in his cellar. We sat down and talked."

Night was falling. A storm had blown up. Bill and Alfred Vogelsang had reached Peoria on their way to fish in the Illinois River, and then turned back before the storm. They started up Washington hill, a long, steep grade. Motorists behind them saw sparks flying as they reached the top. Two wires rubbing together, they thought.

From the top of the hill to the Pfeiffer home is a 10-minute ride. Half the distance was covered. The engine was hot and balky. There was a sudden explosion. Vogelsang was thrown out at the side. William was blown through the top and forward. The car, out of control, whirled around and burst into flame.

Meanwhile Herman was over in a neighbor's kitchen. At his back was a door into the dining room. Through that door he could see a window that looked out upon the lane which leads from the main road to the Pfeiffer house. Now and again, as they sat talking and discussing their wine, Herman kept looking back, over his shoulder, watching for the automobile which was to come and tell his mother the older son had been blown up. Others would follow, he expected, bringing the mangled body in.

One car did come at 8 o'clock. Herman saw the lights flash and said nothing. "And we got to talking loud," he said, "and the housekeeper went to bed. And there we sat until almost 11."

HIS mother, meanwhile, was alone at home with her sorrow. Now the boy left the neighbor's, making his way home through the woods. A hot, stifling summer night. Flashes of vivid lightning and the crash and rumble of thunder. He hadn't put the chickens up in his haste to get away from home. He fumbled about the yard a bit and the noise the birds made told his mother he was there. "Hermie," she cried. "Is that you?" and she burst into crying. "Willie's been killed."

"And I went to her," says the statement of her son, "and tried to quieten her."

Bill and the mother were waiting after Judge Niehaus had passed sentence on this modern would-be Cain, regretting that the law imposed such a leniency of limit. "But I don't want to see him," said Bill slowly as he hobbled away from the jail door where he left his mother.

"Who will take care of her," the younger boy was saying to the jailer, "now with me gone and Bill crippled up?" And then she stepped into the corridor, sobbing, a broken, faded woman, bent and all in black. In her hand was clutched a present for her son. It was a box of writing paper.

"Hermie! Hermie!" She handed it out to him and burst into hysterical moaning.

EXIT ME AND CEDRIC

The Great New York Actor, in the West to Make His First Film, Didn't Like Hollywood. And the Others in the Company Didn't Like Him. So, They Entered Into a Conspiracy Which Was Intended to Be Very Amusing.

BY

Frank Condon

I MAY as well confess, openly, before all the customers and without feeling ashamed, either, that I have been fired again. I have lost another job. My pay envelope has been amputated, and my employers, the Commonplace Motion Picthre Corporation, have informed several of their friends that I am a person who is not to be entrusted with the serious responsibilities of business.

However, no disgrace attached to my dismissal. There was a good deal of annoyance, but no genuine infamy. As a matter of cold truth, I am just as good as I ever was. There is no better business manager, or efficiency expert, in all Hollywood than Thomas B. Whiteman—which is my label. Corporations wishing to employ a gifted executive, please write or wire, collect, general delivery, stating terms.

This makes the second time in one year that I have been unloaded by the Commonplace Corporation. After my first dismissal, they re-employed me—which shows very clearly that they appreciate true merit. I am simply an unlucky individual. Misfortune drags around after me like a busted shoe lace.

My main difficulty seems to be that I lose things. I lose them, not through any fault of my own, but because I am a son of ill-fortune. This time, I lost a full-grown leading man. You would scarcely think that an efficiency expert could lose a leading man, but it can be done.

He was working for George Mulberry. George is the peppy director with whom I was associated for seven active months, and who will swear on a stack of duck eggs that I can lose anything. They fired me eight months ago for losing two freight cars loaded with South Sea cocoanut palms, which had been made in Hollywood, of Oregon pine, Pittsburg nails and Connecticut canvas.

A BUSINESS MANAGER for a movie unit has his own troubles, believe me. Above all, he is supposed not to lose things—which explains why I am now reading the want advertisements with a careful eye as to their personal application.

As you probably do not know, or care, every motion picture unit begins with the director, who is the king upon his throne. It includes his personal staff, his mechanical staff, his actors, his camera men and his script girl. In the case of the Commonplace Corporation it included a business manager, or efficiency hound, whose job is chaos and desperation, and whose life is one long-drawn sob of delirious misery.

That's what I was. I was the official who paid off the help, hired the cooks on location, rented tents, leased steamers and ran errands. I also coaxed temperamental actors back to work, calmed indignant leading ladies who discovered their names in small type, discharged prop men for being audibly pickled, beat down the rent charges of airplane companies; trundled the outfit to location, and saw that everybody had the best seats at the mess table, the best beds, a phonograph to amuse them after supper, hot water to bathe in, and so forth, without let or hindrance.

The business manager of a movie company does everything, beginning with the purchase of the railway tickets and winding up with the exciting job of clipping hangnails for the leading lady. He is held responsible by the corporation, and his main purpose in life is to keep down the cost of the production. He is also the bleating goat when anything goes wrong. That's the job, and Tom Whiteman is acknowledged to be one of the slickest business managers that ever left Hollywood.

WE WERE engaged, at the time, on a George Mulberry special, which is simply a picture that costs more money than the other directors are allowed to spend. The name was, and still is, unless the New York office has changed it, "Left-Handed Money." It's about something or other, but I never knew the plot.

A business manager seldom knows what the story is about, and he doesn't want to know. He has enough troubles without that. Moreover, he knows from experience that no matter what the story was yesterday, it is different today, and it will be different again tomorrow; so there's no sense in fretting about it.

It's a funny thing, how I happened to be bounced by the Commonplace Corporation, during the filming of this "Left-Handed Money." Naturally, it isn't so humorous to me, because of the new bungalow which isn't paid for yet, and the wife talking about a maid and a coupe; but it provided giggles for the rest of the boys and girls who accompanied us to Catalina.

Early in the year the officials decided to make this particular picture, and some genius in the front office happened to think of Cedric Bendix, the great New York actor.

"There's the man!" they said.

"Yes, sir," agreed the official "yes, sir" chorus, which can be found in any well-regulated studio. "That's the very man to play the lead in this new piece—Cedric Bendix."

And so it was. They began sending telegrams toward Forty-second street, and eventually Cedric Bendix, the celebrated Thespian, consented to come out to California and play the lead in what would be his initial appearance upon the silver sheet, so called because it isn't silver and it isn't a sheet.

Accompanied by a gentle trembling of the entire Western Continent, Cedric Bendix started from the Grand Central shed and arrived in Hollywood, flanked by his man and by five trunks filled with beautifully tailored male lingerie. An extra taxi carried his clippings. He turned out to be a high-power egotist, with an utter disdain for all motion pictures and a lofty personal manner.

MR. BENDIX was one of those actors who can strut sitting down. He was famous on Broadway, New York, and he knew it. Metropolitan critics had said in their reviews that Cedric Bendix, playing the role of Doctor Bique in the French pathological drama, "Too Late for Medicine," gave a performance of such acute realism that well persons in the audience went home sick, and some of them hovered over the grave for weeks.

Cedric's career was largely fostered and blown upon by these French therapeutic plays, which usually dealt with the indiscretions of youth, and which were, liberally speaking, the sort of plays a respectable citizen wouldn't be caught dead looking at. Nevertheless, he was renowned in New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Hoboken and Bayonne, and he naturally expected humble Hollywood to bow the bended knee and knock the servile forehead on the pavement when he hove in sight.

Hollywood did nothing of the kind. Hollywood can take more unexpected shocks than any place in the known world. Nothing astounds Hollywood, or quickens its pulse. It fools provincial persons from Chicago and New York, because it has an innocently rural appearance.

A lynx-eyed reporter from the largest Sunday paper in New York spent three months visiting the place, and all he saw was cafeterias and the lack of an art museum. He returned to Park Row and wrote a number of pitying articles, and the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce had its secretary read them aloud later on, before an audience that hadn't laughed so much in years.

Cedric Bendix started in immediately to win himself a loving cup full of carbolic acid. On his first day he looked scornfully around the studio and announced that he could, personally and unassisted, direct better pictures than the trash turned out by the imbeciles there directing. He stated, in his jolly way, that motion picture actors knew nothing about acting as an art, and were an ignorant, unambitious and vulgar lot, who would be hooted off the boards in New York. He averred that movie plays were food for children of 6 and under, and that, as far as he could see, everyone connected with the intellectual end of movie production had acquired his intellect in a livery stable.

Of course, there may have been a grain of truth in what Cedric said, but it was the way he said it. He wore a thin, baseball mustache—nine on each side—at which he plucked during his discourse. In no time at all he had endeared himself to the ladies and gentlemen of the Commonplace Corporation. They welcomed him each morning like an exposed nerve shouting a merry greeting to the dentist's oncoming drill.

And then we began making our little picture. We started on a bright Monday morning, and did a hundred or more scenes under glass. Then we packed our bags and the entire company boarded the steamer and sailed over to the serene isle of Catalina, celebrated for its goats, gum, golf and glass-bottomed boats.

Our leading lady was a nice, little fluff

CATALINA is a large, irregular mountain top, sticking up from the sea, with a cluster of little mountains sitting on the chest of the mother mountain. It was once an active volcano, I am told, and it is still more or less volcanic when George Mulberry starts yelling at his hired hands and the cameras begin buzzing.

The island provides excellent scenery for any diligent camera man with an artistic eye. Regardless of what your picture may be, if you need ocean, with a mountainous background, you purchase tickets for Catalina. I have business-managed at least two dozen companies among the goats.

The Mulberry unit was immediately quartered at the Isthmus Rancho, in a long, low, rambling house, which is now abandoned, but which was once a fine home, filled with piano lamps, phonographs and all that goes to make a domicile of affluence. The company principals occupied the big house on the hill, and the lesser fry were scattered down the side of the mountain in abandoned bungalows, which in other days had sheltered society folks on their week-end frolics.

I shared a leaky cabin with Noah Campbell, our highest-salaried villain, who is one of the calmest, quietest villains in the profession, and who does not drink, use tobacco in any form or snore in his sleep. Once I was forced, by circumstances entirely beyond my control, to try to sleep in the same cabin with Wally Young, a snoring fool—in fact, the world's champion indoor shatterer of repose; so I was glad to be paired off with Noah, who breathes through his ears after 9 o'clock.

Of course, Cedric Bendix had a large, airy room to himself in the big house.

Our leading lady was a nice, little fluff named Lillian Purcell, with large, brown eyes and just enough sense, but not any more. She was comparatively new to the business, and whenever George Mulberry yelled at her she just looked at him and burst into tears.

CEDRIC seemed to take a fancy to this Lillian person, and nobody approved of that, either. She was young and inexperienced, and whenever Cedric took her by the arm for a long stroll in the moonlight, everyone growled, especially little Ray Lougher. There probably was no occasion for alarm, because no doubt Cedric spent his time telling Lillian of his greatness, and how he was lowering himself by stepping down into the films.

It is painful enough, even in the studio, to be associated with a leading man whom everybody dislikes, but on a lonely location, where you cannot escape the pest, it is agonizing indeed. There he is, prominently, at the three daily meals. There he is, after supper, when the company throws itself into the porch chairs for a smoke. In Cedric's case, there was no avoiding him. His voice grew louder and more repellant day by day.

He found the largest and softest chair, and regaled us nightly with tales of his triumphs in New York. He told us how much they paid him. He reviewed his entire life, and repeated with gusto what David Belasco had said to him that day at the Empire opening, and what he had wittily retorted to Dave, to the latter's confusion.

Likewise, he openly flirted with the fair Lillian, who was flattered, fluttered and a bit triumphant, because, at the time, little Ray Lougher had begun to think of marrying Lillian and settling down in a permanent home. A permanent home in Hollywood, matrimonially speaking, is any home that gives the same name twice to the tax assessor.

The New York acting gentleman immediately cast little Ray into the shade, and resentment among the rest of us increased. Cedric insulted everybody who could understand the English language. He made himself pointedly disagreeable at meals, comparing the food with the sumptuous edibles to which he had been accustomed in New York. At this point Mr. Bendix touched noses with death, because our location cook was a proud, haughty and impulsive Swede, with a mixture of Indian blood, and somebody told him that Cedric said his soups tasted always exactly like dishwater, except when a fly drowned himself in the stuff, which imparted to it a slightly Mexican flavor.

Cedric grumbled over the sunshine, which was too strong for his eyes, and over the cool breeze at night, which was too chill. He moaned about the hardness of his bed. He told Mulberry that if I was in charge of the business details, the company ought to discharge me immediately and employ a competent man. He admitted that he was doing his reputation a genuine injury by stepping into motion pictures.

THERE was no escaping the Bendix voice or the Bendix person. After one week of him on Catalina the company began to act like a platoon of irritated rattlesnakes who have been dining freely on their own poison. It's queer how one disagreeable human being can utterly destroy the entente cordiale of an entire company.

Noah Campbell approached me.

"I've stood for a lot of birds in my time," said Noah, who, as I said, is easy to get along with, "but I swear I can't go this Bendix another day. Seems to me I'll just naturally blow up!"

I grunted assent, and little Ray Lougher stepped in.

"He makes me sick," Ray said. "I've been sick before, but right now I am at my sickest."

"He should have remained in New York," I added, "where he is so popular. Catalina could get on quite easily without him."

Mr. George Mulberry also paused to say a few remarks.

"What do you think of our leading man?" I asked him, after a few days of Cedric.

"Well," said George, thoughtfully, "I've directed them all, and I know. Bendix is the worst actor in the world. In the first place, he doesn't know how to act. In the second place, he hasn't enough intelligence to do what I tell him. What can you do with a gogo like that?"

"And it's too late to do anything about it."

"We'll finish up this picture," said George, "as fast as we can, and that ends the career of Mr. Bendix in Commonplace productions. As far as I'm concerned, Cedric is all washed up!"

One week before the picture was finished, and with about a hundred scenes to be taken, George Mulberry drifted into one of his usual battles with the home office. George is always fighting with the corporation about something. It wouldn't be a Mulberry special without at least one bitter fracas.

THIS time George insisted upon burning up, clear to the water's edge, the company's only three-masted schooner, which is now the Victory, but which has also been the Three Seals, the Viking, the Toreador, the Abalone and half a dozen other vessels. She changes her name with each water picture. Nice boat, too—cost the Commonplace $40,000.

The Victory is a mighty useful piece of property, and can be used for years to come. When George decided to burn her up, you could hear the roars of Commonplace executives in the remote islands of the Seven Seas. A couple of them came over to see about it.

"No, George, you cannot burn up the schooner," they said.

"The hell I can't burn up the schooner!" retorted George. "Who's making this picture?"

"You are making it, George, but we are paying for it, and we don't want our boat destroyed. We are fond of our boat."

George turned a bright pink, which is his favorite hue when indignant.

"Get me an airplane!" he shouted, though I was only a foot way. "I'm going to burn that schooner or they'll get a new boy to finish the job."

In 15 minutes I had a fast airplane warming up, and at noon George left for Hollywood, to tell the Commonplace Corporation what he thought of them. That left the Catalina unit under my command, if you forget about Archie Rivers, who is the assistant director.

George being gone, there was nothing to do, and the company went in swimming or fished for yellow tail. Noah Campbell came up the hill in the early afternoon, with a grim gleam in his blue eyes.

"Certainly gets my goat!" he muttered, shaking his head and sitting down heavily.

Of course, I knew whom he meant.

"What we ought to do," Noah continued, gazing out across the calm, blue ocean, "is to give that fellow the terrible murder."

"Go as far as you like," I said, in a moment of indiscreet impulse.

AND thus it came about, with my consent, that the boys slipped Cedric the location murder, which is not unknown in film circles. A location murder is a movie device used now and then by annoyed people to cause momentary distress or perturbation in the minds of disagreeable ones with whom they are forced to labor, and whom they have just and continued cause to dislike. Heaven knows that we had legitimate reason for disliking Cedric.

In particular, little Ray Lougher was getting raw around the neckband. Lillian Purcell, being a young idiot, and a female besides, seemed to find great delight in walking, swimming and talking with Mr. Bendix. Instead of turning away from Cedric, she smiled at him. She fully realized that Ray was miserable. Keeping a man miserable is a jolly sport to some women.

That afternoon, about 3 o'clock, the murder began to get under way, with a casual conversation between Noah Campbell and Ray Lougher, whom we had selected to be the principals. The front porch was occupied by Cedric, who lolled in the big chair. Ray and Noah came on. In the idle conversation that followed Ray announced that one of the reasons why he had lost so much money shaking dice was because Noah Campbell was generally in the game.

"Just what do you mean by that crack?" asked Noah, who was sitting on the coping and trying to light a pipe.

"What I said," Ray answered. "Whenever you're in a crap game, I lose, and so does everyone else."

"You mean I'm crooked?" continued Noah, standing up.

"Take it any way you like," Ray sneered—and he's a fine sneerer.

"You," said Noah, deliberately, "are a so-and-so; likewise a this and that!"

I purposely omit Noah's actual words, on account of innocent girls who would be sure to read them.

Little Ray got up out of his chair, poked his finger almost into Noah's eye, and began a long, hypothetical insult. I was listening. Rarely have I ever heard one man call another what Ray called Noah. It was a complete recital, going far back into Noah's history, and including some of his relations, now dead. Everything that Ray said could be translated into sudden death; but just as the incident seemed about to reach the mortuary stage, Archie Rivers, assistant, walked out and dragged the little man off the porch.

It was as bitter a quarrel as anyone ever listened to. The participants went their separate ways, muttering to themselves. Of course, Ray Lougher and Noah Campbell are bosom friends, and have always been. If you want to commit suicide, say something about Ray when Noah can hear you, or vice versa.

Cedric Bendix heard the quarrel without any particular interest.

THAT night, at supper, Noah, who generally sits beside Ray Lougher, absented himself, and there was comment. Ray ate in silence. The vacant chair seemed to stick out like a sore thumb.

When the meal was over, Ray invited Cedric to walk down the hill with him to his bungalow, which is a squat little cabin half a mile from the big house, surrounded by trees. Cedric went along with Ray.

At 7:10 Cedric was in Ray's cabin listening to a few words from Ray on the general topic of what a bum Noah was. The door opened, and Noah entered. His face was redder than usual, his stride was unsteady, and there was a wicked look in his eyes. He was unusually drunk—extraordinarily drunk, considering that he doesn't drink—and smoldering with rage.

Cedric glanced at him with an amused smile. The quarrel of the afternoon was immediately renewed. Cedric inhaled cigarette smoke and listened. Noah's rage increased momentarily, and Ray answered him with as good as he gave. Thus the battle worked up to its natural climax, which arrived when Noah pulled a gun, poked it against Ray's wishbone, and shot him dead. A capsule of red ink helped the illusion.

Mr. Bendix, who had so often given his unfavorable opinion of Hollywood actors, turned a dirty, grayish white, and gulped. With the shot, the body toppled into a cot

The Microbe Hunters

He Tried 606 Arsenic Compounds and at Last Found the Magic Bullet

Paul Ehrlich, Possibly the Greatest Scientist of the Microbe Hunting Line, Was a Gay Man Who Smoked Black Cigars and Got His Medals Mixed Up, but He Stuck to His Conviction That Disease Germs Could Be Shot, and After Years of Tests He Gave to the World His Famous Specific, Salvarsan, Which Throttles the Ancient Disease.

By PAUL DE KRUIF

CHAPTER 11.

PAUL EHRLICH—who brings this history to the happy end necessary to all serious histories—was a gay man. He smoked twenty-five cigars a day; he was fond of drinking a seidel of beer (publicly) with his old laboratory servant and many seidels of beer with German, English and American colleagues; a modern man, there was still something medieval about him for he said: "We must learn to shoot microbes with magic bullets." He was laughed at for saying that, and his enemies cartooned him under the name, "Doktor Phantasus."

But he did make a magic bullet. Alchemist that he was, he did something more than that, for he changed a drug that is the favorite poison of murderers into a saver of the lives of men. Out of arsenic he concocted a deliverer from the scourge of that pale, corkscrew microbe whose bite is the cause of syphilis.

Paul Ehrlich was born in March of 1854 in Silesia in Germany, he went to the gymnasium at Breslau, and his teacher of literature ordered him to write an essay, subject: "Life is a Dream."

"Life rests on normal oxidations," wrote that bright, young Jew, Paul Ehrlich. "Dreams are an activity of the brain and the activities of the brain are only oxidations . . . dreams are a sort of phosphorescence of the brain."

He got a bad mark for such smartness, but then he was always getting bad marks. Out of the gymnasium, he went to a medical school, or rather, to three or four medical schools. It was the opinion of the distinguished medical faculties of Breslau and Strasbourg and Freiburg and Leipsic that he was no ordinary student. It was also their opinion he was an abnominably bad student, which meant that Paul Ehrlich refused to memorize the ten thousand and fifty long words supposed to be needed for the cure of sick patients.

Such was the gayety of Paul Ehrlich, and such his modesty—for he was always making straight-faced jokes at his own ridiculousness—that he easily won friends, and he was a crafty man, too, and saw to it that certain of these friends were men in high places. Presently, in 1896, he was director of a laboratory of his own; it was called the Royal Prussian Institute for Serum Testing. It was at Steglitz, near Berlin, and it had one little room that had been a bakery and another little room that had been a stable.

EHRLICH pulled his wires and cajoled his influential friends, and presently the indispensable and estimable Mr. Kadereit, his chief cook and bottle-washer, was dismantling that laboratory at Steglitz—they were moving to Frankfort-on-the-Main, away from the vast medical schools and scientific buzzings of Berlin.

Paul Ehrlich got his ideas out of books. He lived among scientific books and subscribed to every chemical journal in every language he could read, and in several he couldn't read. Books littered his laboratory so that when visitors came and Ehrlich said: "I beg, be seated," there was no place for them to sit at all. Journals stuck out of the pockets of his overcoat—when he remembered to wear one—and the maid, bringing his coffee in the morning, fell over ever-growing mountains of books in his bedroom. Books, with the help of those expensive cigars, kept Paul Ehrlich poor. Mice built nests in the vast piles of books on the old sofa in his office. And what was important inside of those books, was in the brain of Paul Ehrlich, ripening, changing itself into those outlandish ideas of his, waiting to be used. That was where Paul Ehrlich got his ideas—and queer things happened to those ideas of others when they stewed in Ehrlich's brain.

So now, in 1901, at the beginning of his eight-year search for the magic bullet, he read of the researches of Alphonse Laveran. Laveran was the man, you remember, who discovered the malaria microbe, and very lately Laveran had taken to fussing with trypanosomes. He had shot those finned devils, which do evil things to the hindquarters of horses and give them a disease called the mal de Caderas, a decay, into mice. Laveran had watched those trypanosomes kill those mice, one hundred times out of one hundred. Then Laveran had injected arsenic under the skins of some of those suffering mice. That had helped them a little, and killed many of the trypanosomes that gnawed at them, but none of these mice ever got really better; one hundred out of one hundred died and that was as far as Alphonse Laveran ever got.

But reading this was enough to get Ehrlich started. "Ho! here is an excellent microbe to work with. It is large and easy to see. It is easy to grow in mice. It always kills mice. What could be a better microbe than this trypanosome to use to try to find a magic bullet to cure? Because, if I could find a dye that would save, completely save, just one mouse."

So Paul Ehrlich, in 1902, set out on his hunt. He provided himself with plenty of the healthiest mice. He got himself a most earnest and diligent Japanese doctor, Shiga, Peering through chemical journals like some Rosicrucian in search of the formula for the philosopher's stone, Ehrlich came across a wicked drug.

to do the patient job of watching those mice, of snipping a bit off the ends of their tails to get a drop of blood to look for the trypanosomes, of snipping another bit off the ends of the same tails to get a drop of blood to inject into the next mouse.

They tried nearly five hundred dyes. It was the method of trial and sweating. Ehrlich tried; Shiga sweat. Their mice turned blue from this dye and yellow from that one, but the beastly, finned trypanosomes of the mal de Caderas swarmed gayly in their veins, and killed those mice, one hundred out of every hundred.

But then, in 1903, came a day when one of these wrong explanations came to help him.

Ehrlich was testing the pretty-colored but complicated benzo-purpurin dyes on dying mice, but the mice were dying, with sickening regularity, from the mal de Caderas. Paul Ehrlich wrinkled his forehead and he told Shiga:

"These dyes do not spread enough through the mouse's body. Maybe, my dear Shiga, if we change it a little—maybe, let us say, if we added sulfo-groups to this dye, it would dissolve better in the blood of the mouse."

Presently back from the dye factory came that benzo-purpurin color, with the sulfo-groups properly stuck onto it, "changed a little."

Under the skin of two white mice Shiga shot the evil trypanosomes of the mal de Caderas. A day passes. Two days go by. The eyes of those mice begin to stick shut with the mucilage of doom, their hair stands up straight with their dread of destruction—one day more and it will be all over with both of those mice. . . . But wait. Under the skin of one of those two mice Shiga sends a shot of that red dye—changed a little. In a few minutes the ears of that mouse turned red, the whites of his nearly shut eyes turn pinker than the pink of his albino pupils. That day is a day of fate for Paul Ehrlich, for those fell trypanosomes melt out of the blood of that mouse.

PAUL EHRLICH, by the grace of a dye called "Trypan Red," has saved him. How that encouraged this already too courageous man. "I have a dye to cure a mouse—I shall find one to save a million men," so dreamed that confident German Jew.

But not at once. With gruesome diligence Shiga shot in that trypan red, and some mice got better but others got worse. One, seeming to be cured, would frisk about its cage, and then, after sixty days, would turn up seedy in the morning. Snip went an end of its tail, and the skillful Shiga would call Paul Ehrlich to see its blood matted with a writhing swarm of the fell trypanosomes of the mal de Caderas.

The trypanosome of David Bruce's nagana and the deadly trypanosome of human sleeping sickness laughed at that trypan red. They absolutely refused to be touched by it. Then, what worked so beautifully with mice, failed completely when they came to try it on white rats and guinea-pigs and dogs. Paul Ehrlich had learned one lesson: change an apparently useless dye, a little, and it turns from a merely pretty color into something of a cure. That was enough to drive forward this too confident man.

A GREAT stroke of luck came in 1906. Mrs. Franziska Speyer, the widow of the rich banker, Georg Speyer, gave him a great sum of money to build the Georg Speyer House, to buy glassware and mice and expert chemists, who could put together the most complicated of his darling dyes with a twist of the wrist, who could make even the crazy drugs that Ehrlich invented on paper.

Ehrlich came across a wicked drug. It was called "Atoxyl," which means: "Not poisonous." Not poisonous? Atoxyl had almost cured mice with sleeping sickness. Atoxyl had killed mice without sleeping sickness. Atoxyl had been tried on those poor Negroes down in Africa. It had not cured them, but an altogether embarrassing number of those Negroes had gone blind, stone blind, from Atoxyl before they had had time to die from sleeping sickness. This Atoxyl was made of a benzene ring, which is nothing more than six atoms of carbon chasing themselves round in a circle like a dog running round biting the end of his tail, and four atoms of hydrogen, and some ammonia and the oxide of arsenic—which everybody knows is poisonous.

"We will change it a little," said Paul Ehrlich, though he knew the chemists who had invented Atoxyl had said it was so built that it couldn't be changed without spoiling it. But every afternoon Ehrlich fussed around alone in his chemical laboratory.

Paul Ehrlich found that you can change Atoxyl, not a little but a lot, that it can be built into heaven knows how many entirely unheard-of compounds of arsenic, without spoiling the combination of benzene and arsenic at all.

Without his hat or coat Ehrlich hurried out of this dingy room to the marvelous workshop of Bertheim, chief of his chemist slaves. "Atoxyl can be changed—maybe we can change it into a hundred, a thousand new compounds of arsenic," he exclaimed.

For the next two years the whole staff toiled in that laboratory. They tried this, they did that, with six hundred and six—that is their exact number—different compounds of arsenic. These slaves worked as only men can work when they are inspired by a wrinkle-browed fanatic with kind, gray eyes.

They changed Atoxyl. They developed marvelous compounds of arsenic which would really cure mice. "We have it," the staff would be ready to shout, but then, worse luck, when the fell trypanosomes of the mal de Caderas had gone, those marvelous cures turned the blood of the cured mice to water, or killed them with a fatal jaundice. And some of those arsenic remedies made mice dance, not for a minute but for the rest of their lives round and round they whirled, up and down they jumped.

They invented countless compounds, and it was a business for despair. There was that strange affair of the arsenic fastness. When Ehrlich found that one big dose of a compound was too dangerous for his beasts, he tried to cure them by giving them a lot of little doses. But, curse it! The trypanosomes became immune to the arsenic, and refused to be killed off at all, and the mice died in droves.

Such was the grim procession through the first five hundred and ninety-one compounds of arsenic. So Paul Ehrlich came, in 1909, to his day of days.

PAUL EHRLICH stumbled onto the famous preparation 606—though you understand he could never have found it without the aid of that expert, Bertheim. Product of the most subtle chemical synthesis was this 606, dangerous to make because of the peril of explosions and fire from those constantly present ether vapors, and so hard to keep—the least trace of air changed it from a mild stuff to a terrible poison.

That was the celebrated preparation 606, and it rejoiced in the name: "Dioxy-diamino-arsenobenzol-dihydro-chloride." Its deadly effect on trypanosomes was as great as its name was long. At a swoop one shot of it cleaned those fell trypanosomes of the mal de Caderas out of the blood of a mouse—a wee bit of it cleaned them out without leaving a single one to carry news or tell the story.

606 was safe, 606 would cure the mal de Caderas, which was nice for mice and the hindquarters of horses, but what next? Next was that Paul Ehrlich made a lucky stab, that came from reading a theory with no truth in it. First Paul Ehrlich read—it had happened in 1906—of the discovery by the German zoologist, Schaudinn, of a thin, pale, spiral-shaped microbe that looked like a corkscrew without a handle. Schaudinn spied out this pale microbe looking like a corkscrew without a handle. He named it the spirocheta pallida.

Of course Paul Ehrlich read about that, but it particularly stuck in Ehrlich's memory that Schaudinn had said: "This pale spirochete belongs to the animal kingdom, it is not like the bacteria. Indeed, it is closely related to the trypanosomes. Spirochetes may sometimes turn into trypanosomes."

Now, it was hardly more than a guess of Schaudinn that spirochetes had anything to do with trypanosomes, but it set Paul Ehrlich aflame.

"If the pale spirochete is a cousin of the trypanosome of the mal de Caderas—then 606 ought to hit that spirochete. . . . What kills trypanosomes should kill their cousins."

HE GAVE vast orders. Presently regiments of fine, male rabbits trooped into the Georg Speyer House in Frankfort-on-the-Main, and with these creatures came a small and most diligent Japanese microbe hunter, S. Hata. This S. Hata was accurate. He was capable. He could stand the strain of doing the same experiment a dozen times over and he could, so nimble was this S. Hata, do a dozen experiments at the same time. So he suited the uses of Ehrlich, who was a thorough man, do not forget it.

Hata started out by doing long tests with 606 on spirochetes not so pale or so dangerous. There was that spirochete fatal to chickens. Chickens and roosters whose blood swarmed with that microbe received their shot of 606. Next day the chickens were clucking and roosters strutting.

On the 31st of August, 1909, Paul Ehrlich and Hata stood before a cage in which sat an excellent buck rabbit. Flourishing in every way was this rabbit, excepting for a place on his skin which was disfigured with two ulcers, each bigger than a twenty-five-cent piece. These sores were caused by the gnawing of the microbes of syphilis. They had been put under the skin of that rabbit by S. Hata a month before.

"Make the injection," said Paul Ehrlich. And into the ear vein of that rabbit went the clear, yellow fluid of the solution of 606.

Next day there was not one of those spiral devils to be found. The ulcers were drying already. Good clean scabs were forming on them. In less than a month there was nothing to be seen but tiny scabs.

This was Paul Ehrlich's day of days. This was the magic bullet. But at night, sitting in the almost unbreathable fog of cigar smoke in his study, alone, among those piles of books and journals that heaped up fantastic shadows round him, sitting there before the pads of blue and green and yellow and orange note paper on which every night he scrawled hieroglyphic directions for the next day's work of his scientific slaves, Paul Ehrlich, noted as a man of action, whispered:

"Is it safe?"

At bottom Paul Ehrlich was a gambler, as who of the great line of the microbe hunters has not been?

And before that sore on the first rabbit had shed its last scab, Paul Ehrlich had written to his friend, Dr. Konrad Alt: "Will you be so good as to try this new preparation, 606, on human beings with syphilis?"

Alt wrote back: "Certainly."

What of the morals of this? When Metchnikoff was making experiments with a preventative salve, some had cried, "It will remove the penalty of immorality." And Metchnikoff answered: "It has been objected that the attempt to prevent the spread of this disease is immoral. But since morals have never prevented the spread of this disease in centuries, the immoral thing is to restrain any available means we have of combating it."

CAME 1910, and that was Paul Ehrlich's year. One day, that year, he walked into the scientific congress at Koenigsberg, and there was applause. It was frantic, it was long, you would think they were never going to let Paul Ehrlich say his say. He told of how the magic bullet had been found at last.

There was much applause.

Never has it been better earned, for that day Paul Ehrlich had led searchers around a corner.

But, to every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. What is true in the realm of lifeless things is true in the lives of such men as Paul Ehrlich. The whole world bawled for salvarsan. That was what Ehrlich called compound six hundred and six. Then, in the laboratory of the Georg Speyer House, Bertheim and 10 assistants turned out hundreds of thousands of doses of this marvelous stuff. They did the job of a chemical factory in their small laboratory, in the dangerous fumes of ether, in the fear that one little slip might rob a hundred men and women of life, for it was two-edged stuff, that salvarsan. And Ehrlich? Now he was only a shell of a man, with diabetes—and why did he keep on smoking more cigars?—now Ehrlich burned the candle in the middle.

He was everywhere in the Georg Speyer House. He directed the making of compounds that would be still more wonderful—so he hoped. He kept careful records of every one of the 65,000 doses of salvarsan injected in the year 1910.

As the list grew, there were records of most extraordinary cures, but there were reports it was not pleasant to read, too, records that told of death—every now and then a death in people who had no business dying, coming right after injections of salvarsan.

How he worked to explain them. How he wore himself to a shred to avoid them, for Paul Ehrlich was not a hard-boiled man. He made experiments; he conducted immense correspondences in which he asked minute questions of just how the injections had been made.

PAUL EHRLICH, a gay man, but every inch a scientist.

An Outline of 'Microbe Hunters'

TODAY'S installment is the final chapter of Paul de Kruif's great book, "Microbe Hunters," published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., and concludes the series. It deals with the search of Paul Ehrlich for a "magic bullet" with which to kill microbes and describes his ultimate success which came only after he had experimented for years and tried out 606 different compounds of arsenic.

Through the preceding installments the reader has followed the growth of microbe hunting from a curious pastime to a science, which probably has done more to save human life than any other science. Beginning with Leeuwenhoek, the discoverer of the microbe, the book traces the search through the lives of Spallanzani, Pasteur, Koch, Roux and Behring, Metchnikoff, Theobald Smith, Bruce, Ross and Grassi, and Walter Reed, showing how the failures of one led to the triumphs of another.

ner and lay there, with the face against the wall.

Ray Lougher has often been killed in Mulberry productions, and his dying is almost always a bit of genuine art. He can pass out more spasmodically than any other man I know, and he did a bit of his best dying for Cedric.

Still holding his smoking gun, and with his face distorted by savage rage, Noah Campbell turned his attention to Mr. Bendix. Cedric rose up from his chair and started to leave, but Noah waved him down. This was at 7:15, Catalina time, because our homicide was running on schedule.

"And you!" said Noah. "I may as well finish the job and put a hole through you!"

"Oh, please don't do that!" Cedric begged, taking on the color of ripe limburger. "I never did anything to you!"

"You saw me kill him," Noah growled. "You're a witness. I can kill you where you sit, stick the gun in your hand, and one in his, and claim you croaked each other. That lets me out."

Cedric attempted to talk, but only a faint sound came from between his chattering teeth. I have always regretted that I didn't see him during this large moment.

"You wouldn't kill me?" he said, finally.

"You're no good!" Noah shouted. "You're a faker and a pest, and you ought to be dead, anyhow! I'd be doing the human race a favor if I laid you and that skunk in the corner in the same grave!"

Cedric rose up again, as if to protest, but Noah waggled the gun at him, and New York's foremost actor dropped in his chair with a smothered sob.

During the next 10 minutes Noah paced insanely to and fro in the lonely mountain shack, with the body of his victim still warm in one corner and a chattering coward in the other. It was Noah's intention to walk and debate thus—whether to shoot Cedric and remove the only eye-witness, or to swear him to eternal secrecy and let him live.

AFTER 10 minutes of this, Noah was to decide upon letting Cedric remain a live actor. He was then to administer some frightful sort of oath, which he would think up on the spur of the moment, the object being everlasting dumbness. Cedric was to be forced to his knees, and to swear by the seven sacred swans that he saw Ray Lougher attack Noah and lose his life in the battle that followed.

It was a fair enough plan, but, as often happens with fair plans, a button came off in an important place.

At the time there were 22 members of the Mulberry company on Catalina, some of them in the big house and others in tents and cabins. It was my job to load the entire assemblage, actors, near-actors, camera men, electricians, props and all, into a six-ton truck and drive to Ray Lougher's cabin at what might be called the psychological instant. This would be at the striking of half-past 7, at the moment when Cedric Bendix would be on his knees, with his right hand raised to heaven. At least, we assumed he would take any sort of oath rather than be shot.

We would burst upon the scene, laughing heartily, and pointing the finger of scorn at the annoyed Cedric, who would have to admit he had been badly taken in by a couple of movie actors of no great renown. He would also feel sort of cheap, we expected, and we would have a good deal of fun joshing him.

I was to drive the truck with my own fair hands, and I did so. Ten minutes before the zero hour, I loaded up with ladies and gentlemen, all quivering with expectation. Everyone had been acquainted with the joke and wanted to be in at the finish, and so I started with a full load.

We giggled and chuckled all the way down the long hill, in anticipation of the ridiculous sight that would presently meet our eyes. In advance, we could just about see the embarrassment and annoyance of Mr. Bendix, and hear him tell us that he had known it was a joke all the time.

AS SOME great prophet has truly said, no bird seeth into the future, or if he seeth, he seeth wrong. As we rumbled around a turn in the rocky lane leading to the Lougher cabin, I glanced up from my job of steering, and, looking off toward the dim, distant sky line, I seemed to perceive something bounding from peak to peak. It was a mountain goat, I thought. They are always bounding thither and yon, and the island is full of them.

Twenty-two or more anticipatory souls debarked from the motor vehicle at my low command, and we started to surround the cabin; but I almost immediately observed that something unexpected must have occurred. There was no one inside the shack—not a soul. Instead of finding Cedric Bendix with upraised hand, and Noah about to shoot him, we found complete silence. The shack was abandoned.

Presently, as I stood there in the dark, surrounded by my wondering company, there was a crashing noise in the underbrush, and Ray Lougher dashed into the open, out of breath, and covered with pine needles. A moment later, Noah Campbell burst into our midst from the opposite direction.

"He's gone!" Noah gulped, struggling with his breath.

Exit Me and Cedric

Noah had paced to and fro realistically, wondering whether to let Cedric live or shoot him where he sat.

"Cedric's gone?" I said, thinking instantly of the goatlike figure on the horizon.

"Where's he gone?"

"He went right smack bang out of the window," said Ray, who had entirely recovered from being shot to death, and was now more agitated than Cedric had been.

"How long since?"

"Five minutes ago."

We bade them inform us, and they did so.

IT SEEMS that, prior to our coming, Ray had gone on being dead in his corner, with a trickle of gore from his mythical wound, while Noah had paced to and fro realistically, wondering whether to let Cedric live or shoot him where he sat. Cedric's chair happened, by the merest chance, to be immediately in front of a window, and the New York matinee idol must have concluded, after deep thought, that conditions on the outside of the window would be more pleasing to him.

When Noah turned his back, in one of his angry pacings, Mr. Bendix did a flying leap that would probably have endeared him to the two-reel comedy people. He went through the window, taking a portion of the frame with him.

Outside the cabin was a shallow ravine, and Cedric fell into this. He must have recovered immediately and started running. It was Cedric I saw when I thought I saw a mountain goat.

"He might have injured himself," said Noah in a concerned voice. "It is quite a drop into that ditch."

"Where do you suppose Cedric is going?" I asked, the least mite worried.

"This joke," Ray remarked, "don't seem to be working out exactly right. Not exactly. We gummed it up!"

"I don't know when I ever saw a man so scared," said Noah.

THE FIRST PAGE OF THIS MAGAZINE

"PORTRAIT IN PROFILE," by Irving R. Wiles, is the work reproduced as the cover of this week's Magazine. It is the first of a series of covers from the twenty-first annual exhibition of paintings by American artists now on view at the Art Museum. The exhibition comprises a hundred works selected as representative of the sincere and recognized phases of painting in America. It includes virtually every type of subject by artists from almost every section of the country.

Wiles, who owes his celebrity chiefly to his portraits, is a native of New York State, having been born at Utica on April 8, 1861. He was first a pupil of his father, L. M. Wiles, and later of Chase and of Beckwith in New York and of Carolus-Duran in Paris.

Medals have been awarded to his works on numerous occasions in the last 25 years, one having been received at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. One of his better known pictures, "Lady Betty," is the property of the Art Museum and others of his works are hung in the Corcoran Gallery at Washington, the Metropolitan Museum in New York, the City Hall of Brooklyn and in the United States Military Academy at West Point. The "Portrait in Profile" is a portrait of the artist's daughter.

MR. GEORGE MULBERRY, the well-known director of canned entertainment, arrived on Catalina, fresh from his conference with the officials of the Commonplace Corporation, about 14 hours after Cedric departed. George had lost his battle. He was not going to burn the schooner. When he stepped out of his airplane his mood was testy and his manner abrupt.

"Where's Bendix?" he asked, first of all. I stepped forward, like Horatius or Marco Polo.

"He's gone," I said.

"Where's he gone?" George continued. "I want to finish this so-and-so picture in a hurry."

"He has left us," I said. "I doubt if he is going to be with us from now on."

"What do you mean?" George asked, loud and clear.

I gradually made George understand that Cedric had pulled his freight.

"You mean he's left us flat?" George asked, entirely bewildered, and getting ready to howl louder than ever.

I nodded.

"George," I said, "I wouldn't be surprised if Cedric was heading for Russia right now."

"Why?" George stormed. "Why did he go?"

I swallowed a long breath and told the truth, giving myself the full responsibility.

"And you let this happen!" George ruminated, lowering his voice to human tones, which always means "stormy, with hurricanes" for those around him. "You're the business manager, and you let this thing occur, the minute I go away!"

I admitted it.

George strolled off without another word, and I realized that Tommy Whiteman was going to meet a stranger with dark hair, and get a letter, and also take a journey.

I GOT the letter next morning. It was one of those two-line documents, which can be read quickly, and which should never be shown to one's wife.

That is why, when you see "Left-Handed Money" on the screen, you begin to wonder about the leading character and his strange conduct as the piece nears its finish. George had to use a substitute actor, and naturally he had to keep the fellow a long way from the camera. All the closing shots are long shots. When you see the distant hero kiss the distant heroine, you feel entitled to a close-up of the closing smack, but you don't get it. I got it.

As said in the beginning, reputable firms wishing to communicate with a high-class business manager and efficiency expert, please wire collect. That bungalow of mine is far from paid for.

I feel no regrets over the Catalina Island incident, because regrets are vain. Anyhow, Ray Lougher and Lillian Purcell have about decided to be married; and who knows what might have happened if Cedric Bendix had continued to hang around Hollywood, with his fine city ways?

(Copyright for the Post-Dispatch.)

Thereupon, with my full consent and urging, the Mulberry unit spent the rest of that long, chill night hunting the mountain wilds in search of a New York actor, with fear in his eye. We did not find him, though we examined every crag and cranny between Avalon and the Island of the Sitting Birds. When morning came creeping over the distant peaks, we were still prowling, in an effort to find the gentleman and explain that it was all nothing but a crude Western jest.

At 11 o'clock that morning I learned definitely that Cedric Bendix would not be found on Catalina. Joe Leavitt, who owns a string of power boats, brought us news.

"I took a fellow across," said Joe. "He seemed to be in a hurry."

WE FIGURED it out. Mr. Bendix had run himself violently over a couple of tall mountain ranges, and had eventually come to the sea. He had roused up Joe Leavitt about 11 o'clock the previous night, and had hired him to kick life into a motor launch and start for San Pedro, which is 32 miles across the channel. Assuming the need to be urgent, Joe had transported our Mr. Bendix to the mainland.

There, as I learned in later days, Cedric had kept on going with unabated zest. Without even a change of collar or shirt, and carrying no baggage beyond a pocket knife, Cedric kept it up until he planted himself in an eastbound transcontinental train, where he probably hid behind a water cooler until they pulled out.

I assume that in due time he arrived in New York. He has never returned to the land of glorious opportunity. I doubt if he will ever come back, because he regards us as a low and unpleasant lot.

THE SENECAS AT HOME

AN INDIAN exhibit depicting the homelife of the Senecas, historic doorkeepers of the council chamber of the Iroquois Confederacy, is one of the interesting phases of the Rochester Municipal Museum, which is being designed to visualize the history of New York State. Actual Seneca houses, completely furnished, even to the figures of Indians engaged at their routine household tasks, have been erected by Indians, under supervision of experts in ethnology.

The first Indian lodge to be set upon the museum floor is that of a Seneca bark dwelling, intended to correct an erroneous impression that the Eastern Indians lived in wigwams like those who roamed the Western plains. All the Eastern tribes lived in huts. In the exhibition houses all the furniture and utensils are arranged in their proper places instead of being arrayed in varnished cases, a method which is fast being supplanted by the lifelike reproduction in natural setting. The plan is not to display relics and curiosities, but to interpret and depict the life of various periods now long passed or too remote for the ordinary museum visitor to see at close range. The procedure, the directors explain, eliminates the necessity for visitors to tread ground for the individual exhibits, a labor which falls to appeal to the majority who visit the museums for an hour's pleasure now and then.

Cases filled with Indian implements explain the periods of Indian occupation as archeology shows it, and on another floor of the museum the beginning of white men's penetration into the habitat of the native American is shown. The Senecas have generally been conceded by authorities to have been the most intelligent, numerous and powerful of the six tribes which formed the league of the Iroquois along with the Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondagas, Cayugas and Tuscaroras, a Confederacy which occupied the whole of the central portion of the State from the Hudson to Lake Erie.

The wrinkles deepened to ditches on his forehead. The circles darkened under those gray eyes that still, but not so often, danced with that owlish humor.

So this compound six hundred and six, saving its thousands from death and misery, began killing its tens. Paul Ehrlich wore his too feeble body to a shadow, trying to explain a mystery too deep for explanation. There is no light on that mystery now, 10 years after Ehrlich smoked the last of his black cigars.

But alas! What is the chemistry of what this subtle 606 does to the still more subtle—and unknown—machine that is the human body? Nothing is known about it even now. Paul Ehrlich paid the penalty for his fault—which may be forgiven him, seeing the blessings he has brought to men—his fault of not foreseeing that once in every so many thousands of bodies a magic bullet may shoot two ways. But, then, microbe hunters of the great line have always been gamblers: let us think of the good, brave adventurer Paul Ehrlich was and the thousands he has saved.

It is as sure as the sun following the dawn of tomorrow that there will be other microbe hunters to mold other magic bullets, surer, safer bullets, to wipe out for always the most malignant microbes of which this history has told. Let us remember Paul Ehrlich, who broke this trail.

Paul Ehrlich was a gay man, who carried his medals about with him all mixed up in a box, never knowing which ones to wear on what night. He was an impulsive man who has, on occasion, run out of his bedroom in his shirt tail to greet a fellow microbe hunter who came to call him out for an evening of wassail.

And he was an owlish man! "You say a great work of the mind, a wonderful achievement?" he repeated after a worshiper who told him that was what the discovery of 606 was.

"My dear colleague," said Paul Ehrlich, "for seven years of misfortune I had one moment of good luck."

Mrs. Dumbly

At Barber Shop.
She Gets a Hair Cut.
Chatting All the While.
Artie and Others Walk Out.

MEN are such a nuisance in a barber shop! Yesterday when I went to my favorite barber shop to have myself and my husband trimmed—Artie's hair weighs heavily on my mind, though there isn't enough of it to bear down very heavily on me—I found at least half of the chairs and all that weren't occupied by women—occupied with men.

In fact, one of them, with a head so slick that a fly couldn't have walked across it without breaking its leg, lay back in my own personal chair smoking his cigarette as though he intended to remain there all day. As I hate to wait around in barber shops I stepped up close behind him and, raising my voice slightly, said: "Oh, I'm tired from shopping all morning! I wish I could sit down. I suppose this chair will be ready for me in a moment, though."

The shiny-pated creature flicked the ashes from his cigarette impudently and, turning his face, faced me. Then I saw that he'd never had a shave—except where his eyebrows had been pruned down—and that his complexion was buried under several strata of cold cream and powder.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," I apologized. "I thought you were a man!"

Raising the remnants of her eyebrows haughtily, she retired behind a barrage of powder, and, realizing that it would be an hour at least before I could have that chair, I slipped into the one next to it, which was vacated at that moment. A man had been waiting for it, but I knew that, being a gentleman, he'd be glad to have me have it. I left the shop, but, as I said in the beginning, men are a nuisance in barber shops.

I EXPLAINED to the barber that I'd never had a haircut that I really liked, but that he might do the best he could. And do be careful of that little point at the back of my neck," I warned him. "Let me hold the mirror while you do it. No—not. Don't begin yet. Don't cut it until I ask my husband what he thinks about it. Artie, do you like my hair in a little point at the back of my neck?"

But Artie had found a chair and lay torpid under the influence of lather.

Although there was another man being shaved in the chair between us, I called to him: "Artie, do you like the little point at the back of my neck?"

"Glub," he said, in a voice rich with lather. "Glub, shzzzsh. Don't she any point to it."

"Why, it's the point of the whole thing," I answered, indignantly. "Don't do a thing to my hair until my husband comes out from under his lather. I wonder how I'd better have the side done. I might have a little curl over each ear. Artie, would you like me with a swirl over each ear? Do you think you would, Artie?"

"Shoot go," he blithered.

"Of course," I mused, "I might have it waved in that sort of washboard effect that so many people have now. Artie, would you like me with my hair waved?"

I lost his reply, for the man in the chair next to me made a horrible noise in his throat, and the two men standing behind him got up and left, one of them remarking: "They don't lie when they say the conversation in barber shops isn't fit to listen to."

I DIDN'T have time to fathom out the meaning of his remark, for the barber now was actually making motions as though he were going to cut my hair before I was ready, and I couldn't attend to it just then, for Artie's barber was about to begin on his, and I wanted to see that he did it to suit me.

"I've never liked the way my husband was trimmed," I explained to him. "His hair is always cut too short around his temples. And now, while I superintend my husband's temples, you might do something to my hair," I told my own barber. "I had considered having a boy bob, with my ears showing. Artie, shall I have a boy bob? Would you like me with my ears showing? Answer me, Artie. Would you like to see my ears?"

Here another man created a disturbance by getting up and leaving, but I hardly had time to notice him, for the barber was cutting the hair at the back of Artie's neck.

"Be sure to cut off those peninsulas that run down toward his collar," I directed. "And thin out the stubble on the back of his head more gradually. When the hairline begins too suddenly his head has a flat appearance. You don't mind me saying so, Artie; but you know your head it too flat in the back. And, now, shall I have a little curl in the middle of my forehead? Artie, would you like me with a curl in the middle of my forehead?"

And then I realized that three more men were leaving and that Artie, my Artie, was going with them.

"Where are you going?" I called after him. "I'll join you after I've had my hair cut."

"You can't," he replied. "I'm going to Mike's Lunchroom. Used to be a saloon. Only place in town where women aren't allowed."

And then the few men who were left in the place laughed. Yes, men are a nuisance in barber shops!

Two Inventions.
Straws for Bathers.
Hunters Use Them, Too.
The First Telephone Exchange.

AMERICA was now taking its place with the rest of the world in the arts and sciences and the year 1899 saw two great inventions, by citizens of the United States, which were universally hailed as revolutionary and daring. The first of these was the invention of the straw, by Paul Whelton, a Boston newspaper man. Mr. Whelton worked on the paper nights and in the daytime held a position as lifeguard at Revere Beach. In those days the Atlantic Ocean in the vicinity of Boston was way over your head and Revere bathers were being drowned by the thousands, despite the courage and resourcefulness of Mr. Whelton and his two assistants, Nick Flatley and Mel Webb.

The chief lifeguard sat on the beach day after day, for months and months, watching the drowners drown and trying to figure out what was the matter. The idea came to him all of a heap.

"The idea came to me all of a heap," was the way he afterward expressed it.

It occurred to him all of a heap that as each drowner was drowning for the third time, he seemed to appear to be clutching. And there was NOTHING TO CLUTCH AT!

"If they just had something to clutch at!" thought Mr. Whelton, and that night, as he worked at the copy desk in the newspaper office, he thought suddenly of a straw, and the problem was solved.

RESIGNING from the paper, he started the quantity manufacture of straw, and in a few days appeared on the beach with an armload of the new commodity. As each bather came out of the bathhouse Mr. Whelton approached him in a friendly way and said, smilingly: "Have a straw."

(Editor's note: Haverstraw, New Jersey, is said to have been named after Mr. Whelton.)

People kept on drowning, but it was soon found that there was less danger if they bathed in straw stacks than in the ocean.

Mr. Whelton would not take money for the straws doled out for clutching purposes, but he soon found two other uses for his invention, in which his conscience did not prevent acceptance of financial return. He began selling straws to the Weather Bureau and to sailors, outfielders and golfers, so they could tell which way the wind was blowing. And also, along about this time, the sport of camel hunting became quite popular through New England. "The ship of the desert" was very good eating, as well as sufficiently foxy and elusive to make the pursuit interesting. New England camels, however, were deathly afraid of horses, horses, horses, and you had to hunt them on foot.

And after you had walked miles and miles for a camel, and finally caught up with him, there was no sure way of bringing him down. He scoffed at bullets, sniggered over knife thrusts and turned up his nose at lethal poisons. After endless experimenting by the wealthy nimrods of Beacon street, Brookline and South Boston, it was found that a straw would reek havioc with his vertebrae. Mr. Whelton's fortune was made.

The other invention of that year was the telephone. They are still trying to find the guy.

The first telephone exchange had only one number, Central 1. All the subscribers had to take that for their number, and when you called up, there was no telling whom you would get.

(Editor's note: This is still true today.)

(Author's note: You spoke a full quart.)

THERE was no rate by the month, each subscriber being charged a nickel per call. It made interesting gambling, dropping a nickel in the slot and then waiting to find out who would answer. If you expected, for example, to talk to, say, Flo Ziegfeld and a sweet voice at the other end of the line announced, "This is Neysa McMein," or, "This is Florence O'Denishawn," you had the same thrill as when a 50-to-1 shot which you have bet on at the track finishes first. Personally, I always played in tough luck. I would call up Marilyn Miller and get Heywood Broun; or try for one of the Dolly Sisters and obtain Percy Hammond. It was an outrage.

The nickel-a-call system lasted until the repeal of the law preventing women from talking to one another. When women were at length permitted to call each other up, the company went into the hands of a telephone receiver because it was taking in only 5 cents a day.

In 1900 Robert Fulton invented and tried to introduce the automatic, or dial, telephone. His invention was turned down, unwillingly, by the phone trust, in compliance with a petition from people in the then infantile motion picture industry, who argued that the strain of attempting to learn the alphabet would reek havioc with their art.

How "Bill and the Missus" Found a Home at Hollist

Frank C. Salisbury, Who Feeds His Bird Friends, Attracts Rare Pileated Woodpeckers to His Feeding Station and They Stay—A Cardinal's Troubles in Feeding the Young Cow-Bird She Hatched in Her Own Nest.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

HOLLISTER, Missouri.

BIRDS are the companions and chums of Frank C. Salisbury, known in Hollister as "the Bird Man," who for a dozen years has fed and befriended bird visitors at his home on Hollister Hill, where he has built them a unique "feeding station."

Some of them leave when the nesting season comes. But year after year they return again when food grows scarce. One pair of red-bellied woodpeckers has been with him for 10 years.

Unusual among his friends are "Bill and the Missus," a pair of pileated woodpeckers, a bird now rare in this part of the country. "The Missus" has been a visitor at the Salisbury feeding station for three years.

Black walnuts and sunflower seed—these furnish the greater part of the menu for the Salisburys' bird visitors. Some linseed also is given them, and some suet scraps. Fifteen bushels of black walnuts were cracked by Mr. Salisbury last winter for his feathered friends. And he fed them 250 pounds of sunflower seed.

Frank C. Salisbury—the bird man.

Pausing for a moment as he cracked nuts for "Tom," a tufted titmouse, the Bird Man told this story of the pileated woodpecker:

"It was the winter of three years ago. I heard a pileated clucking among the trees. Probably she had been here several days, for this was the female—'the Missus.' Then, one morning early, looking out the front window with the bird glasses, I saw her, her great, long body, her swan-arched neck, the flaming tuft upon her head. She was trying to pick up some crumbs of kernels from the stump, and as I looked I saw her left leg hanging useless. Perhaps it had been broken by a shot. Perhaps it was the mark left when she escaped some animal.

"Well, I made up my mind to save her if I could. She was forlorn-looking, thin, scrawny and her feathers had no luster. When she flew back into the trees I went out and cracked a nut and left it for her. But the downy woodpecker and the other birds beat her to it every time I left one. She seemed to have considerable difficulty with that leg.

"I had that post there, and so I picked a handful of nuts and put them in one of the holes I had bored in it. Then I pounded in the half of a walnut. 'Now,' I said, 'if she will just be able to perch there she'll get that. Downy can't pick that heavy shell out.

"But Downy was there before her. He's a quarrelsome little chap. And greedy. And after he had taken the kernel out of the half-shell I'd used for a plug, he started tapping away at the side. Pretty soon he'd made a little hole there with his bill. In went his long, snaky tongue. And out came the nut meats.

"I tried that several times. Downy was always too smart. He, not the Pileated, got the nuts I cracked.

"So I hit on a new plan and after putting the meats in one of the holes he had rimmed out and plugging it with a half-shell, I took a flint pebble and drove it into the little hole Downy had made at the side of the nut. At last I had found a way. Downy emptied the half-shell and started in on the pebble. One blow and he lifted up his head with an angry squall and then tried it again. A second smart rap on that flint pebble and he was through. He couldn't stand the punishment.

"So the Pileated at last had her chance. At first she wouldn't feed when anyone was around. Gradually she got more familiar. And trusting. She commenced to feed with the other birds. Her feathers began to get glossy. By spring she was using her leg a little. And when spring came, with the nesting season, she flew away.

"We felt like one feels when a pet cat or dog has suddenly disappeared, I suppose. It seemed hard to lose her. Summer passed. Fall came on. And late in the fall I heard the Pileated once again. Again I plugged up the Downy's little hole with a pebble when I put the nut meats into the post. Soon the Pileated was feeding there, and one day, to her clucking down below, I heard an answering cluck. Up in the tree above was the male.

"She was using her leg almost as well as any bird now. She wasn't a bit shy. I could go up to her. I would take out food and she came closer to me than she ever had the winter before, talking all the time, as it were, and casting an eye up at Bill in the tree. It was as though she was saying: 'It's all right. He's a friend. You can trust him.' She wooed Bill's confidence just as I had wooed hers, and he, too, got to feeding at our station.

"When spring came they left us nesting over on Mann's Hill, more than a quarter of a mile away. Next summer they were back with their brood, and we hoped the little ones might stay. But the first cold days came, and suddenly, with angry cries and flying feathers, the old birds set upon their young and drove them off to new feeding grounds, drove them more than a mile across Turkey Creek Hollow and wouldn't let them even light to rest. You can't believe, until you have seen, how seemingly cruel the old birds are to their flesh and blood that way.

"For three years 'Bill and the Missus' have been with us, now. I fixed that nest up for them this summer, in a tree they roosted in last winter. We hope next spring they will have made it such a habit they will stay with us."

The pileated woodpecker, being "Bill."

The Bird Man resumed his task of cracking nuts. "Tom," the titmouse, was hungry, but he looked askance at the strangers on the porch, which overlooks the feeding station.

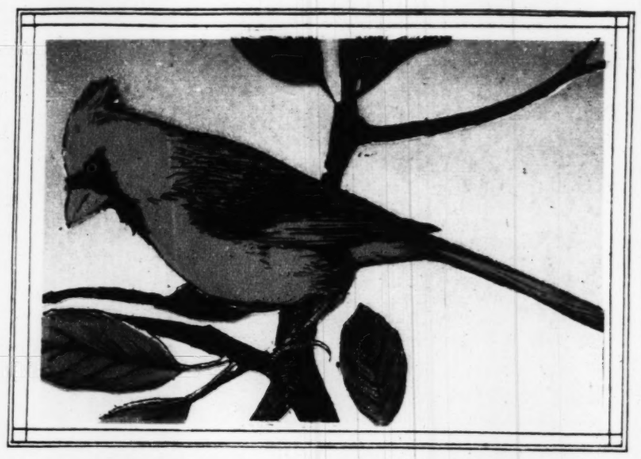
"It's all right, Tom," Mr. Salisbury said. "You needn't be afraid."

The bird looked at him sharply as he spoke, and then, quirking its head to one side, chirped inquiringly, as if to say: "Are you real sure?"

"Sure as anything, Tom," the Bird Man replied. And with that reassurance the bird flew down, seized the nut and flitted away.

"I didn't know a titmouse would eat nuts," hazarded the visitor.

"Lots of our birds don't eat nut meats to begin with," the Bird Man answered. "Take the chipping sparrow, for instance. Yet in the end hunger will drive them to try the food, and before the winter is gone they have the habit. But that isn't true of the Cardinal. She never eats nut meats.



The Cardinal—an unsuccessful step-mother.

"That led to a curious situation. A cow-bird laid its eggs in a chipping sparrow's nest. Chippy is 5 3-5 inches, the cow-bird almost 8 inches, long. Of course, the cow-bird fledgeling crowded Chippy's children out of the nest and they were lost to snakes and rats and owls. The sparrow was left alone with one chick—and that the parasite. It was almost as big as she. And the laziest bird I ever saw. Chippy brought it over to feed at the block, when the time seemed right, but the cow-bird fledgeling would only lie on the ground and clamor for food. Its poor foster-parent was flying from block to bird with nut meats every minute.

"Bad as was her plight, that of a cardinal was worse. The cardinal tried to feed the cow-bird fledgeling it had raised on sunflower seed. And as fast as the parasite was fed it would spit up the seed and yell for more. Cardinal didn't seem to understand it. In the end the cow-bird died."

Having found food and a friend, the birds stay on at the Salisbury home. Some of them—chickadees and nuthatches—grow so tame as to eat from the Bird Man's hand.

"It is simple," he says. "They eat at regular times. Just let snow come and a cold spell. And don't feed for a day. The chickadees will meet you as you step outside your door and, scolding you for neglect, will tell you what they want. Then hold out a nut meat in your hand. After a while they will seize it. Later, gaining confidence, they will come to you the minute you appear."

His pockets are always full of nut meats for his birds. One evening as he returned from Mrs. Salisbury's gift shop, climbing the hill with her some of his chickadees met them on the road and began to scold at him in their hunger call. And so he held out meats from his pocket. Bust... him downtown for a succession ... ernoons following. The birds ... tinued to meet him and were ... grew to be their habit. Wh... feeding hour came in the ev... the Bird Man was not at ho... feathered friends flew down ... to meet him.

THE WORLD'S FAVORITE SMOKE-WORDS "HAVE A CAMEL"

Did you ever notice that experienced smokers will offer or ask for a Camel—not just a cigarette? A little observation will reveal the overwhelming preference for Camels—a popularity that has never been equaled in all the history of smoking.

More smokers demand Camels, because Camel is unlike any other cigarette made.

Camel is as different as the rare quality of goodness. This difference costs millions to maintain. The choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown . . . the most skilful blending—that is Camels. More cannot be had at any price. When you light a Camel, you may be sure you are smoking the best.

When invited to have the world's favorite cigarette, accept with pleasure. It will be your personal introduction to the mildest, mellowest blend of choice tobaccos ever produced. Have a Camel.

Here's a Delightful Punch for the Dance

YOU want something very special, of course, and ordinary ginger ale will never, never do.

There's only one choice when you want the very best, and that is "Canada Dry." Don't risk the success of the whole evening by buying "something just as good."

Here's a delightful punch that you can make from one of Ida Bailey Allen's favorite recipes:

Continental Punch

Combine a quart of grape juice and a pint of orange juice with a half-cup of sugar, a third-cup of lemon juice, eight sprigs of crushed mint and four bottles of "Canada Dry." Add two quarts of crushed ice, mix and serve, garnished with fresh mint.

This recipe makes 36 to 40 sherbet glasses, but you can make it suit any occasion by dividing the quantities. Try it some night when friends call, or for the Sunday dinner. It's a real treat.

Special Hostess Package

A new way of packing "Canada Dry." Ideal for home use. Twelve bottles in a substantial carton. You will be especially glad to have it handy for your dinners at home or when friends drop in unexpectedly. This Hostess Package is sold by all "Canada Dry" dealers.

Instant Sleep and Youthful Days

How to banish wakeful nerves at night and keep yourself young in looks and spirit—a 3-day test convinces

When you go to bed do your nerves stay up? Leaving you dragged out on the morrow—your mornings logy, your energy drained by afternoon?

Modern science has found a natural way (a way without drugs) to overcome this: to restful sleep that quickly restores your tired mind and body.

Morning finds you a new woman. You are fresh, clear-eyed, buoyant. Youthful in looks and spirit. And you have the energy to carry you right through the day and the evening's social activities.

The 3-day test we offer here will show you. We urge you to make this test. It is well worth while.

Luxurious sleep that restores

Taken at night, a cup of Ovaltine brings sound, restful sleep quickly and naturally. This is why:

FIRST—It digests very quickly. Even in cases of impaired digestion. It combines certain vitalizing and building-up food essentials in which your daily fare is often lacking. One cup of Ovaltine has more real food value than 12 cups of beef extract.

SECOND—Ovaltine has the power actually to digest 4 to 5 times its weight in other foods, which may be in your stomach.

Thus, a few minutes after drinking, Ovaltine is turning itself and all other foods into rich, red blood. There is a quick restoration for your tired mind and body. Frayed nerves are soothed. Restful sleep comes. And as you sleep you are gathering strength and energy.

In the morning you awaken, looking and feeling years younger. You are a new being for a new day. You are alive with energy to carry you buoyantly through the day.

Hospitals and doctors recommend it

Ovaltine is a delightful pure food-drink. It has been in use in Switzerland for 30 years and is now in universal use in England and her colonies. During the great war Ovaltine was included as a standard war ration for invalid soldiers.

A few years ago Ovaltine was introduced into this country. Today it is used in hundreds of hospitals. More than 20,000 doctors recommend it, not only as a restorative, but also for nursing mothers, convalescents, invalids, nerve-strain, backward children and the aged.

Many take a cup of Ovaltine two or three times a day for its natural stimulation. It's truly a "pick-up" drink.

A 3-day test

You can buy Ovaltine in four sizes for home use at your druggist or store. Or drink it at the soda fountains. But to let you try it we will send a 3-day introductory package for 10 cents to cover cost of packing and mailing.

Send in the coupon with 10 cents.

20,000 doctors recommend

OVALTINE

Builds Body. Brain and Nerve

I was suffering from dizzy headaches and was very restless and nervous. In a weeks time I felt as if I was a new person. I slept right through the night without awakening once. I feel light and can move around quicker and do not get out of breath.

Mrs. Rose Pasquale, Newark, N. J.

"Ovaltine is surely a wonderful remedy for lack of sleep and quieting nerves. I said I wake after retiring until 3-4 o clock in the morning, get up so tired would rather stay in bed all day. Terrible headaches and nearly crazy with nervousness but really feel 50% better. Am going to continue taking Ovaltine. I now go to sleep in less than an hour after retiring. Also give Ovaltine to my two boys.

—Mrs. C. Morris, Chicago.

I enclose 10 cents to cover cost of packing and mailing. Send me your 3-day test package of Ovaltine.

DANDRUFF?

Here's good news for you—

IT'S a fact: Listerine, the safe antiseptic, and Dandruff simply do not get along together. Many were incredulous when we first announced this. But the word is fast going around from the lips of those who have found how wonderfully it works.

As you probably know, dandruff is a germ disease and that annoying white shower on dark clothes is a warning of more serious scalp trouble—falling hair, possibly baldness.

Try Listerine for, say, one week, every night and learn for yourself how remarkably it works.

The use of Listerine for dandruff is not complicated. You simply douse it on your scalp, full strength, and massage thoroughly. The effect is wonderfully refreshing. And you will be amazed to see how this treatment, followed systematically, does the trick.

Moreover, Listerine will not discolor the hair nor will it stain fabrics. And it is not greasy or smelly.

Many of the better barber shops are now prepared to give you this treatment. Try Listerine for dandruff. You'll be delighted with the results.

—Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, U. S. A.

Well—it worked! For quite a while we challenged people to try Listerine Tooth Paste. Sales now show that when they try it they stick to it! LARGE TUBE—25 CENTS

A GLIMPSE OF PICTURESQUE VALENCIA

H·M·VICTORIA EUGENIA

Queen of Spain

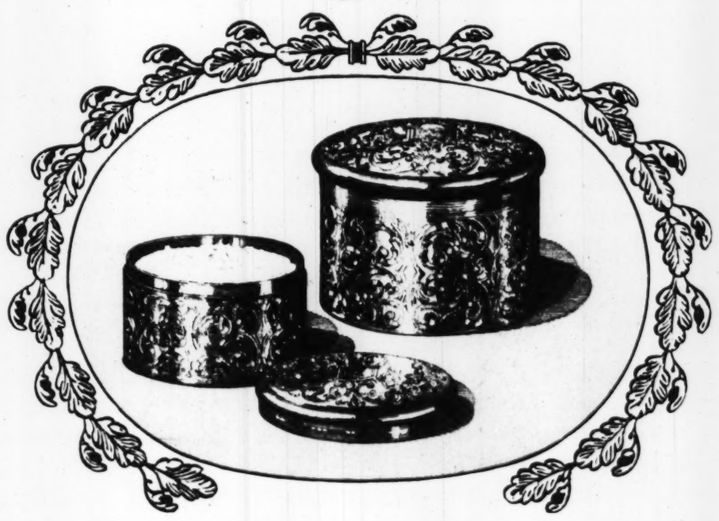
VIOLET EYES, a tall queenly presence, wavy golden hair and "that incomparable soft peach-bloom English skin."

The Queen of Spain, who was an English princess, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, is one of the most decorative queens in Europe. The King of Spain fell in love with her at sight and chose her from among many royal princesses. And fortunately, for here was a woman born to rule a people whose ruling passion is beauty.

Her Spanish subjects are proud of Her Majesty when she receives them in state, royal robes flowing from snow-white shoulders, hair an aureole of gold beneath her jeweled crown.

They love to watch her dance with easy grace...or at tennis which she plays with verve and strategy. But perhaps most of all when she rides in the public gardens of Madrid, for she sits her horse in superb form.

THE QUEEN delights in every kind of beauty, in exquisite clothes, in keeping her delicate skin and her elegant queenly person always at the very pinnacle of loveliness. So, just as she chooses her Paris hats and frocks with fastidious care, she makes her selections for her royal dressing table.



Gold-lined silver Tiffany jars engraved with the royal crest and monogram and filled with POND'S TWO CREAMS recently sent by the Pond's Extract Company for Her Majesty's use on her dressing table

Everything which contributes most perfectly to the needs of her beauty is there, prominent among them the Two delicate Creams made by Pond's. Faithfully, fragrantly, these Creams guard Her Majesty's "wild rose complexion" from all conditions which could possibly age or harm it.

Pond's Cold Cream is a delicate, cleansing cream so light that it melts on touching the skin—its pure oils sinking down into the pores to remove all dust and powder. The skin should be cleansed with it several times daily and before retiring.

Pond's Vanishing Cream protects the skin against sun and wind-burn, keeps the hands soft and white, gives a smooth finish, and serves as an excellent base for powder. It should be used after every cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream except the nightly one.

Try these Two delicate Creams of which Her Majesty has signified her appreciation.

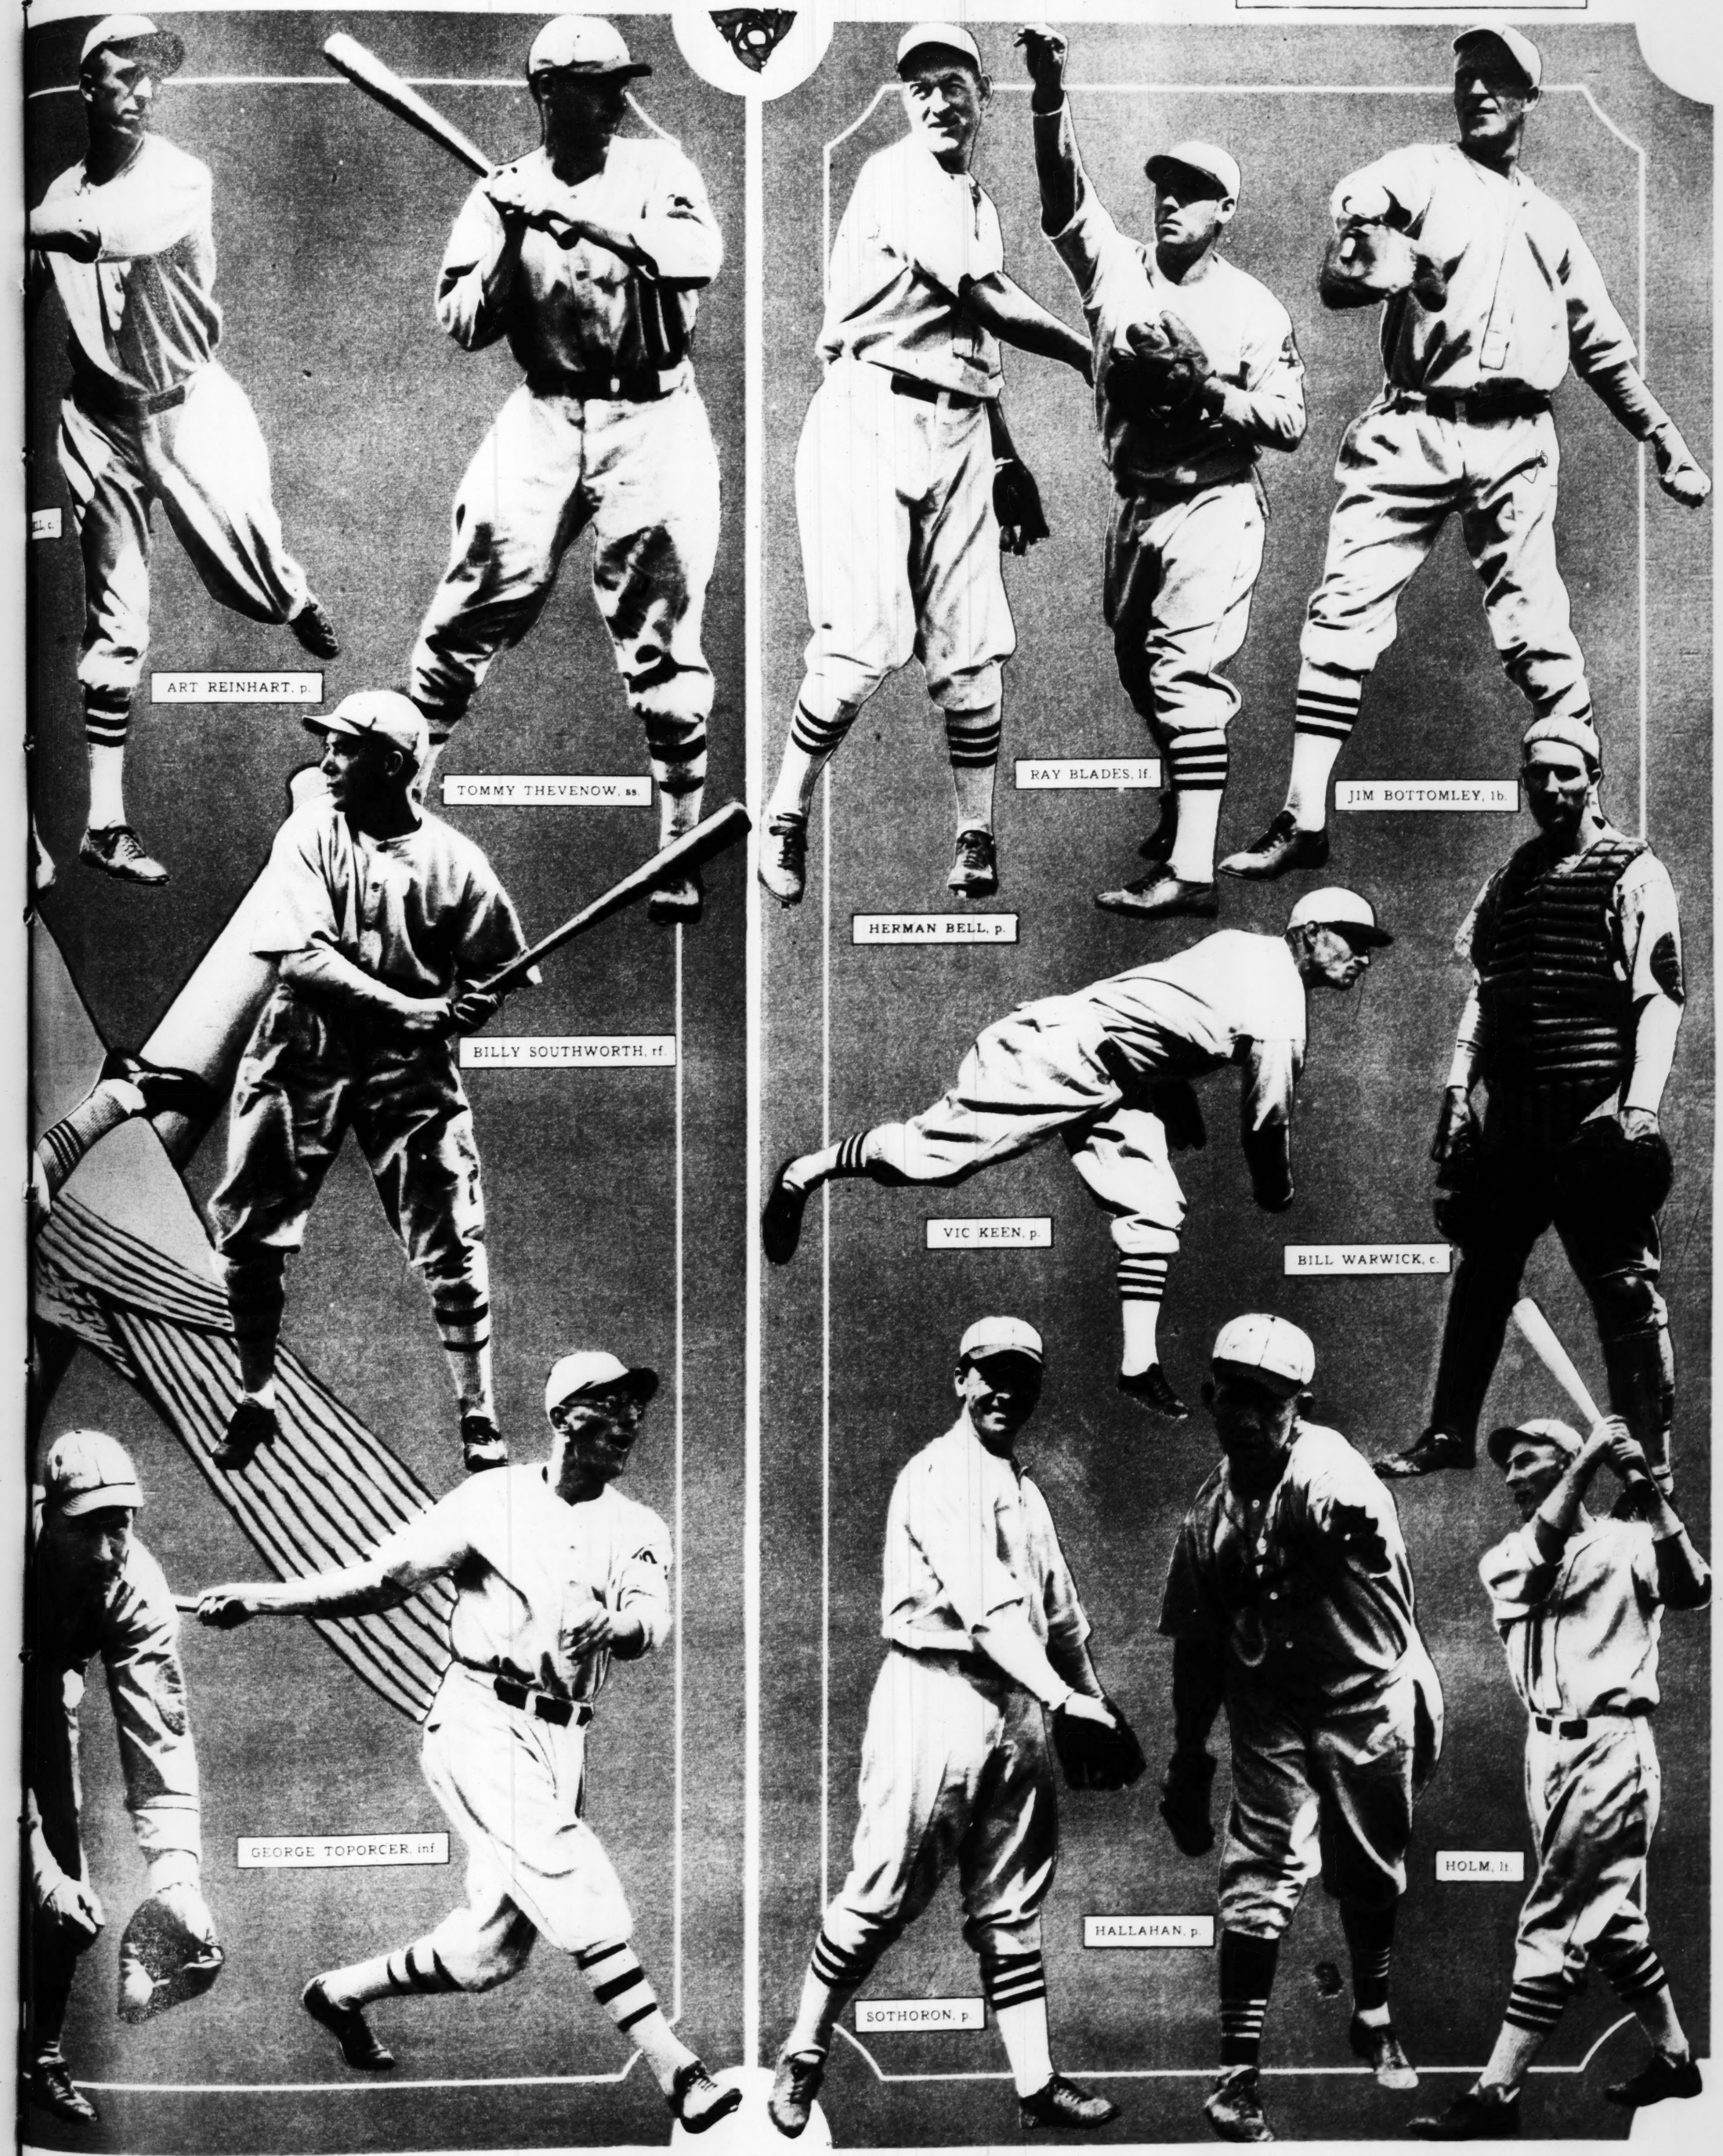
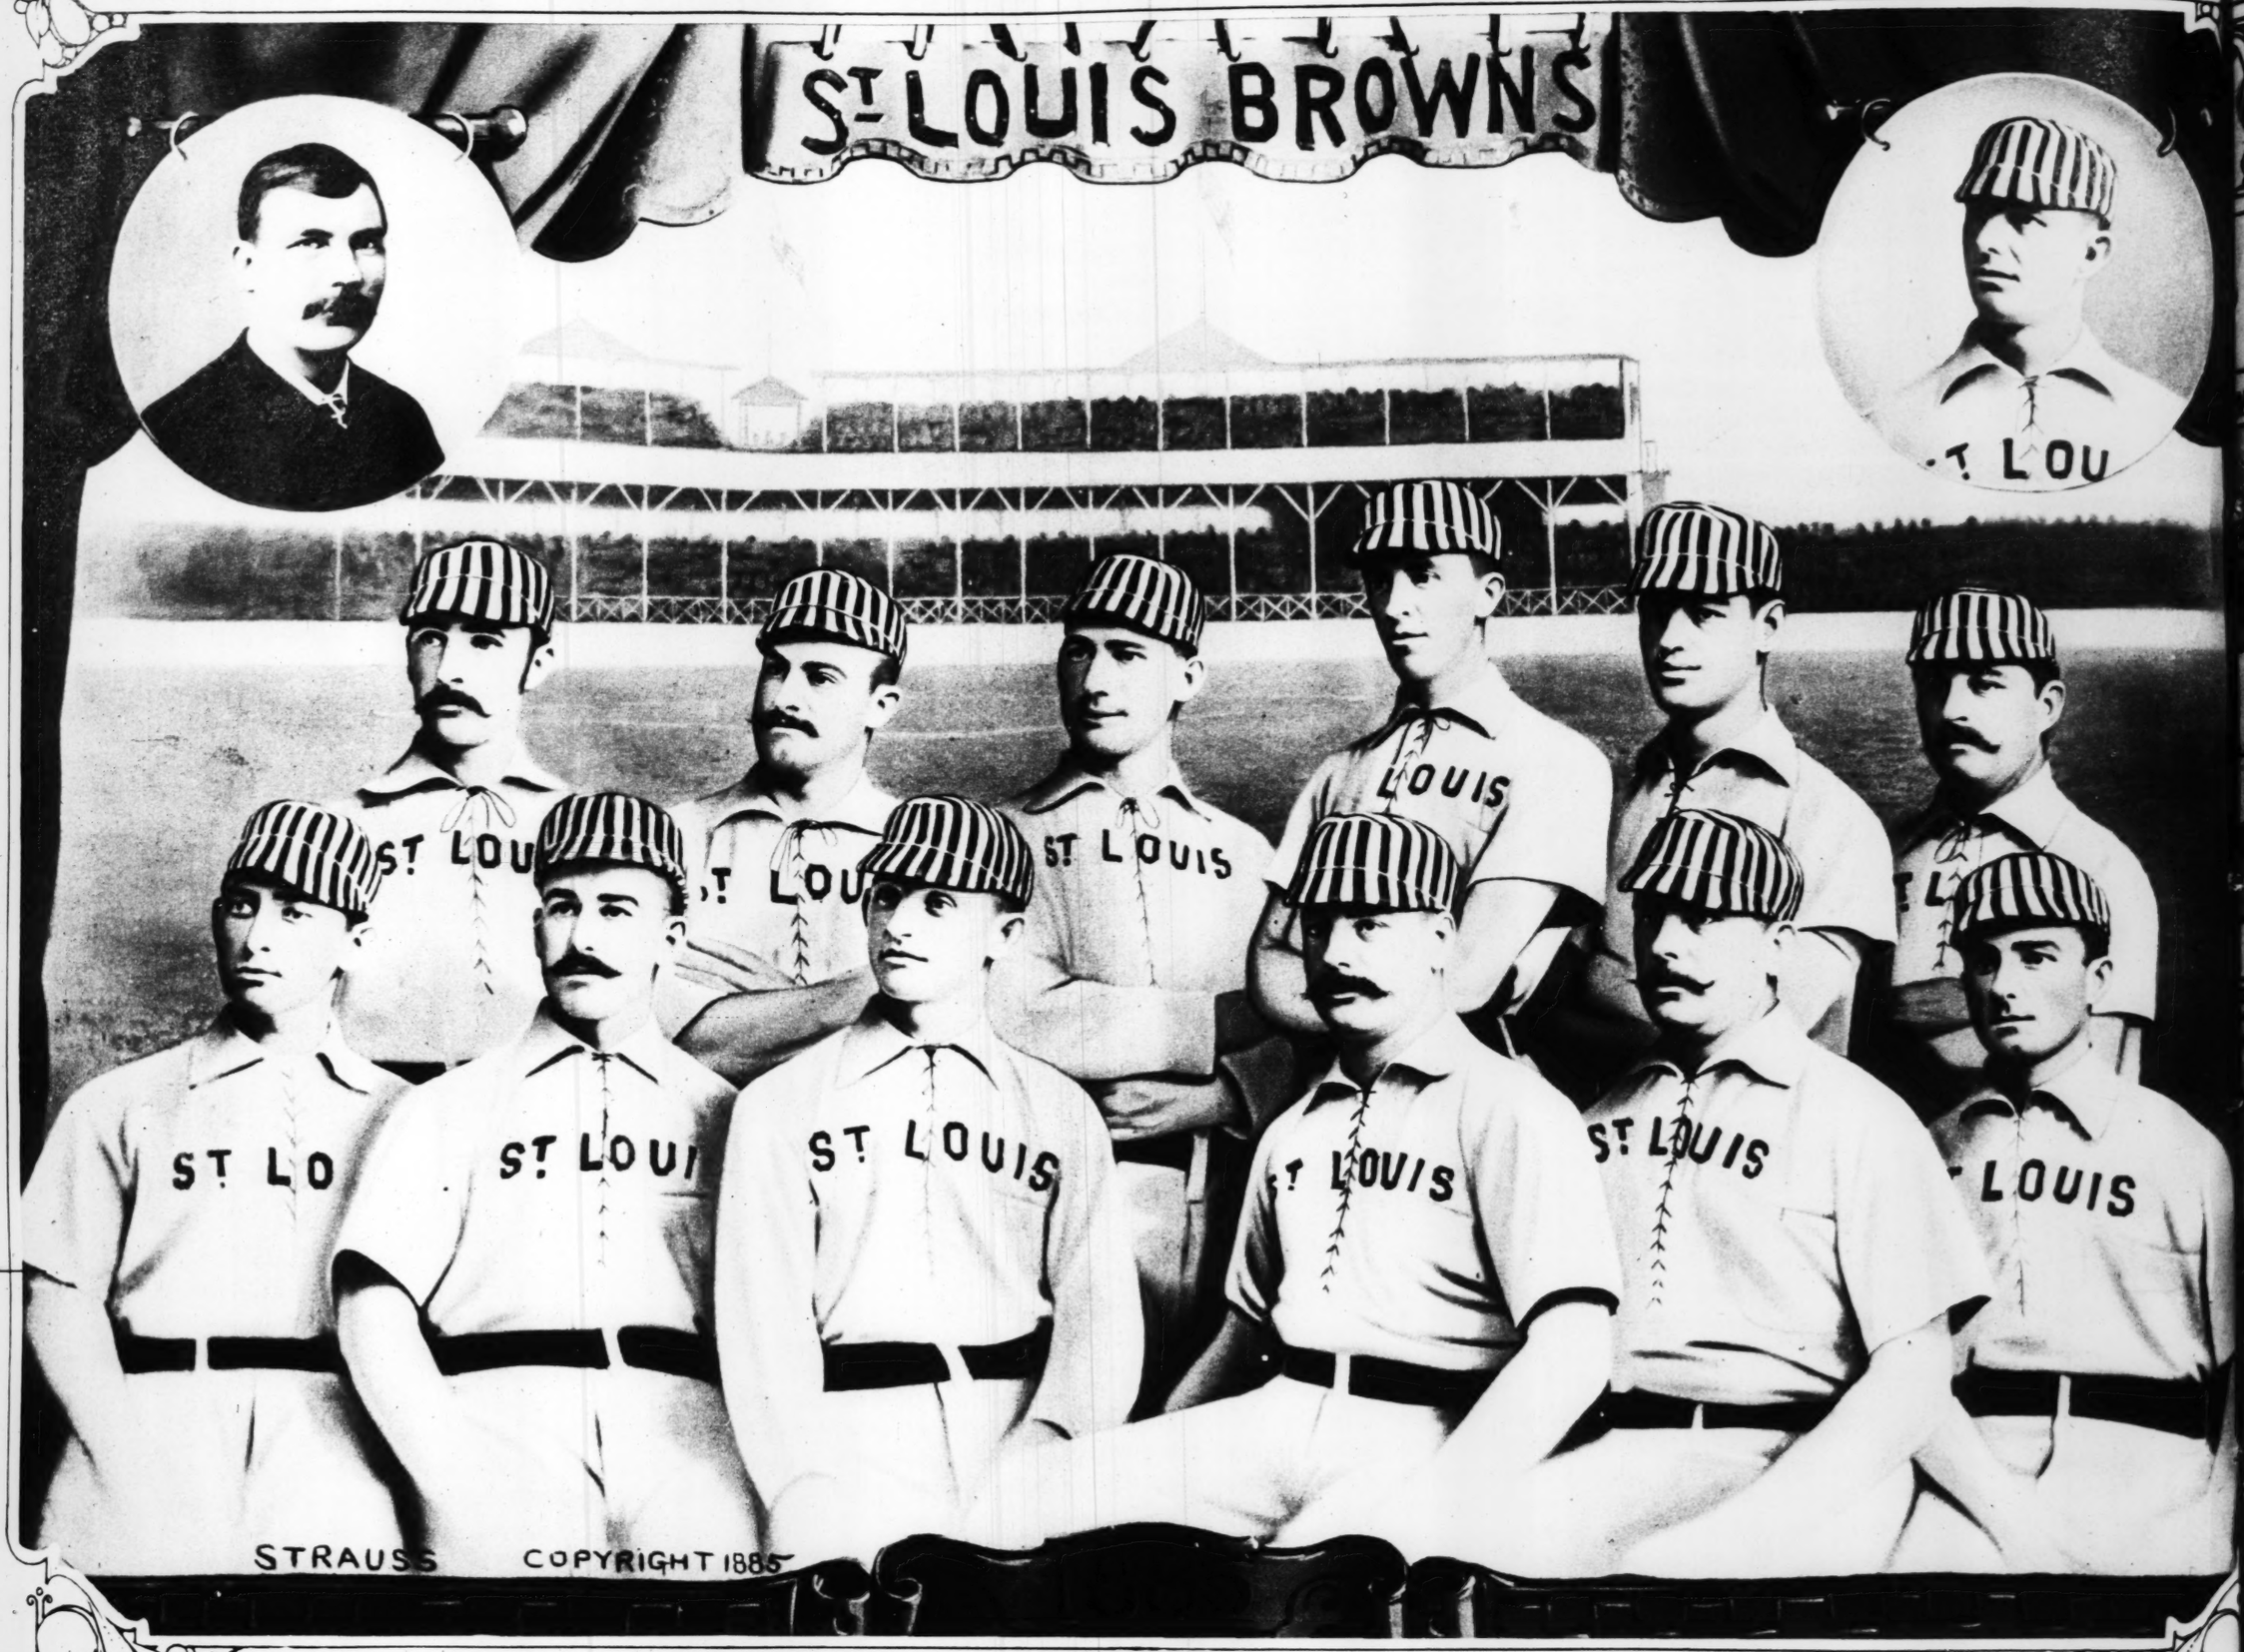
NATIONAL BASEBALL LEAGUE FOR 1926

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
WORLD'S SERIES SOUVENIR



PLAYERS WHO WON FOR ST. LOUIS, 41 YEARS AGO, ITS FIRST BASEBALL PENNANT



The above photograph, taken by Strauss in 1885, shows the St. Louis Browns of that year, the first team to win a baseball pennant for this city. In the upper left is a picture of Chris von der Ahe, owner of the team, and in upper right, Charles Comiskey, captain. In the back row, left to right, are Doc Bushong, catcher; Curt Welch, center field; Sam Barkley, substitute second base; Dave Foutz, pitcher; Tip O'Neil, left field; and Billy Gleason, shortstop. In front row, Hank Robinson, second base; Arlie Latham, third base; Bob Caruthers, pitcher; George McGinnis, pitcher; William Sullivan, substitute catcher; and Hughie Nichols, right field. Billy Gleason is now a captain in the St. Louis Fire Department. This team won four successive pennants.

BRIEF BIOGRAPHIES OF THE 25 MEMBERS OF THE CARDINALS OF 1926

ALEXANDER, GROVER CLEVELAND—Pitcher; 39 years of age; height 6 feet 1 inch; weight 175 pounds. Made pro debut with Galesburg in 1909. With Indianapolis and Syracuse 1910. Drafted by Phillies and reported in 1911. With team until 1917, when, with Bill Killifer, he was traded to Cubs. Remained with Cubs until June, 1926, when he came to Cardinals for waiver price of $4000. Pitched and won world's series games for Phillies from Boston in 1915.

BELL, HERMAN—Pitcher; 27 years of age; height 6 feet; weight 180 pounds. Signed as semi-pro at Alton, Iowa. Sent out several times for seasoning. With Milwaukee under option in 1925 and recalled. In 1924, as member of Cardinals, pitched and won double header from Boston.

BELL, LESTER ROWLAND—Third base; 25 years old; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 165 pounds. Made debut with Bristol club in 1921. With Lansing, Mich., in 1922, and purchased by Cardinals for $2500. Farmed out to Syracuse, Houston and Milwaukee. Has been regular since 1925.

BLADES, FRANCIS RAYMOND—Outfielder; 29 years of age; height 5 feet 7 1-2 inches; weight 163 pounds. Played with Post-Dispatch Public School League champions. Signed as free agent by Cardinals after playing at Mount Vernon, Ill. Farmed to Memphis and Houston. With Cards since fall of 1922.

BOTTOMLEY, JAMES LEROY—First base; 26 years old. Height 6 feet; weight 175 pounds. Made professional debut with Mitchell (Dakota) League, in 1920. With Houston in 1921 and Syracuse in 1922. Bought by Cardinals in August, 1922, for three players and cash. Originally picked up as free agent by Cardinals at Nokomis, Ill. Wrote Charles Barrett, Cardinal scout, for position and signed first contract at $150 a month.

CLOUGH, EDGAR GEORGE—Pitcher; 25 years of age; height 6 feet; weight 185 pounds. Picked up as free agent and sent to Fort Smith for two years' seasoning. Has not pitched an inning in a major-league game this season.

DOUTHIT, TAYLOR LEE—Outfielder; 25 years old; height 5 feet 11 3-4 inches; weight 175 pounds. Played on California U. team and signed by Cardinals. Farmed to St. Joseph and Milwaukee. Recalled by Cardinals last fall.

FLOWERS, D'ARCY—Utility infielder; age 24; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 160 pounds. Made "pro" debut with Cambridge, Eastern Shore League, in 1922, and purchased by Cardinals for $500. Clubs with since then, Jersey City, Houston and Oakland. Recalled from Oakland by Cardinals last season.

HAFEY, CHARLES JAMES—Outfielder; 23 years of age; height 6 feet; weight 185 pounds. Played with St. Mary's College, California, before being signed by Cardinals. With Fort Smith, Syracuse and Houston before being brought back to majors.

HAINES, JESSE JOSEPH—Pitcher; 33 years old; height 6 feet; weight 180 pounds. Made debut with Dayton in 1914. Since then with Saginaw, Detroit, Springfield, Topeka, Cincinnati, Tulsa and Kansas City. Obtained by Cardinals in deal involving $10,000 in winter of 1919. Pitched no-hit, no-run game against Boston Braves, July 17, 1924. It was first time a St. Louis National pitcher performed the feat since 1876.

HALLAHAN, WILLIAM ANTHONY—Pitcher; 22 years old; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 170 pounds. Signed as free agent by Cardinals and sent to Syracuse for seasoning last year.

HOLM, ROSCOE ALBERT—Outfielder; 24 years old; height 5 feet 9 1-2 inches; weight 163 pounds. Signed by Cards after starring with Iowa U. Sent to Syracuse for seasoning several times. He also played infield and acted as catcher. Original position was shortstop.

HORNSBY, ROGERS—Twenty-nine years of age. Height 5 feet 11 1-2 inches, weight 170 pounds. Started with Denison (Texas) club in 1914. Sold to Cardinals August 20, 1915, for price reported at $500. Made debut with St. Louis in fall of 1915. Plays second base. Led National League in batting six straight years. Made manager of team in May, 1925.

JOHNSON, SYLVESTER—Pitcher; 25 years old; height 6 feet; weight 178 pounds. Made pro debut with Portland, Coast League, in 1920. With Detroit from 1922 to 1925 inclusive. Sent to Vernon and drafted by Cardinals. Is one of hard-luck pitchers of baseball. Had cheek bone broken by line drive prior to his release by Detroit, and recently was forced to leave Cardinals because of broken finger, received when hit by line drive.

KEEN, HOWARD VICTOR—Pitcher; 26 years of age; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 160 pounds. Graduate of University of Maryland. With Petersburg in 1918 and 1919. Won 34 straight for Philadelphia semi-pros next two years and signed by Cubs, September, 1921. With Cubs, except for brief stay at Wichita Falls, until last winter, when he was traded to Cardinals for Jimmy Cooney.

O'FARRELL, ROBERT ARTHUR—Catcher; 29 years old; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 180 pounds. Made debut with Waukegan in 1915. Since then with Cubs, Milwaukee and Peoria. Recalled by Cubs, 1918, and with team until summer of 1925, when he was traded to Cardinals for Freigau and Gonzales.

REINHART, ARTHUR CONRAD—Pitcher; 27 years of age; height 6 feet 1 inch; weight 172 pounds. Signed as free agent by Cardinals at Ackley, Iowa. With Houston in 1919, Seattle and Milwaukee in 1920, Los Angeles, 1921; Houston, 1922; Syracuse, 1923, 1924 and 1925, until purchased by Cardinals.

RHEM, CHARLES FLINT—Pitcher; 23 years old; height 6 feet 2 inches; weight 180 pounds. Signed by Cardinals after starring at Clemson College and sent to Fort Smith for year's seasoning. With Cardinals 1925 and 1926. Was strike-out king of organized baseball in 1924, year he was with Fort Smith.

SHERDEL, WILLIAM HENRY—Pitcher; age 30 years; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 160 pounds. Started with Hanover (Pennsylvania) club in 1915. With Milwaukee in 1916 and 1917. Came to Cardinals in 1918 in deal for players and has been here ever since. "Wee Willie," as he is known, has the greatest slow ball in baseball.

SOUTHWORTH, WILLIAM H.—Outfielder; 32 years old; height 5 feet 9 1-2 inches; weight 170 pounds. Made professional debut with Portsmouth, Ohio State League, in 1912. Since then with Cleveland, Toledo, Portland, Birmingham, Pittsburg, Boston and New York. Obtained by Cardinals in trade of Heine Mueller in June of this year.

SOTHORON, ALLAN SUTTON—Pitcher; 33 years old; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 176 pounds. One of stars of Browns for several years, but was bunted out of American League, being sent by Cleveland to Louisville, after falling with Red Sox. Obtained in trade by Cardinals and has been with club since 1924. Started as pro with Troy, in 1912. Recently pitched game that put Cardinals in first place in "little world series" with Pirates at Sportsman's Park. Is one of few remaining spitball pitchers in big leagues.

THEVENOW, THOMAS JOSEPH—Shortstop; 23 years old; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 155 pounds. Made debut with Joplin club and purchased by Cardinals for $4000. Sent to Syracuse, but recalled in summer of 1925 by Cardinals.

TOPORCER, GEORGE—Utility infielder; 27 years of age; height 5 feet 10 1-2 inches; weight 160 pounds. Made professional debut with Cardinals in 1921, after being signed as free agent. Sent to Syracuse, but recalled in 1922. With club ever since. Is only infielder in majors who wears spectacles.

VICK, HENRY ARTHUR—Catcher; 27 years old; height 5 feet 9 1-2 inches; weight 180 pounds. Signed after playing with Michigan U., where he was chosen center on Walter Camp's All-American football team. Farmed to Houston, Memphis and Syracuse before being retained by Cardinals.

WARWICK, FIRMAN NEWTON—Catcher; 27 years old; height 6 feet 1 inch; weight 180 pounds. Made pro debut with Pittsburg in 1921. Since then with Columbia, Memphis, Flint and San Antonio. Purchased by Cardinals from San Antonio and finished 1925 season with Cards. Is graduate of Pennsylvania U. and was chosen All-American collegiate catcher in 1920.
